In selecting Dr. Condra as the man to whom the Cornhusker for 1909 should be dedicated the Cornhusker staff made a choice in which everyone who knows Dr. Condra can most heartily agree. No man in the university has done more to bring about a well rounded complete college life at the University of Nebraska than he, and no man has so earnestly and consistently championed clean athletics and clean scholarship. The choice of Dr. Condra is an appreciation of his tireless work to raise the standing of the university.

A Chinaman has been initiated into the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity at Cornell. It is highly fitting that in the highest honorary fraternity differences of race should not be allowed to make any difference. No matter to what race a man belongs, intellectual capacity is alike deserving of recognition, and if a Chinaman deserves the highest scholastic honors it would be the grossest injustice to keep them from him because of his in youth, become such in the after years. In the case of the comparatively small number who acquire the love at a later period—and they are the exception which proves the rule—the loss of the earlier time is irreparable, or is at least a great misfortune. The early time was wasted. It is no easy task to make up for it. In the matter of the largest attainments of the lifetime, it is well nigh impossible to do so.

"It may be properly said—and with emphasis—that the student in his college years should set aside a certain portion of every day for reading, and that he should as conscientiously and faithfully devote his time to its purpose as he devoted the sections of the day which are required for what is strictly called his college work to the object which they have in view."

 More sinned against than sinning."

The vacancy created in the faculty seat of the athletic board over a month ago by the resignation of Professor Phillips ought to be filled by the appointment of some progressive man to serve out the unexpired term. The naming of a successor to Professor Phillips ought to occur soon, for the board now, with one member lacking, is left in a condition that may at any time before the close of the year bring forth legislation not wholly congruous to a policy tending toward greater things in Nebraska athletics.

With Professor Phillips retired, the board is equally divided between students and faculty members, there being five of each. This is not in concordance with the spirit of the rules governing the athletic body, else originally provision would not have been made for drawing one more member from the faculty than from the student ranks. The undergraduates are now balanced with their superiors in voting power and could, with the aid of one faculty vote, control legislation. The Nebraska board needs some new blood, and now is the chance to inject a little into its veins.

In selecting a man for the vacant chair the senate can do no better than to return to the board one whom it so summarily dismissed from it last spring, namely Captain John G. Workizer.

There is a man who stands for a square deal. When he was a mem-

DR. HADLEY SPEAKS.

It is a question that is always a vital one to students to know just how much outside reading one should attempt to crowd into the time that is occupied in going to school and what the nature of this reading should be. President Hadley of Yale has recently discussed the question from the point of view of one who has studied it for years and his words are worthy of repeating. He says:

"It is of almost measureless consequence to an educated man that he be widely read—that he have the love of reading, which ever inspires and moves him to gain for himself all knowledge and culture and power and enjoyment that reading can give. But if one is ever to be a reader, in the true and best meaning of the word, it is almost absolutely essential that the habit of reading and the interest of the mind in its should be formed and awakened before the age of college graduation.

"The college years are of inestimable importance in this regard. Few men, as we believe, who are not readers, with the genuine love of reading ber of the athletic board last year he had the interests of cornhusker athletics at heart. He worked for bettering the conditions of the athletes, devoted a great share of his time to his duties as board member, and was accomplishing more for the advancement of Nebraska in the athletic world than any of his colleagues.

His methods deserved no censure. The wrong he was alleged to have done was only an imaginary one. The truth of this statement some of the "reformers" of last year now realize.

Some of the students who carried on the purity campaign last spring were sincere. They believed they were doing cornhusker athletics a great good in stirring up an "investigation," but, like all reformers, they erred and did Captain Workizer a great injustice. It was a wrong that can be righted at the present opportunity by returning the commandant to the athletic board.

His re-election to the board would please a vast majority of the students. He is the kind of a man they like. He is of the type of progressive men of this generation, which is making the United States a great nation.

Appoint Captain John G. Workizer to succeed Professor Phillips and the university will have the man of the hour for the athletic board.

Happenings of the Past

Seven Years Ago.

Complete baseball dates for the season were announced, including games with Minnesota and Kansas.

Six Years Ago.

A bill was introduced into the legislature defining the scope of the activities of the university library with the aim of keeping it from duplicating work done by the state library.

Five Years Ago.

Nebraska beat Wisconsin in basketball by the score of 25 to 22. Game was very rough and hard fought.

Four Years Ago.

Eleven football games were scheduled by Manager Davis for the coming season.

Special charge was made at a basketball informal on all who did not bring ladies. It resulted in very few men "staggering it."

One Year Ago.

Sophomore basketball game defeated the seniors by the score of 36 to 35. The game was followed by an informal dance.

Better than the Majestic—Walter B. Tripp. Tuesday night at Temple.
