The editor wishes to explain that the peculiarly confused condition of the editorial columns yesterday morning was not due to any derangement of his mind, but was one of the results of inexcusable carelessness in the printing shop. It is most sincerely hoped that such blunders as this can in the future be obviated.

The time has come for the university to have an original song that stands for something definite and means something to the students of the university. It ought not to be necessary to offer a reward to interest the best student talent in this matter, but it seems that no other method will accomplish anything. There is most certainly sufficient talent in the university to produce a song that is as distinctive as those of any eastern college, and the matter has now been sufficiently advertised so that every student knows what is needed. It is now up to the students to act.

CONVOCATION--Thursday, March 11

Mrs. Silesce Dales-Knapp
Violin Recital

Memorial Hall Eleven A. M.

The world has professional men without number, men with technical knowledge are at every hand, but a man who can think clearly and accurately, a man who can meet his problems and solve them is as rare as a truly great man.

The ability to do this, if it can be said to come from education at all, must come not from technical study, but from broad knowledge of history, art, religion and philosophy. These are the things that give a man such a bearing that nothing can overwhelm him. This fact is coming to be realized more and more in the technical schools of the country and many professional courses have been closed to all who have not first taken their A. B. degree. Such a movement not only means better men but it means that the professions will be put upon a higher plane.

LET US DO LIKEWISE.

The freshman at last have the right spirit over at Iowa. Taking it upon themselves to raise the standard of Iowa athletics the freshmen have adopted a training pledge and agreed to abstain from the use of intoxicants, tobacco, and injurious drinks and sweets. Here is what the Daily Iowan has to say of the matter editorially:

"A training pledge for freshmen track candidates is to be found on the armory bulletin. Throwing custom to the winds, the freshmen are determined to raise the standard of the Iowa athlete upon the highest plane. Heretofore, the general run of Iowa athletes have not trained, consequently Iowa has been unable to hold her own in the recent state meets. And furthermore, her track records are proof of the fact, when compared with those of eastern schools or of neighboring colleges, that her athletes do not develop their powers to the highest degree

OPINION OF AUTHORITY.

Dr. Bessey has recently written a statement in which he declares that training is the important thing while the facts of information are of secondary importance. In a speech recently delivered, President Hadley of Yale declared: "The ideal college education seems to me to be one where a student learns things that he is not going to use in after life, by methods that he is going to use. The former element gives the breath, the latter element gives the training." President Wilson of Princeton recently declared, "I believe in general training with no particular occupation in view, to be the very heart and essence of university training, and the indispensable foundation of every special development of knowledge or aptitude that is to lift a man to his profession or a scholar to his function of investigation."

Here are statements from three men whose lives have been devoted to education on a problem that is always of vital interest. It has been contended from time immemorial that the time of a student is wasted if he is not grabbing every moment during his college career with the direct end in view of acquiring technical skill for some profession, or mental equipment for some special business.

of efficiency.

"The freshmen realize this weakness of loose training that retards the development of the Iowa athlete, and which is encouraged to a great extent by the student body. They not only deplore it but they are taking decided steps in the direction of changing this popular attitude. First, they are voluntarily depriving themselves of luxuries and enjoyments which conflict with their physical training. Second, they ask the co-operation of every organization and individual in the university to support and encourage this attitude, and if necessary to demand strict training of every member of Iowa's athletic teams, and especially of the captains.

"The following is the pledge which many freshmen track and baseball candidates are signing:
"We, the undersigned freshmen track candidates, do hereby pledge ourselves to maintain the highest standard of physical training from now until the end of the track season. That is, we will abstain from the use of intoxicants, tobacco and injurious drinks and sweets. These so-called sacrifices are the expression of our loyalty to 'Old Iowa.'"

Don't miss Mrs. Conant's recital at the Temple Thursday evening.

Happenings of the Past

Seven Years Ago.

John S. Moore declared at convocation that the Christian organization was the largest and strongest fraternity in the world.

Six Years Ago.

Daily Nebraskan conducted a campaign to discover whether or not university students worked too hard. It came to the conclusion that the Nebraska students work harder than those of eastern institutions.

Five Years Ago.

Baseball dates were given out for the season, including games with Iowa, Minnesota, Chicago, South Dakota and Grinnell.

Mr. Bixby of the State Journal spoke at convocation and took a large part of his time offering apologies for never being able to appear at his best.

Four Years Ago.

Nebraska-Minnesota girls' basketball game was called off because Nebraska was refused the privilege of selecting an official for the game.

Dramatic club gave two plays, "Miss Civilization" and "Mr. Bob," before a large audience.

One Year Ago.

William Jennings Bryan was the principal speaker at the Annual Peace convocation. The central thought of the talk was the fact that peace is not a vain ideal.
