WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1909.

Nebraska cattle seem capable of winning prizes even if the university students did not come up to the standard they have set for themselves in past years.

Hastings college is the school which will be represented at Oxford, England, next year, in case the applicant from that institution satisfies the secondary tests of the Rhodes trustees. He was the only one of a dozen men, including several university students, who passed the examinations held in October. Undoubtedly the instance will become the text for this year's tically all of its team were workers and enthusiastic boosters for Nebraska. The students who sat on the bleachers and watched these men fight the battles on the field should now be eager to show that they too are boosters with the interests of the Scarlet and Cream close at heart.

THE TWO PROMS.

The action of the university senate in rejecting the request of the junior and senior prom committees for the suspension of the midnight closing rule in the cases of these two formal dances was a considerable disappointment to many students. Students who are working to make these two affairs similar to the big proms of other universities will feel the effect of the senate's actions.

Yet it should be understood that the faculty acted only after deliberation. The social committee discussed the question at length before reporting to the senate and a chance was given for debate by that body. The unanimous vote resulted largely from the belief that such a precedent would encourage other petitions which could not well be granted. While the petitioners will undoubtedly reserve the right to disagree from the faculty belief in this regard, they must still realize that the senate has dealt in all fairness with their petition. The faculty simply does not see the matter

Petitions were presented from several fraternities, asking that the university advance a part of the necessary funds, provided the fraternities should raise a specified amount.

"Last spring there was considerable agitation for dormitories on the campus in which the various fraternities should rent suites of rooms. The plan, however, is felt to be open to a number of criticisms and both the board and the fraternities have let it drop.

"In case the board takes favorable action on the petitions which have been presented, it is probable that several fraternity houses will be erected on the campus in the near future."

According to figures available in the office of the auditor, the University of Chicago holds investments representing permanent endowment that aggregate $14,870,903.01. In addition, its buildings and grounds devoted entirely to university use represent $8,917,708.10; equipment, scientific apparatus, furniture, etc., being put at $1,916,314.49 additional. These figures do not include the funds destined for the erection of the Harper memorial library, estimated in round figures to cost $900,000, on which work will probably begin next year, nor the cost of the Classical building, the construction of which is in contemplation, and on which about $250,000 will be expended.

argument of the small college against the university.

Circulars are out appealing for teachers in the white and colored schools of the Panama canal zone. Nebraska students in other departments have made a success of their Panama experience and there would seem to be no reason why they could not make good in teaching. It would seem that there is an excellent opportunity offered for students of average ability who have a desire to see the southern country and acquire valuable experience.

"Streets of All Nations" is to take the place of the County Fair, annually given by the Y. W. C. A. The county fairs have been unique attractions in the past and with the innovations this year the annual stunt will probably have all the greater patronage. It certainly deserves it.

BE CORNHUSKERS TONIGHT.

The annual Cornhusker banquet is to be held tonight at the Lincoln. It is the one occasion of its kind in the traditional history of the university. It is the one chance of the year when Nebraska students can meet the members of the football team and thank them for their work of the season. It is the one opportunity offered for alumni and students to get together and talk over the plans for Nebraska's future.

With these things so, it is no wonder that the Cornhusker banquet is recognized as one of the big events of the school year. Last year over two hundred students were present at the meeting in celebration of the victories of 1908. This year over three hundred should gather to do honor to the hard-working squad of 1909.

The 1909 season did not measure up to that of 1908 in the list of victories won. But it did result in proving to Nebraska students that pracfrom the same standpoint as do the committeemen and others interested. While this fact may be regretted as an obstacle to the development of a prom tradition, the committees can only go on and do the best that they can in accordance with the midnight rule.

THE SUMMER SESSION.

The change made in the organization of the university summer session marks another step in the improvement of the university administrative system. The summer session is now to be given a definite character as a half-semester of the regular university course with its work carried on directly under the authority of the chancellor and registrar.

Under the administration of Professor P. H. Grumann, who has sacrificed much to the benefit of the summer session, that department of the university's activity has grown rapidly. The session has been built upon a solid foundation, with close regard to the high quality of work demanded of such a course carried on in connection with a university of the standing of Nebraska. Teachers of the state have come to recognize its value for advanced work and it has filled a position which guarantees it continued support.

NERVY ACTION?

What would the Nebraska regents say if they should wake up some morning to find that the university fraternities had petitioned them for funds with which they might build new fraternity houses in Lincoln? Would they think it nervy? It certainly seems likely.

Yet this is just what the Greeks at Northwestern have done. Here is the story:

"At a meeting of the board of trustees of Northwestern University a few days ago the question of fraternity houses on the campus was taken up.
