While it is now definitely known that Nebraska has won the northern championship in basket-ball the supremacy in the southern section is still in doubt. So far as Nebraska's sympathies are concerned they are undoubtedly with Kansas. There has always been a keen sense of rivalry between Kansas and Nebraska, and the fact that Kansas has already beaten Nebraska twice in basket-ball this season makes Nebraska students all the more interested in having yet another opportunity to redeem themselves.

The adoption by the joint committee of the junior and senior classes of a standard university pin is a long of the University of Wisconsin is as applicable to conditions here as at Wisconsin. It deserves the careful thought of the student body:

"Let us have more informal university gatherings. Among four thousand students there is bound to exist radical differences in views, tastes and ideals. These differences are forces that separate us. Add to these the disintegrating influence of petty class politics and small prejudices and a big student body may easily become 'a mass of worrying atoms.' We need then some constant cementing force. In order to produce student unity students must have something in common. The problem is occasionally to get four thousand students to think the same thoughts, have the same impulses, do the same thing at the same time. This is the touch-stone of college unity, hence our song fests, our mass meetings, our gatherings at the union. Better one mass meeting than a hundred formal dances from the viewpoint of college unity. There ought to be more mixing of students, so we may learn what we all have in common, when differences are forgotten and likenesses are discovered. This process results in student unification and makes us not members of a clique or club but Wisconsin students."

IT SHOULD BE PERMANENT

The entertainment of the members of the legislature by the university is an event that should be made a regular feature of the biennial meeting of the state law-makers instead of merely a temporary affair. The university desires that the members of the legislature should have confidence in the way that the university is being con-step in the right direction. It is one more step towards a more thorough and more unified university spirit. All that can be done by the upper classes to make it a permanent thing has now been done and it must depend for its continuance upon the good sense and loyalty of the under classes. The faculty should take such a position on this question that it will never in the future be possible for any class to abandon the pin for some other design.

Professor Crabtree of the Peru state normal school touched upon a subject that is of the most vital importance and should have the greatest publicity when he discussed at chapel the question of "Tactful and Tactless Punishment." Improper punishment has been the cause of embittering more students than perhaps any other one cause, and students of the universities and colleges of the country who are planning to become teachers should have their attention especially directed to this problem before they are sent out to have the children of the country placed under their care.

ISN'T IT TRUE HERE?

ducted, it desires that they should appreciate the great value of the work which the university is doing for the advancement of the state. It is but natural that an assembly of men who are busily engaged in different parts of the state in the practical work of life should have a very clear idea of the work that the state university is doing and of its real value.

It is only fair to them, it is only fair to the university that they should have the fullest opportunity of knowing exactly what the largest institution of the state is doing. The only way that they can learn this is by themselves seeing the work which the school is doing. The visit of the legislature in a body to the university gives both the university and the legislators exactly the opportunity that they need.

The only unfortunate feature of the entertainment of the legislature this year was the fact that it was not a reception by the students but by the faculty. The vital part of the work that the university is doing is its education of the students that are in attendance, and a much more valuable knowledge of the university would be obtained if the members of the legislature were given the fullest opportunity of mingling with the student body.

The students of Kansas have recently undertaken to entertain the legislature of that state in a similar manner to the scheme undertaken at Nebraska with, however, the vital difference that the students themselves did the entertaining. The total expenses of the legislature were paid by the school and the day was spent as a holiday devoted exclusively to the entertainment of the legislature.

If a permanent holiday could be arranged for some time during the beginning of each legislative session at which the legislators could personally see the work that their school was doing it would do an infinite amount of good. The legislature should be made to feel that they are not dealing with some foreign institution, but with their own school, the most important property of the state.

Tuesday E. W. Hills, of the Cornhusker staff, visited the different companies of the cadet battalion and laid the plan before each company of having their picture in the Cornhusker. It was voted upon, and carried almost unanimously in every company, that each cadet be taxed twenty-five cents each to cover the expense of putting the company picture in the Cornhusker.
