The failure of all attempts to arrange a football game between Ames and Nebraska for next fall is a matter of sincere regret to all those who are interested in the success of the game. Ames has come to be one of Nebraska's strongest rivals and the game between the two schools each fall has been a battle royal. It has seemed to be a question, however, of either leaving Ames off the schedule or running the chance of being defeated by Kansas, and between these two alternatives no one can long hesitate. First and above all things, it is important that Kansas be beaten must be aware of the fact that the greatest injuries which the university has suffered in the past have not come through attacks from without but through attacks from within. The university is too large and too strong to be hurt by attacks from the outside, but it cannot but wince under blows from the inside.

It is reported that a prominent officer of the university in the course of a series of lectures throughout the state recently made the statement repeatedly that three saloons in the city of Lincoln were supported by the students of the University of Nebraska. The harm that such a statement as this can do to the university when circulated by an authority, throughout the state can hardly be estimated. It will take years for the effect of such a statement upon the attitude of the people of the state towards the university to wear off.

Such a statement as this is far from the truth. The percentage of students in the university who frequent saloons is remarkably small and instead of being a place where it is a mark of distinction to be known as a "booze fighter" the university is a place where such a name as this is sufficient to brand a man as worthy only of contempt. Aside, however, from the effect of such a statement as the above on the university itself it is essentially unfair to the students who come from the small towns where the report has been circulated.

It is surprising the interest that people in a small town take in the university and its affairs. When such a report is circulated it immediately reflects upon the students who are attending the university from that community. It becomes a personal matter and one that works a great deal of injustice.

The university should not be put in the position of having constantly to overcome the evil effects of such re-even if it is necessary to leave Ames off the schedule as a result.

There is one way in which the usefulness of the library to the university public could be vastly increased if a change in part of the system now in operation could be made. At the present time, current numbers of magazines are soon either lost or placed in the vault where they are kept until sent to the bindery. It is almost impossible to get a number of a magazine that is at least a year old, and the student who has need of a more recent copy is forced to either get one at a news stand, or, if this is not possible, send an order to the publishers. If some plan could be arranged whereby duplicate copies could be placed under lock and key and checked out by the librarian and if these copies could be sent to the bindery during the summer vacation the difficulty would be solved. Anyone who has occasion to use the library has often experienced the difficulty above referred to, and anything that would obviate this would make the library much more valuable to the students.

HURT FROM WITHIN.

Anyone who has been at all observant of conditions in the university ports as the above. The case is especially unpardonable when the person spreading the report is a university officer who is supposed to be thoroughly familiar with conditions. If all those who are connected with the university would unite to do everything in their power to promote instead of hinder the progress of the university, the university would not be placed in such a position that it would need to fear attacks from without.

THE WAY TO DO IT.

College spirit can become something deeper and better than a moment's joy over the defeat of a rival—it may become a real living force in the life of the school. This is what it has become at Brown, as is shown in the following paragraph clipped from the Brown Herald:

"Brown is known throughout the college world as the institution which has produced Brown Spirit, the deepest and most loyal, the sincerest and best type, of college spirit. We are thought of by thousands as being truer to, and more eager to honor, the name of Brown, than the sons of most other institutions. We are known as having produced the spirit that once raised two thousand dollars for our Athletic Association in a half hour; that made one remembered football team, over-whelmingly defeated by its greatest rival, rush their opponents off their feet at the close of the game—just so that Brown might not leave the field without scoring; that caused men to cry like children when a victory over Harvard was snatched away in the last minute of play two years ago. For all this tradition we have been famous, and in the eyes of many that is what we stand for today."
