Students' Reception.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Christian church will give a reception to the students of the various universities, schools and business colleges of Lincoln tonight. There will be a musical and literary program, after which games will be indulged in and refreshments served. The Endeavor room of the church will be specially arranged and decorated for this occasion and every effort will be made to make the newcomers welcome. This is an annual event at this church—last year this reception was held in the auditorium gardens, but this time it will be held in the new church building at Fourteenth and M streets.

Michigan Alumni Will Attend Minnesota-Nebraska Game En Masse—

Kansas Working Hard at Lawrence.

Lawrence, Kan., Sept. 27.—(Special.)—"I will not be satisfied with the season unless my team wins the Thanksgiving game from Nebraska," said Coach Bender of the Haskell Indian team, yesterday. Bender is an ex-Cornhusker himself, and many a contest has he won for his alma mater with his great work in the back field; but for that he means to give Nebraska no mercy this year. "I believe that Haskell will defeat Nebraska," went on the Haskell mentor. "I am going to have a fast, tricky team, and I expect to spring a few surprises on my opponents."

Coach Bender is a thorough football man and he has some experienced players at Haskell. His center this season will be an old Carlisle man, and much is expected of him. Other old Haskell players are out for the team, and the outlook is bright for a winning team at the institution for the red men.

Reserve Seats.

Omaha, Sept. 27.—(Special.)—Fifty seats have been reserved for Michigan alumni at the Minnesota-Nebraska game to be played at Vinton Park next month. The fact that Michigan and Minnesota meet on the gridiron this year after a number of years without a game has aroused considerable interest among Michigan men in Omaha in the contest between the Gophers and the Cornhuskers. Manager Eager of the Nebraska team has written to Stanley Rosewater, secretary of the Omaha Michigan Alumni association, that he will hold seats at $1.50 each. There are 150 Ann Arbor men in the Omaha or-

Kansas Working.

Lawrence, Kan., Sept. 27.—(Special.)—Last Saturday the football team that is to represent the University of Kansas on the gridiron this fall played its first game. The Kansas State Normal School players were the victims of the contest and the score was fifty-five to nothing in favor of the Jayhawkers. The Kansans were not in the best shape and their team work was sadly off in the first game, but the coaches are confident that the men will soon get to working together.

CHANCELLOR ROASTS SNOBBISH STUDENTS

Saturday morning at 10:30, Chancellor Samuel Avery welcomed the new and old students of the University with an address which opened the present university school year. The address was preceded by two musical selections by Mrs. Silence Dales Knapp, and an invocation by the Rev. Shepard of the First Congregational church. After tracing the rise of the university in the old country and this, Dr. Avery said in substance:

The schools of America are dependent to a large extent upon the loyalty of the student body. This loyalty of the students is what the life of a university depends upon, and it is natural that this factor of the life of the university should be imprinted upon the mind of the freshman. The new student is the supreme test of this school loyalty, for upon him the lifeblood of the institution depends. If this is true in the private institution, in the state schools the loyalty varies to a different degree. Its chief effort must be so conducted as to meet with the approval of the tax-payer.

To Be Judged by Results.

The people of the state in the long run are very much disposed to pass judgment on the university on other grounds than the reputed eminence of its faculty in the world of letters or science, or the practical discoveries that they may make for the good of humanity or for the especial benefit of the people of the state. All of these things are weighed by the average citizen of the state, but they are weighed somewhat lightly. His judgment will be determined by the product of the university and especially by the samples of the university's product that he sees and knows.

"The young men and young women who go from their locality and return after having received a university training are the specimens by which he judges the university's product. If judgment would be reserved till the best specimens of the final product could be examined, the students would need to have no special concern about the attitude of the people towards the university.

Noted y Public.

"But the public will not wait. It will notice every swaggering freshman as he walks the streets of his home town at the Thanksgiving recess quite as carefully as he will notice the freshman whose bearing shows the gentleman and scholar. It will read the papers and it is very likely to note particularly and unfavorably every student escapade. It follows, then, that in a state university the students have, in a peculiar way, the keeping of the good name of the university in their charge. They are judged by a more or less critical community and fewer allowances are made for their shortcomings than are made to students of the school on private foundation by the latter devoted constituents.

"Among things which tend to bring the university into disrepute among the citizens of the state is an ostentatious spending of money. The round of social pleasure is exaggerated and carried to great lengths, a not infrequent thing on the part of certain students, gives the university a bad name. The student who works his way through school has never discredited the university, while those who destroy worthy ideals by excessive dress, extravagance in carriages, flowers and other social pleasures have disgusted parents and fellow townsmen. Out of loyalty to the institution the students should unite to curb all social excesses and to cultivate a desire for intellectual things."
