The Daily Kansas in a recent issue gives Nebraska formal notice, in order that the surprise may not be too much for the weak nerves of the Cornhuskers, that the Jayhawkers expect to win. Thanks. The compliment is returned. Nebraska has some few expectations also.

Senior Breakfast

SATURDAY

Cars 11th and O

The announcement that mid-semester will come earlier in the semester than usual caused cold chills in several localities. Some nice calculations were upset and some genuine work will be the probable result.

SENIOR BREAKFAST.

The annual breakfast of the senior class, usually given early in the spring, is to be held this year in the fall. The date set for the occasion is next Saturday, and the committee in charge is working hard to make the affair unusually successful.

The breakfast should have the support—and by that is meant the personal attendance—of every senior. It is one of the few real traditions which the university possesses, and for that reason. If for no other, it should be loyally supported.

But, entirely aside from a question of loyalty, the senior who omits the class breakfast from his favored entertainments makes a mistake. He deprives himself of a good time such as he won't have again during his college career. The breakfast has about it an informal pleasure which no other university affair possesses and its very novelty insures a good time.

a fine collection of athletics to work for the glory of the Scarlet and Cream, a good attendance of university students would be especially appropriate.

ADVERTISE NEBRASKA.

A Nebraska student now at work in a western state writes to one of his former teachers with a complaint as to the status of his alma mater in the west. According to his statement, which may be assumed as correct in view of the known character of the correspondent, the people of the west do not appreciate the good work done at Nebraska. They fail to consider this institution at all in deciding where to send their sons and daughters, and consequently most of them journey farther east to obtain culture which they might just as well get at Nebraska.

If this criticism applies to all parts of the west as it does to this particular locality, Nebraska students and alumni had indeed better seek an immediate remedy. This university should have its share of the east-bound students, and it is up to her representatives in the west to do their best to change the present condition. Their personal efforts count for more than Rather inappropriate to have Nebraska's football men guests of honor at a performance of "The Sham." The Cornhusker varsity is no sham; it's the real thing.

The present freshman class is marked by nothing unless by ambitious office-seeking. Three candidates for each of the minor class offices is a record not usually achieved by Nebraska university classes.

Coincident with the announcement that the senior breakfast is to be held next Saturday morning comes the bulletin from the weather bureau predicting a severe cold wave in this section Friday night. Seniors should take care to hunt up old overcoats today. They may need them.

THE GAME TODAY.

University students who have a little time to spare today will do well to attend the York-Lincoln high school game on Nebraska field at 3 p. m. These two high schools are close rivals in athletic lines and the game this afternoon promises to be a pretty contest. Both York and Lincoln have a habit of turning out excellent teams and this year is no exception to the rule. York possesses such faith in its aggregation that it has guaranteed an attendance of 200 York rooters who expect to see Lincoln defeated by a good score. Lincoln is equally confident.

In view of the fact that Lincoln high school does much for university athletics, both by attendance at the games and by sending forth annually all the long-distance advertising that the university can do.

What applies to the alumni of the west is equally true of those in all sections of the country. Natural pride in their alma mater should lead these men and women to boost for Nebraska. Nebraska university can deliver the goods and her "old grads" need have no fear of not acting for the best interests of prospective students by recommending this university to them.
