MINNESOTA SONGS.

Nebraska songs for use at the Minnesota-Nebraska game in Omaha next Saturday are much desired by Manager Eager and Rooting Leaders Elliott and Perry. The songs should be words appropriate to the occasion and set to a popular tune. Manager Eager has set aside two reserved seats for the Minnesota game for the writer of the best song. Songs should be left with Manager Eager or at the Nebraskan office.

Here is a change for you who cannot play football to show your loyalty just the same. If you have an idea don't be afraid to submit it. This is not a request for a new Nebraska ofpected for an opening and minor game.

Today the game to be played is also a minor game. But it is nevertheless an important one from the viewpoint of the future. Even more than in the Dakota game of last week, a satisfactory score means the encouragement of the team to a gratifying degree. And as is always the case, the rooters can have a large part in the victory. Every student cannot play football, but there is not a single man or woman registered in the university who cannot root. It is up to everyone of them to make the best effort possible to get out to today's game. Your team proved its worth in the in the game a week ago, by sticking to the game and not giving up in spite of the disadvantages encountered. This time it will undoubtedly do honor again to the Scarlet and Cream.

Once more—attend the game and ROOT!

FEMINIZATION?

A writer in Harper's Weekly, discussing co-education at close range, as observed in the University of Wisconsin, notes these conditions:

"What are called practical subjects occupy the young men, while the maid-to a position in life where they can support themselves. The "practical" studies show greater financial values than the cultural groups, and for this reason they are selected. In many cases the student does not have a choice between the two sorts of work. He has a given amount of time and a given amount of money to spend upon his education and the desire to enter a profession precludes study along cultural lines.

But it is also doubtless true that there are many men in the university who could easily obtain both time and money for a more extended cultural training. These men avoid the cultural studies because they do not appreciate their value. It is to this class that the university must look for aid if it would not experience a practical feminization of some of its humanitarian departments. These men must be brought to an appreciation of what real culture amounts to. They must be made to see that the humanitarian studies are not wishy-washy things, but potent and active influences in practical life.

At the present time the teachers of the cultural studies are constantly aiming to bring this view before the student body. They are hampered in their desires by characteristic modesty in not wishing to appear as self-advertisers. It is for the university as a these branches. All departments, whether themselves "practical" or "humanitarian," should be willing to submerge their identity in striving for the greater cause of Culture.

ficial song, but simply for words which may be set to popular music as appropriate to the single Omaha game next week.

DO IT NOW!

The action of President Thomas of the sophomore class in arranging for a dance to be held this fall, after his term of office had expired, has caused considerable stir in the second year class. Thomas yesterday changed his mind with reference to postponing the class election to choose his successor until after the dance, and declared that he would hold a meeting next week. This is wholly right, and besides, it is the only thing that he could do to quiet the storm. His position is easily understood. As president of the class he pledged himself to pay the debt contracted during the previous semester. This he was unable to do last semester and he now says that he wishes to liquidate the bills before he leaves office. But, despite this fact, he made a mistake in attempting to act without consulting the class. Classes are jealous of their rights and Thomas did the best thing possible in calling the election at the earlier date.

THE SECOND BATTLE.

This afternoon Nebraska fights its second gridiron battle of the year. Knox is to be met—and beaten—on the Antelope Park grounds. The Illinois men are to be beaten not by a small and indecisive score, but by a figure that will leave no doubt as to the comparative strength of the two teams.

One week ago today the Nebraskan appealed to university students to attend the game then to be played, in large numbers. It was pointed out at that time that there was a great necessity that the team receive the full support of the student body in order that it might play the game with the zest that only knowledge of such aid can give. The students responded well; the crowd was as large as could be exens seem more and more to monopolize the 'humanities.' On the broad steps of the engineering building, for example, one never sees a mingling of the sexes; always a crowd of youths waiting for their classes to begin. Over across the campus on the steps of the law building is another crowd of boys, who now and then yell defiance at the future engineers. On the other hand, literature, poetry, art, and the culture languages, the more humane and refining elements of learning, draw a great preponderance of girls; so that they often outnumber the boys in these classes by three or four to one, and some of these classes tend to become exclusively feminine. Then there are debatable subjects, such as European history, where the numbers are more nearly equal, this coming under the designation of neutral territory."

What this writer pictures at Wisconsin is wholly true at Nebraska. The college of engineering, law and medicine are given over to the boys, with scarcely a single individual exception. This, however, is not strange and it is to be very much doubted whether anyone would have it otherwise. But the other side of the question cannot be disposed of so easily. While girls may not be expected to enter the practical lines of work taught in the colleges above named, there is no reason whatever why the men should not patronize the humanitarian studies, so frequently given over more or less completely to the girls.

In the large departments of English literature, Latin, Greek, French, sociology, natural sciences, and rhetoric, as well as in many of the smaller departments of the university the co-eds outnumber the men in a varying ratio. There is no doubt but that this preponderance of girls in certain classes would be much greater than it is were it not for the fact that some of this work is required of all students for graduation. This alone prevents a feminization of many classes.

whole to espouse the cause of general culture and bring about a change of sentiment among the men towards The reason for this discrepancy is doubtless the haste of the men to get
