ing the need of an organized class rush they are well designed and deserve the support of all freshmen and sophomores. In the past there have frequently been disastrous conflicts between the two classes. It was great fun for the second year men to break up a freshman meeting, but it sometimes took another turn when the sophomores had to dig up funds to pay for damaged pipe organs and broken windows.

The members of last year's lower classes felt the need of an organized competition, and for that reason the Olympics were organized. They successfully filled the need last year and will undoubtedly do so again. Members of the committee in charge should at once begin the work of arranging the contests and getting out the material for the different events. The meet is scheduled for November 6, and there is no time to lose.

A UNIVERSITY MASQUERADE.

The suggestion made by certain seniors that some all-university function be arranged for faculty and students is a good one. The university is greatly in need of some social event at which class lines, social prejudices, and other differences may be dropped in favor of a true Nebras-

the university. Both are men of high personal worth, of excellent business ability, and of strict honesty. Their work on the board of regents in the past demands that they be returned at the coming election.

For the place made vacant by Mr. Abbott's resignation, Harvey Newbranch, editor of the Omaha World-Herald, and Frank L. Haller of Omaha are the leading candidates. Mr. Newbranch is already a member of the board, having been appointed by Governor Shallenberger to fill the Abbott vacancy until the election. Mr. Haller has not seen service as a regent in the past. The desire of many voters for a non-partisan board of regents favors the election of Mr. Newbranch, a democrat, in order that the republican monopoly may be somewhat broken. Supporters of Mr. Haller claim for him that he has greater business ability than his opponent. Both are pronounced to be men eager to serve the best interests of the university and either will undoubtedly well serve the state.

Frank A. Burnham, '09, has been doing entomological work at the State Farm the past summer. He is continuing his studies in the University Medical College, Omaha, Neb.

WHY PAY MORE?

The chicken pot-ple supper to be given by the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night at St. Paul's church should be well attended. The association social events are at least one series of events where all university men may meet in common and enjoy each other's companionship. They should all be well patronized. The pot-ple suppers have been especially popular in the past and there is no reason to suppose that the coming dinner will be at variance with the rule.

There was some surprises in the list of winners in the debating try-outs Wednesday. Several favorites were left behind in the race for places on the squad and at least three first year men were among the sixteen chosen ones. Making the squad in the freshman year is an especial distinction, and those three freshmen are to be congratulated.

University class meetings are certainly having hard luck this week. Between dodging football rallies and special convocations, they can scarcely find any place left for them. All of which emphasizes the need of some set time each week when such meetings might be held. Three or four class meetings can well be held at the same time, for there are plenty of halls of sufficient size to accommodate them. Further, holding all at once might prevent the difficulty experienced recently in preventing men from voting in half a dozen classes.

CLASS OLYMPICS.

With the appointment of committees to arrange for the freshman-sophomore class olympics, this class function is practically assured for 1909. The olympics were started only a year ago, but at that time they proved so decidedly popular that there was little question of their continuance this year.

The Olympics take the place of the old-time unorganized class scrap between the two lower classes. In fillka spirit. At the present time most of the social events of the school year are given by particular classes or organizations. Although in the case of the class hops members from all classes attend, there is still a spirit of class loyalty as distinguished from university loyalty. In the various affairs given by special student societies this spirit of loyalty to the particular organization is more pronounced. There is at present practically no traditional event which brings all students together amid a "Nebraska spirit."

Whether or not the suggested masquerade is the correct form of activity to be adopted in seeking to fill the need is a question to be decided later. The thing to do now is to take definite action looking towards the creation of some social affair which will embody the all-university idea. Either the senior class should at once give the movement the necessary initiative by appointing a committee to confer with other classes and organizations, or some other authority should make the beginning. It would seem, however, that the seniors are best fitted to make the start. If they will lead, others will undoubtedly follow.

ELECTION OF REGENTS.

One week from next Tuesday an election of regents of the university will be held. There are two regular places on the board to be filled at this election and one vacancy, caused by the resignation of Regent Abbott, is to be supplied.

The Nebraskan, as a paper representing the opinions of several hundred students of varying political beliefs, is presumably non-partisan. In endorsing any candidate for office it may be safely assumed that it favors one man over another simply because of the good resulting to the university from his selection.

With this understanding, the Nebraskan favors the re-election of Regents Whitmore and Allen, both of whom have given several years of excellent service to the interests of
