A SUCCESSFUL EXPERIMENT.

The Daily Nebraskan has now been published for one year as a five column paper. When the paper was enlarged from a four column sheet to its present size at the beginning of the first semester of this year, those in charge of it had grave doubts as to whether the news of the school would warrant a paper of such large size and whether the amount of advertising which could be secured in Lincoln would make such a paper a financial success. The experiment has now been tried for a whole year and the verdict must be that there is sufficient news in the university to justify such a paper and that with careful management such a paper can be made to pay expenses.

A paper the size of the one now being issued requires the hardest kind of labor and the closest care to make it a success, but it is of far more value to the university as a news sheet than the old sized paper. Not only can it give much fuller accounts of all university events, but it gives a much better impression of the university to those outside Lincoln who know the state institution only by what they read of it. The Daily Nebraskan is now very similar in size and appearance to the best college papers of the middle west and it is to be hoped that it will never be found necessary to reduce the paper to the old size.

A NOTABLE YEAR.

The year which is just closing has been one notable at Nebraska for substantial and yet rapid growth. Along every line of activity the university has made real progress during the last twelve months. Athletic, debating, scholarship, all have been infused with new vigor and have been unusually successful during the past year.

There is one feature of this growth, however, that is worthy of more than passing notice. Instead of being content with developing old movements, the past year has witnessed a remarkable number of innovations at the University of Nebraska. New movements have been started on every side, and if next year can see all of these put upon a firm foundation it will indeed mean a great deal for Nebraska.

The main work of the student body next year must be to perpetuate the things that have been started this year. Freshman-sophomore olympics, interclass debating and the many new societies that have been formed will all need the most solicitous care. If all these things can become permanent features of Nebraska life it will indeed mean the beginning of bigger things for Nebraska.

LOST MAN IS FOUND AGAIN.

Strange Case of P. J. Jewell, Who Wouldn't Give His Address.

P. J. Jewell, the lost man of the university has been found. For fifteen years Dean Charles E. Bessey has sought Mr. Jewell in order that he might thank him for the favors which he has done the university. Mr. Jewell refused to be found. Yesterday he came to light through a letter written from Bellevue, Wash.

Mr. Jewell was a student in the university fifteen years ago. He took a general academic course, but did not graduate. Shortly before graduating he started on a trip to the northwest. He went up through the states north of Nebraska, through Canada, and eventually landed in Alaska. During his trip he kept the university in mind and sent to the botanical department numerous specimens of plants which interested him. He had not specialized in botany, but he knew enough of the science to appreciate peculiar plants.

When his gifts first began to arrive Dr. Bessey wrote to him and thanked him for the favors. The letter was returned with the statement that Jewell was no longer at the town named. Since that time this proceeding has been repeated numerous times. For fifteen years Jewell has been sending specimens to the university and for fifteen years the department has been trying to thank him. Recently one of these letters reached him, and he has finally broken his long silence by writing to Dr. Bessey.

O'GARA HARD AT WORK IN WEST.

University Man Has Done Much Since His Graduation.

P. J. O'Gara, 1902, has recently written university friends giving an account of his work since his graduation seven years ago. Mr. O'Gara was one of the well known students of a number of years ago and he has been following an active life since leaving school.

In the seven years Mr. O'Gara has visited practically every fruit growing section of the United States, his work being in the interest of the department of agriculture. He has been to Europe in the meantime and has had time to pursue activities outside of his professional work. He is now at Medford, Ore.

WILL BE ON OPEN SALE TODAY.

The Senior Invitations Will no Longer Be Held for Orders.

All the senior invitations which are now uncalled for will be sold out today, regardless of previous orders. This announcement was made yesterday evening after the last of a line of would-be purchasers left the door of the Cornhusker office, turned down, with a stack of uncalled-for invitations lying on the table. Over four hundred have been distributed so far and today the sale will be opened to all who wish to buy. This action became necessary because of the number of uncalled for invitations and many seniors who desired to buy but who had not ordered.

COMPANY "Q" DID NOT PARADE.

White Robed Would be Paraders Give It Up as Bad Job.

An attempt was made to hold Company "Q" parade last evening. The old chapel bell commenced to ring vigorously about 8:30 and continued to ring for several minutes. White robed figures began to appear as if from nowhere and soon quite a little gathering was collected about the armory door. But it was to no avail. Several outsiders who came hustling up protested against the parade owing to previous announcements and the would-be paraders reluctantly drew off their snowy robes and disbanded. So ended the first attempt.

ADOPT RUSHING RULE

NEW REGULATIONS BY INTER-SORORITY COUNCIL.

SIMILAR TO THOSE IN FORCE

Semester Rushing Rule Will Probably Be Adopted in the Near Future —Rules for Next Year to be Very Strict.

At a meeting of the inter-sorosity council yesterday afternoon the rushing rules for next year were adopted. The rules are in general very similar to those that have been in force for several years in the past. The main change was to make the rules more definite and to make regulations governing registration week more strict.

The general feeling at the meeting of the inter-sorosity council was that the rules have been the most successful during the past year of any that have ever been in force. The only object of the change was to make the rules clearer.

New Provisions.

The main changes come in the third article of the rules which provides for rushing during registration week. The new article is as follows:

During matriculation week, rushing and pledging, with the following restrictions shall be allowed:

1. No sorosity girl shall meet a matriculante on arrival.
2. No sorosity girl shall accompany a matriculante on the campus during registration week, sisters excepted.
3. Each sorosity may entertain in a simple way from Wednesday noon, September 22 to Saturday, 6:00 p. m., September 25.
4. All entertaining shall be in private homes. The refreshments shall consist of not more than three articles of food.
5. No rushee shall stay all night at any sorosity girl's house during registration week.

Consider Semester Rule.

The council considered seriously the adoption of a semester rushing rule but nothing definite was done regarding the matter. It was, however, the generally expressed opinion that it would be possible to adopt such a rule in the near future and it is very likely that next year steps will be taken looking towards the adoption of such a rule.

The chief objection to such a rule from the viewpoint of the sorosities comes from the fact that it is felt necessary to get new girls each fall to fill the different chapter houses. It is thought, however, that by planning ahead it will be possible to put the new plan into operation without serious hardship.

Good Clothes

COST MORE than CHEAP ones and, of course, they should. Pounding down the price means cutting down the quality—cheapening wherever possible without being detected.

Kensington Clothes

are not made and sold on that basis. Everything is put into them that can be put in to make them better—then sold at a fair price. This appears to meet the approval of men generally, for we never sold so many Kensington Suits as we are selling this season.
