HAS RAPID GROWTH
GRADUATE SCHOOL HAS DEVELOPED IN EVERY WAY.

MANY LINES ARE REPRESENTED
Students Taking Graduate Work Are Found in All Departments of the University—Roll of the Departments.

With the holding of the banquet of the graduate club of the University of Nebraska last evening in the Temple, the work and position of the graduate college were emphasized and its growing importance made strikingly apparent. Through the action of the last legislature what was known as the graduate school of the University of Nebraska, became the present graduate college. As such it has grown so rapidly that at the present time it ranks among the foremost among the universities of this country.

The graduate college is the ranking college of the university and only after taking a full college course will students be admitted for work. The work in the graduate school fits its students for intensive research work along nearly all lines of instruction. This implies the use of the library and all data published on the particular subject; all in all, a detailed study of the problem in hand. After his investigation is finished the student embodies the data in the form of a thesis which when placed in proper form is accepted by the graduate college in lieu of a degree.

Lines of Work.
The principal lines of work now being taken up in the graduate college are those along the line of agricultural education, political and social problems, and special problems in applied sciences. All of the work is done under the direction of professors who have had experience in graduate work and whose published work has received attention throughout this and many other countries.

In years past a number of high class theses have been published by members of the graduate school. At the present time several admiral papers are ready for the press. These are for both second and third degrees. According to a list made out last evening there were 118 students registered for graduate work. The number registered for research work in the various departments are: political science 31; soil, 2; zoology, 6; botany, 17; bacteriology, 2; astronomy, 1; American history, 12; agricultural chemistry, 2; agricultural botany, 1; Greek, 2; geology, 3; French, 3; European history, 5; English literature, and language, 9; education, 16; electrical engineering, 1; chemistry, 2; geography and economic geology, 15; Latin, 2; mathematics, 6; philosophy, 6; physiology, 7, and political economy 7.

WORK OF SOCIETY
FURNISHES MUCH VALUABLE INFORMATION TO STATE.

COURSE IN LEGISLATION
PROVED AN AID TO WORK OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Many High Schools and Normals Use the Reference Department for Securing Material for Use in Debates.

The work of the Historical Society has each year become more effective and, during the last two years has been the means of furnishing countless valuable and sometimes otherwise unattainable information to citizens and students of the state as well as to members of the legislature. Addison E. Sheldon, at the head of the department has been conducting a course in the university on practical legislation. The final examinations in this course were held a week ago and the work for the semester closed up. Thirty-three men took the course during the past year and proved very helpful to the work of the past legislature. They acted as assistants to the legislative reference department during the entire session of that body. Proves Beneficial.

The work of this department of the society is at present proving of inestimable benefit to the officials who are about to undertake the work of ascertaining the physical valuation of the railroads of Nebraska. The material, collected by the department on the physical valuation of railroads has been put into these officials' hands and has been used entirely during the past week. The society is at present engaged in compiling a pamphlet of original figures never before published. They treat of taxation and tree planting in Nebraska, and are destined for general public use and also for the special use of the legislature at its next session. At present the society is sending circulars to all of the county assessors in Nebraska. It is not expected to have the book compiled before the latter part of the summer, as some delay is anticipated in getting in all of the data.

Benefits High Schools.
The work of the department has been of especial benefit to the high schools and normals of the state during the past year. Many have made use of the reference department in securing material for debates. Over twenty-five high schools and both the Kearney and Peru normals have drawn upon the society for such material. This department of the society was organized only two years ago, but is already one of the indispensable parts of the institution.

LIEUTENANT OVERSTREET HERE.
University Man Visits Campus After Long Absence.

Lieutenant Luther M. Overstreet of the United States navy was a campus visitor Thursday. Lieutenant Overstreet was enroute to his home at Arborville, Nebraska, after returning from a trip around the world with the United States battleship fleet. Lieutenant Overstreet was a student in the university in the late eighties. He left the university to enter the navy. He was one of the officers of the Oregon during its trip around the horn and was in the first boat which left that ship when the Spanish ships surrendered.
