THURSDAY, MARCH 11, 1909.

The state farm is indeed a most unusual institution. It is quite beyond comprehension that such a strange state of affairs could have existed there. It might be wise for the Authority to make a ruling that all young men must make their dates with young ladies through the office, and thus an exchange could be established that would equalize conditions and keep any unfortunates from being neglected.

The university Y. M. C. A. has requested that the Daily Nebraskan be turned over for one day to a staff to be appointed by that organization and that this one issue be devoted to the interests of that society. The Y. M. C. A. is one of the most important factors in university life and its influence is felt in all college activities. It is therefore considered highly proper that the request of the Y. M. C. A. should be granted, and in accordance with the wish of that organization the issue of April 1st will be in the hands of a special staff.

CONVOCAATION--Thursday, March 11

Mrs. Silesce Dales-Knapp
Violin Recital

Memorial Hall Eleven A. M.

Improvements are required at the state farm.

The present legislature was elected on the economy platform, on the pledge that they would keep the expenses of the state at as low a point as possible. It was therefore only natural that they should feel the pinch of poverty and cut all appropriations down as much as they could. Even those who feel most disappointed over the smallness of the final appropriation must admit that, when everything is considered, the legislature has been fair to all concerned.

The university is not an alien institution existing within the state; it is the most important property of the state, the chief charge of the legislature. The university must flourish together with the other institutions of the state or it can never flourish at all. The idea must be uprooted once and for all that the university is a foreign something which comes every two years to drain the treasury of the state and to burden the people.

The university is the flower of the educational system of the state. Its welfare is one and the same with the welfare of the people of the state. As the people of the state grow in wealth and numbers, so gradually must the university grow in power and position. The step from poverty to wealth is not one to be taken in a day, but a gradual development coincident with the development of the state.

10,000 STUDENTS.

They most certainly have set for themselves a high standard at the University of Illinois. The student dally grandly proclaims that fifty years from today the University of Illinois will have 10,000 students and 1,000 professors and instructors. Here are the words of the editor of the Daily Illini:

"Fifty years from today the University of Illinois will have 10,000

Happenings of the Past

Seven Years Ago.

Seniors planned to hold a class dinner. This was the first time that anything of this kind was attempted at the University of Nebraska.

Six Years Ago.

The university was aroused over an epidemic of stealing and the matter even went so far that the smallest articles were not safe when not under lock and key.

Five Years Ago.

A hand-to-hand combat occurred between the junior and senior classes. The cause of the trouble was a challenge painted on a board and nailed by the senior class to the top of a telegraph pole on the campus.

Four Years Ago.

Junior annual was dedicated to Dean Richards of the engineering school. The selection was made at a secret meeting of the Sombrero board.

One Year Ago.

Arthur Jorgenson accepted a position as secretary of the Wisconsin university Y. M. C. A.

RECEIVES FAIR TREATMENT.

The consideration of university affairs by the state legislature has now proceeded far enough so that it is possible to tell with accuracy what financial support will be given the university during the next two years. It seems fairly certain that the university will get $100,000 for improvements above the regular mill levy.

When one considers all the conditions that have entered into the decision of this question, one who looks at the matter from an unprejudiced viewpoint cannot help feeling that the university has, to say the least, been treated fairly by the legislature. To be sure, much more was asked for, and much more is needed to give Nebraska a really first class equipment, but the university can now go forward with the steady development that has characterized its past history without being crippled by the lack of funds during the next two years.

It will be possible with the money that is provided to acquire a new athletic field besides enough ground to hold whatever new buildings will be required for several years. It will be possible to erect a new wing either to the museum or the chemistry building. It will also be possible to make what students. One thousand professors and instructors will be needed to minister to the educational needs of the youth of the state who will gather at the state university. All these things, providing, of course, that the present progress continues, and there is no reason to believe that it will not.

"President James and the heads of departments of the university have realized the great future in store for the institution. They have also foreseen the needs of a great academic body which will rank in number and in the standard of its scholarship with that of any similar organization in the United States."

MID-SEMESTER EXAMINATIONS

To Be Held March 22-27 With Vacation Two Weeks Later.

Mid-term examinations will be held in all departments of the university March 22-27 inclusive. The tests are expected to cover all the work of the semester in the respective classes. They will be held at the regular class recitation hours in the rooms occupied for the daily work of the different divisions.

Easter recess will this year begin at 6 p. m. April 7 and close at 8 a. m. April 14. This gives a six day vacation from Wednesday to Wednesday and including Easter Sunday.
