VARSITY CONTINUES ITS LIGHT PRACTICE

COLE DOESN'T INTEND TO WASTE TIME DURING WEEK OFF.

NEBRASKA BEAT DENVER LAST TIME

Colorado School Not Yet Over Sting of Defeat, Two Years Ago and a Hard Battle is Certain.

With no football game scheduled for Saturday, interest this week is centered on the Olympics. Coach Cole, however, is not wasting time, but is putting in some good work in developing the scrubs.

Most of the varsity men are back at work, all of them having fully recovered from the effects of the Kansas game. No one was seriously injured in that contest, but Magor, Chauner and Johnson all received minor bruises. Magor's face and head were quite badly bruised up from the effects of his fierce tackling and line plunging. All of these men are again in good condition, and would be in fine shape for a game Saturday.

Scrimmage Yesterday.

Coach Cole held a short session of scrimmage work yesterday at the Nebraska field. The scrubs were in good trim and proceeded to do things to the varsity, securing a touchdown after about fifteen minutes of play.

The squad will continue their light practice and signal work today and Saturday. Work in preparation for the Denver game will begin Monday.

Little information as to the strength of the Denver team, has reached Nebraska circles so far this year, so that thus far they are an unknown quantity. Last year they had a strong team, holding the formidable Carlisle team down to a much lower score than did Nebraska a few days before.

This will be the first time the teams have met in two years. It will be remembered that the Denver contest here two years ago was a literal walk-away for the Cornhuskers. The Denverites have not gotten over the sting of that defeat yet. With "Deac" Koehler, an old Nebraska star, to lead them, they promise to do things when they get the Cornhuskers on their own back lot a week from next Saturday.

It is a curious coincidence that in each of the remaining contests the Cornhuskers will be pitted against the brains of a former Nebraskan. Koehler at Denver and Johnny Bender at Haskell are both well-remembered Cornhuskers, and both will strive to down their alma mater. Both are rising young coaches and a victory for either of them would mean much.

Class Teams All Out.

Interest is beginning to center about the different class teams. The freshmen are to be allowed to compete this year, making four teams in all. In former years the freshmen were ruled out on the grounds that they would have too much advantage since none of their men are taken for the varsity and also since they have the advantage of special coaching. To offset this fact this year eight men of varsity caliber are to be selected by the coaches from the freshmen ranks. None of these men will be allowed to compete in the class contests.

With four teams in the field, the contest for premier class honors will be harder than ever, and perhaps at least five or six games will have to be played. The games last year were held at Antelope park, with the result that little enthusiasm was worked up and the attendance was not what it should be. By holding this year's games at Nebraska field the interest ought to be greater and the attendance much larger.

So far this season the juniors have shown the best form and they are already being picked by many as winners. They have the advantage of an early start and have already had two scrimmages with Wesleyan. The last one was held Tuesday afternoon, in which the juniors surprised themselves by holding the University Place men scoreless. Much remains to be seen, however, and all depends on how the other teams work out.

The first game between the juniors and seniors is scheduled for Monday afternoon. On Wednesday afternoon the sophomores and freshmen line up for their first battle. Next week then will see the championship contest well inaugurated.

The members of the sophomore class will hold their tryouts for places on the wrestling teams and boxing bouts this afternoon at the gymnasium.

MANY INTERESTED IN CAMPUS IMPROVEMENT

SPEAKERS AT FACULTY DINNER CONSIDER PLANS.

PROPOSED TO MOVE THE UNIVERSITY

Suggestion that Campus Be Extended Northward Does Not Meet With Approval of All Faculty Members.

Its full importance not realized until after its conclusion, the second dinner of the University Faculty Club held at the Lincoln Wednesday night bids fair to be recognized as an epoch-making event in the history of Nebraska's state university. Planned originally as an informal gathering of university professors to listen to remarks by a well-informed college architect, the meeting resulted in launching a "better campus" project with a large impetus.

As a result of the talks by leading professors and citizens the question of campus improvement within the next few years is placed squarely in the public view. Suggestions made by Mayor Love of Lincoln and W. J. Bryan, as well as the plans proposed by Architect Rutan, were yesterday the subject of much talk about the university campus and in Lincoln generally. Everywhere among university men and women the move is welcomed as a start in the right direction.

Move the Campus?

The suggestion of Mr. Rutan that the city campus be extended to the north rather than over the more expensive land to the east of its present site is already meeting with objections. Dean Richards of the engineering school was the man who first decried such a plan at the dinner and others yesterday expressed similar views. Under the present conditions some delicate instruments in the physics and other laboratories cannot be used at times because of the jar of trains passing in the railroad yards a few blocks north and west of the campus. In case the campus were extended northward even a block or two, so as to include the new athletic field and the land immediately east, the railroad yards would be in almost immediate proximity. This is, in the eyes of many men, a grave difficulty to be encountered by such extension.

The land east and south of the present campus is very valuable and it would take a great amount of money to condemn any large area in that direction. In view of these facts, some university people indicate that they would favor a complete removal of the university to another site. They claim that the money necessarily spent in acquiring the very valuable land adjacent to the present campus could be spent more advantageously in founding a new school elsewhere.

Mr. Bryan's Scheme.

The plan proposed by W. J. Bryan at the faculty dinner has met with much approval. He suggested that a syndicate of public spirited citizens buy a large tract of land in some suburb of the city suitable for campus purposes. A part of this could then be turned over to the university as a campus. The rest of the tract could then be broken up into lots and sold to private purchasers. Owing to the fact that the land would immediately rise enormously in value as soon as the location of the university on adjacent ground was known, the syndicate could regain a large part of their investment through this advance. The remaining amount could eventually be paid by the state.

A third plan contemplates the removal of the city campus to the state farm. The buildings now on the city campus are worth several hundred thousand dollars. Their removal to any extent would be impossible, but they could possibly be sold for other purposes and some funds be realized in this way. In case some move is made within the near future, it will be necessary to reconstruct some of the present old structures, such as University and Nebraska halls, and in view of this fact many university men believe that now is the time to take some definite action for a better campus. If the matter is delayed it will be necessary to erect new buildings on the present site, and it will then be more impractical to remove or alter the campus than is now the case.

Regents Delay Action.

Yesterday Mr. Rutan met with the board of regents and discussed the proposed changes with them. As a result of his visit here he returned to Boston with full notes of the Nebraska condition. He will not draw plans until directed by the board of regents as to the general nature of the work to be undertaken. The regents will probably decide within a short time whether the proposed extension shall be east or north, and they will then notify Mr. Rutan so that he may prepare plans accordingly.

From the discussion of the regents it is evident that the members of that body favor an extension of the present campus rather than the removal of the university. Financial necessity and the difficulty that would be experienced in providing suitable rooming conveniences for students in a new location are some of the motives which impel them to this view.

NO MORE TICKETS FOR HOP.

Only ten tickets remained in the hands of Chairman Lawrence of the junior hop at 8 o'clock last evening. After these ten pasteboards are distributed no more will be issued.

It is said that a number of students have made dates without getting tickets. These are apt to find themselves in trouble. "We have announced our limit and we want to stick to it," said Chairman Lawrence. "We prefer that no one come to the dance without previously having purchased tickets, for we shall be compelled to turn them away. Persons who have not tickets and who need them should see me at once Friday morning, for the first to apply will get the ten tickets still undistributed."

SCHOOL CHILDREN AT EXHIBIT.

Lincoln Pupils Attend Art Association's Display in Library.

The art exhibit is attracting larger crowds each day. Yesterday the attendance was 300 in the morning and about the same number in the afternoon. The association tries each year to vary the pictures in nature and subjects. This year there are more portraiture work than ever before. Robert Henri, who is one of the greatest portrait painters in the world, has several specimens in the exhibit. His "Girl in White" and "Miss Waki Kaji" are wonderful pieces of work.

The rest of this week and all of next the exhibit will be visited by the school children of Lincoln. Tickets are sent to the schools which are sold for ten cents and those who purchase tickets are brought to the exhibit by their teachers and allowed to spend as much time as is needed to see the pictures. The children of the Whittier and Capital schools were present yesterday, in charge of their teachers. Catalogs had been sent to the schools and the pupils allowed to study them before visiting the exhibit. At the exhibit they were loaned catalogs and members of the association say they use them very skillfully and enjoy the pictures much more with them.

REGENTS CHANGE RULES OF HONORARY DEGREES

MAKE ALL DEGREES DEPENDENT ON FACULTY ACTION.

MAY CHANGE THE SUMMER SESSION

Matter of Lengthening Term of Session and Other Details Left to Special Committee—Other Matters Discussed.

At its special session yesterday the board of regents acted upon several matters of comparative importance. One of their principal acts was the addition of a clause to the rules regarding the granting of honorary degrees which binds the board to give such titles only on recommendation of the university senate. Various faculty changes and the creation of a separate department in the summer session were other matters considered.

The change in the regulation of honorary degrees resulted from the desire of the regents to guard against the granting of degrees in cases where the applicant did not measure up to the academic standards commonly understood to belong to the titles. Heretofore the board has had the power to grant any honorary degrees, the granting of regular degrees resting, however, solely upon recommendation of the faculties. The regents yesterday amended their rules so that the honorary degrees now depend upon the favorable action of the senate.

Summer Session Change.

The recommendation of the director of the summer session that the session be established as a separate department of the university, the director of the session being responsible directly to the chancellor and board of regents, was referred to the chancellor and president of the board with power to act. To this committee was also referred the increase of the term to eight weeks and the making of two sessions the equivalent of one semester of regular university work in arranging for leaves of absence.

The board decided that Chancellor Avery should be sent to the International Live Stock show at Chicago to inspect the work of experiment stations there shown.

The creation of a night school as a part of the Temple observatory school was approved. Dean Fordyce is given power to establish such a school with a limited number of pupils for the benefit of observation by university students training to be teachers.

The board approved of the action which has been taken in providing under the direction of Professor Engberg for a better observance and checking of student delinquency.

Minor Matters.

The leave of absence granted Professor Wallace of the department of English literature was approved. Mr. Carl Ulman was appointed instructor in the department of dairy husbandry. O. L. Sponsler, a graduate of the University of Michigan, was appointed adjunct professor of botany and forestry. Professor Chatburn was advanced and given the title of head professor of applied mechanics and machine design. Dr. J. H. Gain was placed in charge of the department of animal pathology. Other minor appointments made in the interim since the last session of the board were approved.
