MAY LOSE A TEACHER

STRONG MEMBER OF FACULTY
MAY LEAVE UNIVERSITY.

TENDER LIKELY TO BE MADE

ANOTHER WESTERN SCHOOL IS CONSIDERING NEBRASKAN

Can Offer Financial Advantages Superior to Those of Nebraska
And May Attract Prominent Nebraska Man.

From authentic sources the Daily Nebraskan has information indicating that one of the most prominent and able members of the university faculty is now being considered by one of the strong western universities for a place on her teaching force. No tender of the place has yet been made, but the probability is that an offer will be extended to the Nebraska professor within the next few weeks. In case the offer is made, the university stands in danger of losing one of her strongest teachers.

The university which is considering the Nebraska man, is one of the strongest and richest in the west. It bears the reputation of generally getting what it goes after in the way of teachers. It can offer financial advantages far superior to any that Nebraska's state school can extend, and its standing in other ways is fully on a par with that of this university. The university in question has looked about the country for a man suited to the place which it has open and it has looked with much favor upon the Nebraska professor. The matter will come to a head within a few weeks and it is quite probable that the tender will be made during the coming month. Whether or not the University of Nebraska is to lose one of the big men of its faculty will then depend upon the inclination and ambition of that teacher.

A Straw in the Wind.

This action on the part of one of Nebraska's rival schools is a straw showing which way the wind is blowing. Nebraska has strong and able men on her faculty. They are men who would labor much for the institution of which they are a part, but they cannot be expected to cast away without serious consideration offers from other schools which mean no loss in any way and which mean much financial gain.

Men connected with the university have been pointing out that Nebraska was sure to lose some of her best men in the near future unless greater inducements could be offered them. This was brought out in connection with the movement for admission to the Carnegie pension list. For the past two years Nebraska has not lost any of her prominent professors, but the reason for it has been good fortune rather than any thing else. In times past she has lost men for the very reason that she is now likely to lose another.

Pound, Clements, Ross.

Roscoe Pound, F. E. Clements, and E. A. Ross are three notable examples of men who might have stayed at Nebraska had the university been able to offer financial inducements equal to those which other equally good institutions could make. Dr. Pound was dean of the law college and was recognized as one of the brightest men in the state when in 1907 he was offered the deanship of Northwestern law school at a considerable advance in salary. Dr. Pound would have liked to remain at Nebraska, but he felt that he could not make the sacrifice.

Within the past week announcement has been made of his selection to the faculty of the Chicago University law school. The Chicago men seem to feel much gratified at adding Dr. Pound to their force, and they recognize that he is a big man in his field.

Dr. Clements is now recognized as one of the leading botanists of the country. He is an authority on ecology. He was a Nebraska man from the start and left this university only because he felt that he would be throwing away his opportunities to remain at an institution so handicapped as was Nebraska.

Dr. Ross, while at Nebraska, was probably the most quoted man on the faculty. He was known all over the country and his work was recognized as among the highest of his field. He left Nebraska to go to Wisconsin, where he has since made good in excellent style.

Now the question—is another to be added to the list?

PROFESSORS DELIVER LECTURES.

Several Address Audiences Out in the State.

Last night and today are the occasions of several addresses at towns in the state by university professors. At Walthill last night Professor Grumann of the department of German languages addressed a local audience. Today he will address the Thurston county teachers at the same place.

Dean Fordyce of the teachers' college will speak to the Seward county teachers this afternoon. The Clay county teachers' association will listen to Dr. George Condra, also this afternoon.

Ivy Day Assessments.

All Ivy Day assessments must be paid by Monday at 5:00 o'clock. At this time all members of the class finance committees are requested to leave collected assessments at the Cornhusker office. This is necessary in order that all who have paid assessments may be provided for.

HOWARD AT TEMPLE

RELATION OF SOCIAL PROBLEMS
TO PUBLIC HEALTH.

LAW FOR SOCIAL BETTERMENT

Sociologist Tells of Advances Science and Law are Making in the Stamping Out and Preventing of Disease.

The last of the series of medical convocations was held Friday evening at the Temple. Dr. Howard of the university made an address on "The Relation of Law to Medicine."

In part Dr. Howard spoke as follows:

"It is an old saying that law would not make a man better, but we know that men can be made better by law. Law will make men observe more closely his duties to himself and to his fellow citizens. Mankind is progressing very rapidly. Let us look at the wonders of science and see the marvelous things that now exist. It may be that in a very few thousand years, we may be able to open men's heads and determine their talents. The development of medical science is equally wonderful and more and more it is beginning to grasp with the problems at hand.

"The relation of law to medicine and hygiene is very close. As a remedy for many unfavorable conditions it will prove most effective and even now as in the case of quarantine, its value is apparent. Many good laws have been suggested by medical scientists, in fact they are always seeking for the benefit of humanity. One of the most appalling conditions we have to face is the high death rate and we may well ask, 'What are we going to do about it?' The death rate during the French revolution by starvation alone was greater than the number of those killed during the Napoleonic wars. In 1893 a law was introduced in congress requiring a safety car coupler, but by some means it was put off until 1900 and during these years 22,000 people were killed on the railroads; a greater number than was killed in the Boer war. Many of these might have been saved by the use of the safety device.

In the Tenements.

The death rate in the tenement sections of New York City is forty-two per thousand, and in the better section of the country it is only twelve per thousand. These are conditions which must be remedied. New York transformed its Mulberry Bend into a great playground for children. The death rate also bears relation to the number of rooms used by the family. The death rate of families using four rooms is five and a half per thousand, while it increases to one hundred and fifty-eight per thousand for those living in one room. The height of boys living in the smaller number of rooms proved to be less than those in a larger number.

"In New York there are sixty-one tenement inspectors for three million people while in Glasgow with one-third of the population there are one hundred and fifty-nine inspectors. If we do our duty according to the light we have, we can accomplish what we will.

"One of the greatest causes of infant mortality is poverty and hunger. Many diseases harm only the poorer classes because they are ill-fed. For this reason the measles is an almost harmless disease among the well-to-do. Very often we are responsible for the conditions and it is these we must seek to improve. Race suicide is

Baseball Team Leaves.

The Nebraska baseball team started on its annual eastern trip yesterday, going to Ames, Iowa, where the state college nine will be met this afternoon. "Hap" Ward was taken along to pitch this game, but will be allowed to return to Lincoln Saturday in order to resume his studies. He will go to Minnesota the last of next week to twirl one of the games against the Gophers. The Nebraska party making the trip is composed of Manager Eager, Captain Beltzer, Ward, Mathers, Clark, Greenslit, Metcalf, Dudgeon, Cooke and Sturtesnegger. Prouty and Olmstead will join the team at Des Moines, Monday.

PROVIDE FOR ENTERTAINMENT.

"N" Men Will Help Welcome High School Students.

At a recent meeting of the "N" men's association steps were taken for arranging an entertainment for the high school students who will be visiting in Lincoln May 14-15. The association intends to help in presenting the good points of the university before the youth of the state who will be attracted by the Fete Day event. Louis Harte was appointed chairman of a committee which will consider the matter and report to the association. The association will meet again at 11 a. m., Tuesday.

H. L. Burden, 1911, is visiting at Hebron, Neb., the latter part of this week.
