believe that they have captured a bad man. Bishop is sullen and refused to divulge any information regarding his previous residence, his business and his family. The police have asked information from several of the larger cities, and Bishop will be held pending an investigation.

At the meeting of the senior class Tuesday next, the class will try and dispose of the matter of class pins. The securing of pins has been considerably delayed this year, since the committee has been working with the other classes in the attempt to secure a standard class pin. Very little as regards a standard pin, has been accomplished. It has almost been impossible to get the different members of the committees together, and while the scheme of having a standard pin has not been abandoned, yet the senior class will probably take final action on the matter Tuesday.

A recommendation of the senate, adopted at a recent meeting, provides for changes in the Temple building, probably entailing the removing of partitions to enlarge some rooms. It has been recognized for some time that there was no place to hold university functions sufficiently large to accommodate the number who desire to attend. Even the rooms at the Temple have proven too small for the receptions and the student functions which have been given this fall, and the need has been pointed out to the senate, which resulted in their recommendation to the board of regents that the room be enlarged.

A report was circulated about the campus yesterday afternoon that L. R. Blanchard had announced his candidacy for the presidency of the sophomore class. Much excitement was manifested among the sophomores on hearing that class politics was opening at such an early date and an immediate search was made for Blanchard to confirm the report, but he was not to be found. Just who is backing Blanchard is not known. Several sophomores, however, assert that Blanchard announced his intention of running several times in their presence. This is the first sign of any political activity on the part of the sophomore class and comes at a little earlier date than usual.

Professor Lawrence Bruner has returned home from Washington, D. C., where he visited with his daughter Psyche and her husband, Harry Scott Smith. Mr. Smith is a former university graduate, who has been taking rapid strides since leaving college. He recently received a most important appointment from the government, placing him in charge of the experiment station near Melrose Highlands, close into Boston, where the "gipsy moth" investigation is being conducted. Imported from the old country, the moth has been doing great destruction in the New England states in recent years. An appropriation of $250,000 has been made by the government for the investigation of the subject. Before locating in the east, Mr. Smith was engaged in an investigation of the boll weevil in the south.

The Iowa seniors will play "The Taming of the Shrew" this spring.

Cornell recently defeated Pennsylvania in a hockey tournament.

The Indiana State Dairy association is in session at Purdue.

The Amherst and the Chicago Glee and Mandolin clubs may give a joint concert in Chicago in March.

Two hundred new lockers have been installed in the Cornell gym.

The Syracuse annual, the Onondagan, will be sent this year to the leading high schools and academies all over the country.

Kirk will coach the Iowa baseball team this spring.

Five students, three women and two men, were recently elected in the junior college council at Chicago.
