Earl O. Eager has placed Nebraska athletics upon a paying basis and has successfully managed Nebraska athletics at a time when, without a field it has been a problem of the utmost difficulty. His retention is no more than a recognition of efficient service and work well done.

The peculiar letter which was received by Dr. Lees a few days ago from Kansas is the last echo of the football agitation which swept over the country a few years ago. It is now generally recognized that football is a national game that has come to this country to stay. It takes its toll in a few deaths every year, but deaths occur through accidents of all kinds, not only in every sport but in every line of activity as well. No game can ever take the place of football in the hearts of the college men and women of the country.

A CLOSER RELATIONSHIP.

Nebraska may well follow in the footsteps of Iowa in the closer relationship which is being developed in that school between the undergraduate body and the alumni students. Greater things can only be accomplished when the interest which students have for the university does not grow less but increases and grows more dear as the years go by. The movement at Iowa is described as follows in the Daily Iowan:

"Iowa interests are broadening. They are spreading beyond the student body and faculty. The legislature no longer plays the only part in increasing the material growth of our university. An evidence of this is seen in the growing interest of alumni. They are beginning to catch the spirit of the greater university. The enthusiasm of the present student body has proved to be useful. It has awakened in the alumni the dormant love for alma mater. Not only are the older boys aroused but they are doing things. The boys of yesterday have united with the boys of today for future Iowa.

"This material aid of the alumni marks a new era in the life of the university. It will serve to draw the student closer to his school. It seems as a splendid precedent for even things."

THE IDEAL NEWSPAPER.

Nowhere have the possibilities of the ideal newspaper been more forcibly or more accurately stated than in a recent editorial in the Philadelphia North American. The college newspaper as well as the city daily has a much wider field than merely to record the news events as they occur. It must as well lead and mould public opinion. The editorial is as follows:

"The newspaper that would best serve the public must go far beyond

braska for the track men is a step in the right direction. If adopted it would mean that track athletics would be given the recognition that they deserve as one of the most important branches of Nebraska athletics.

Leaving out of consideration the question as to whether or not a training table is in itself justifiable, there can be no question but that if it is justifiable in the case of the football team it is justifiable in the case of the track team. If a training table develops the spirit of the football team, and improves its physical condition, it will do the same for the track team.

Nebraska has never given to other branches of athletics than football the consideration that they deserve. Of course it is not possible to develop at Nebraska, because of physical conditions, many of the sports that are so popular at other schools, but there is no reason why Nebraska should not develop to the fullest extent those branches of athletics which are represented here.

Nebraska has always had good track teams and may well take pride in the work that they have done. Anything that will tend to raise this side of Nebraska athletics to a higher standard deserves the support of the athletic board.

recording news. All newspapers disseminate information and keep their readers in touch with the development of public questions. The ideal paper must do more. It must create public sentiment, organize movements, raise funds, formulate legislation, work for appropriations and conduct a practical campaign for each good cause. It must be willing to stand alone when once convinced that its course is right. It must have convictions on all public questions, and maintain them in the face of misrepresentation. It must prize character and consistency above popularity.

"To be informative, corrective and, most of all, constructive—this is the sum of the work."

College Fraternities.

There are at present thirty-three men's national college fraternities in America, with a total membership of 215,000. A total of 1,050 active and 350 inactive chapters with 800 chapter houses is found. The sororities are seventeen in number with a membership of 30,000. There are 285 active and 55 inactive chapter houses. The professional fraternities number about 50, and are found in both professional and technical schools.

TRACK MEN, NOTICE!

All candidates for the track team are requested to hand their names to Dr. Clapp or McDonald immediately. Those to be excused from drill will be notified after this list is complete.

YESTERDAY WAS SHAMROCK DAY

Wearers of the Green" in Evidence Around the Campus.

Yesterday was March 17 and loyal Irishers all over the world celebrated the anniversary of the birth of St. Patrick. Green bits of ribbon, imitation shamrock and other emblems were noticeable decorations on at least a couple of million sons or friends of the Emerald Isle.

In Lincoln and on the university campus the bits of greenery were much in evidence. One could not cross the campus without meeting with a number of students wearing the green and thus testifying their loyalty to "ould Ireland, bless her heart."
