The members of the Students' Debating Club will hold their regular weekly meeting Saturday evening May 1. The following questions will be debated: "Resolved, That the closed shops are detrimental to American labor." The affirmative will be upheld by Bryan and Foster, and the negative by Curtis and Morgan.

The freshman law class held a meeting Tuesday morning to discuss the plan of having some form of entertainment to be given by the freshman laws. Committees were appointed to look up some forms of entertainment and will report at a meeting of the class on Thursday morning, when definite arrangements will be made.

Professor Eames of the sociology department was in Omaha a few days last week in the interests of the Settlement Association. Saturday she was a guest of the association at luncheon, and gave a short talk regarding social work. On May 20 Professor Eames is to give a lecture in Omaha on "New York Tenement House Reforms." The sociology department of the university of Nebraska is rapidly coming in close touch with the social conditions of Omaha and hopes in the future to do much valuable work at that place.

Charles T. Knapp lectured to the College of Law students in N 309, Monday evening, on the subject of "The Relation of Law to the Real Estate Business." Mr. Knapp is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is now engaged in a successful real estate business in this city. He gave some very interesting points which he had learned in the course of his business during the past six years. He warned the future lawyers against the negligence of certain things in the transfer of property and the examination of deeds and titles. A large number of the students of the Law College attended.

UNIVERSITY IS COMPLIMENTED

Prof. Flexner Likes System of College of Medicine.

At a luncheon tendered Professor Flexner, who has been inspecting the university college of medicine on behalf of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, by Dean H. B. Ward, the visiting professor highly commended the work of the Nebraska school.

He spoke voluntarily to Chancellor Avery and others present in commendation of the strong foundations which had been laid here for a medical college, commenting upon the balance of the course, the thoroughness of the work, the earnestness of the students, and the evidently good results achieved. He expressed the hope that the college might receive better quarters and that the heads of departments might be given more assistants to relieve them of the unduly heavy burden involved in preparing material for class use. He congratulated the college upon the vote of the legislature which assures a suitable campus in Omaha and urged that the clinical work should be further developed along the line of the German schools, which by virtue of several centuries of experience have perfected medical education to a degree unknown elsewhere.

Mr. Flexner warmly praised the individual teaching in laboratory and clinic, and certain other details in the methods employed which he said could not be found elsewhere west of the Alleghany mountains. He urged that the college continue to place its emphasis upon the quality of work and await confidently the general recognition which it would be sure to win, if the present policy was maintained. In the opinion of Mr. Flexner the medical schools of the country will ultimately be reduced to one tenth of their present number. He was confident that Nebraska had all in all the best school in the west. Mr. Flexner left last night for Denver on the Pacific coast and before his return to New York will have visited several medical schools in the United States

AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

The Majestic.
Musical numbers predominate a strong bill at the Majestic this week. In the headliner, "The Twin Flats," a catchy little song is introduced and makes a hit at each performance. This playlet, featuring Charles B. Ward, an eccentric comedian, is extremely amusing. Alice Ward, as Mabel White, has a winsome way about her that makes her acting above the par of most vaudeville comedy skits.

Elizabeth M. Murray, singing Irish and negro character songs, scored several times at the opening performance this week and was only allowed to retire after she had answered at least four encores. She is a singer worth hearing.

"The Volunteer Pianist" is a novel sketch combining music and comedy. It is presented by Foster and Foster, the long and the short of the family. The short rather has it on the long and makes a decided ten-strike with the gallery.

Kikuda, Japanese juggler, is skillful in doing tricks with small things. He is so good that at his initial appearance he was given much applause.

Other good numbers on the bill are: Ames and Corbett, drum dancers; Nonette, violinist and soloist; and Ralph Johnstone, cyclist. Johnstone's leaping stunts are something "different" and are dangerous for the cyclist.

GAVE GRADUATION RECITAL

Miss McFarlane Entertained Audience at Temple.

At the Temple theatre last evening Miss Ethel McFarlane of the School of Music gave her graduation recital before an audience of friends and music-lovers. The program showed a variety of ability and the numbers were brilliantly executed.

EIGHT WILL CONTEST

LAW ORATORICAL CONTEST TO BE MAY 13TH.

COMPLETED SPEECHES NOW IN

FIRST JUDGED ACCORDING TO THOUGHT AND ENGLISH.

Two Prizes, One of Thirty-five Dollars and One of Fifteen Dollars Offered to the Winning Contestants.

It was announced last evening by Dean Costigan of the law school that the contest for the law oratorical prize will be held on the evening of May 13, in the music room of the Temple. This announcement was made immediately after the arrangements had been completed for securing the hall for that evening. The attempt was made to secure the convocation hour for the contest, but it was found to be impossible.

Eight Contestants.

Eight contestants will participate. The names of these have not been announced officially, but several have declared their intention of participating. They are R. W. Bates, H. E. Dixon, Calvin Emory, Louis Gregory, D. C. Long, H. C. Robertson and A. E. Warren. The judges for the contest have not yet been chosen.

All of the candidates have handed in their completed orations, which will now be submitted to the judges. They will be corrected and graded according to their excellence in rhetoric after which they will be returned to the men. The eight participants will then deliver the orations on May 13, when their excellence in oratory will be graded. The first and second places will be awarded to the contestants having the highest and next highest rating as shown by the addition of the two grades.

Two Prizes.

A first prize of $35.00 and a second prize of $15.00 are offered to the winners of first and second places in the contest. There will be six judges three of whom will grade the written orations as to thought, English composition arrangement, and three of whom will judge the contest itself as to effectiveness in thought, arrangement and delivery.

The subjects of the orations handed in are not made public but there is every probability that they will cover a wide field. The participants are not confined to any set subject, but may write upon any topic which is approved by the faculty of the College of Law or by a committee having charge of this matter. This oratorical contest, while held by the College of Law, is open to all regular students of the College of Medicine, and to juniors in the College of Literature, Science and the Arts, and the Industrial College.

COURSE CONTINUES TO PLEASE

Practitioners' Review Work is Again Successful.

With nearly a score of physicians taking the regular work for the second day the Practitioners' review course being conducted this week by the medical college is a pronounced success. The visiting physicians are well pleased with the work being shown them and the college faculty are gratified at the results of the course this year offered for the second time in the history of the college of medicine.

Yesterday there were three classes for the practitioners. In the morning Dr. Charles W. M. Poynter conducted a class of instruction and demonstration in the anatomical laboratory. In the afternoon there were two divisions in operation. One was conducted by Dr. Wolcott in the anatomical laboratory and the other by Dr. Willard in the histological department.

Today will be spent by the physicians at the Everett sanitarium under the leadership of Dr. Everett in the morning and in the afternoon Dr. Orr will conduct a class at the orthopedic hospital.
