STATE FARM BOYS GIVEN GENERAL WARNING TALK

DON'T RUSH THE GIRLS SO HARD

Coming Agriculturists and Amateur Cooks Called on the Carpet for Laying Home Plans During Their School Days.

Something new under the sun—always.

This time it happened at the state farm. Poor, staid, conventional farm. It has lived in peace for long periods only to be thus rudely awakened. It has dreamed cosily along, content with itself, caring little for the turmoil of the outside world, not even allowing its slumbers to be disturbed by the circulation of the Daily Nebraskan within its borders.

But it is no more. The sensation has struck the farm, and it is a yellow one. Verily the farm is scandalized. It couldn't help but be. Who would have thought that there was so much wickedness and impropriety lurking under the very nose of the dignified personage? The awakening is rude. It took a woman to discover the scent of wrong-doing, but let that be. It matters not who did it. The deed is done. The story is laid bare. And the farm is scandalized.

Too Much Fussing.

The story is a disjointed one. Indeed, it could not be else, for the farm is not noted for its freedom in giving out news of its own private affairs, and especially of its own personally private sensations. Not even though the sensations be yellow ones. But such as it is, here it is:

It happens that there is an Authority at the farm entrusted with the welfare of the students, and of the girls in particular. With the rest of the farm, the Authority has slept a dreamless sleep, but the awakening came. Just how it happened no one knows. The results are the only evident things.

Whatever the workings of the process might be, it remains as a fact, vouched for by farm students, that new proclamation is apt to seriously discommode them.

And the end is not yet.

AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

The Majestic.

Musical numbers predominate the bill at the Majestic this week, with George Van's minstrels as the headliner. The minstrel troupe of nine members is a novelty for the local vaudeville stage and has been making a decided hit all week. The jokes are new, and the music fine.

The Primrose quartet shares with the minstrels in biddings for the place of the best entertainers and is encored several times at each performance. Roswell J. Wright, who appears with the quartet, has one of the best voices heard this season.

It is seldom that a "burglar" act is very good, but "Wise Mike," presented by Thomas Ince & company, is a capital farce with twenty minutes of clean, rich humor.

Captain Treat's performing seals and sea lions are the best trained animals of their kind on the stage. Their act is unique, and is numbered among the best on the Orpheum circuit.

Other numbers on the bill this week are Finn and Ford, premier dancers; Leonard and Fulton, in "Mulligan's Masquerade"; Billy Noble and Jeanne Brooks, in songs and smart sayings.

The Lyric.

Enid May Jackson is playing the title role in "Alice of Old Vincennes" at the Lyric this week. The play is well staged with attractive scenery and the quaint old scenes and customs are well brought out in every detail by the Fultons. Horace V. Noble is acting opposite Miss Jackson in the part of the lover. The play is one of the best that has been seen at this playhouse this season.

ENGLISH CLUB OPEN MEETING

Organization May Shortly Give Entertainment for Public.

At a meeting of the English club Saturday evening the matter of an open meeting in the near future was discussed and referred to a committee. If carried out as planned the entertainment will be a literary program of original work by members of the club. It will be given some time several of their numbers were but recently called on the carpet before the Authority. Some were boys, some girls. They assembled with fear and trembling. They came away in wonder and with worry marking its lines on their faces.

Don't Do It Anymore.

For the Authority had seen things. It had seen the same boy going with the same girl to events on the university calendar. It had seen the same boy and the same girl sitting in the parlor on successive Sunday nights. It had seen not only one same boy and same girl, but several of him and several of her. It had thought about the matter and it had decided that such must not be longer. Accordingly the ruling, which created wonderment and worry at the farm:

"It is not right that the school of agriculture and the department of home economics should be made a college of home-finding. An interval of five weeks is by no means too short a time to elapse between the time that a boy in school takes the same girl to two events or calls upon her. There is too much fussing at the farm now. After this, let the five-week rule be enforced."

Faculty in It.

Such is the mandate which looks not where it hits. It is said that a university instructor and the son of a prominent university official were two of those called to account for too concentrated fussing. Others who were asked to note the rule are prominent in farm society circles, and the in May and is expected to be the first of an annual series.

At the meeting Saturday evening a program was rendered consisting of several verses by Miss Celia Harris, a philosophical fairy story by Professor Alexander, and a story by Miss Olive Pound. Several musical numbers completed the program.

WILL GIVE GRADUATION RECITAL

Miss Genevieve Fodrea at the Temple This Evening.

Miss Genevieve Fodrea of the University School of Music, class of Carl Steckelberg, will give a recital for graduation, Wednesday evening, Mar. 10, at the University Temple Theater at 8 o'clock. The recital is open to the public. The program to be given by Miss Fodrea is as follows:
Paganini-Wilhelmj Concerto
Bach Chaconne
(For violin alone.)
Beethoven Romance, Op. 50
Chopin-Sarasate Nocturne
Sarasate Spanish Dance (Habenera)

Professor Phillips, of the Forestry Department, has received a copy of the Woodland, Cal., Daily Democrat for February 26, which contains an account of an interesting address by Mr. T. R. Cooper, of the United States Forestry Service on the subject of "Tree Culture." The address was a part of the Arbor Day exercises, which were held at Woodland, February 25th. Mr. Cooper took his master's degree at this university last year.
