the fraternities now entering the field it will be possible to have an exact illustration of the effect of the fraternity athletic system. In case the interclass series suffer through the intervention of the fraternity league, the students who find fault with the system may have facts on which to base their statements. In any case, whatever the result, the experiment will be interesting in its showing of the comparative loyalty of Greeks to frat and to class.

NEBRASKA-IOWA GAME.

The Nebraska athletic management is just now making strenuous efforts to land a big game for the Cornhuskers on Thanksgiving Day. It is desired to schedule some powerful rival for a series of Turkey Day contests for a period of five or ten years, the games to be played if possible at Omaha, which would be neutral ground for both schools.

At present the efforts of Manager Eager are being devoted chiefly towards Iowa. Nebraska students are believed to be very favorable to a game with the Hawkeyes as an annual Thanksgiving Day stunt and it is said that the Iowa men are equally willing. The game could probably be scheduled without difficulty were it not for the position of Iowa in the Chicago conference.

ference, although student sentiment is not nearly so strong for staying in the "Big Eight." The Iowa faculty men who are now in control should be made to feel the Hawkeye student sentiment, and if it is favorable to a game with Nebraska, they should be made to act accordingly. Incidentally it might not be a bad idea for Nebraska alumni in Iowa and Iowa grads in Nebraska to help out the cause with a little persuasion.

Alpha Theta Chi gave its annual party at the Lincoln last evening. Fifty couples were present including a number of alumni and out-of-town members. This was the first of the Greek formals of the year. Tonight the same fraternity will hold its annual banquet at the Lincoln.

About four years ago he went into business at Rock Hill, S. C.

The Dramatic Club first announced "A Professor's Love Story." Now they give the title of their play to be soon produced as "What's the Matter With the Professor?" Quite naturally the suggestion arises that it may be love. Who is the guilty man?

Now it is that the freshmen are finding out how far from the ideal are the heating plants of those rooming houses. Also they may be learning the sad lesson that landladies sometimes exaggerate the facts, especially when guaranteeing their rooms against conditions like the present.

INTERFRAT ATHLETICS.

The interfraternity athletic board now announces that an endeavor will be made to form a basketball league among the Greeks. From statements made by representatives of the different fraternities it is evident that the plan will meet with a hearty reception, and present indications point to some good contests.

The frats have already contested with each other in baseball and indoor athletics. So far as is known there has been no criticism of their efforts in the latter branch, but there have been a few who found fault with the baseball system. These contended that the presence of interfraternity baseball tended to stifle interclass contests in that sport. They held that the fraternity men were so interested in their own league that they would not support class teams.

It is possible that there may be some truth in this theory. In recent years, however, no attempts have been made to organize interclass baseball contests, and hence there is no data available as to what the Greeks would do towards supporting the games. Class basketball has figured prominently, however, in the athletic affairs of each winter season. With of which Iowa is a member, no Thanksgiving Day games are permitted. This effectually puts a stop to the Nebraska-Iowa proposition unless Iowa withdraws from the conference. At first sight it seems like taking a considerable step for the Hawkeyes to leave the conference in order to schedule a game with Nebraska. But the Nebraska management does not look upon this move as highly improbable. Iowa at present does not rank among the leaders of the Chicago conference and it is pointed out that she might well be willing to sacrifice the minor position she there holds in order to gain better relations within the Missouri Valley conference, of which she is also a member. Iowa is now at some disadvantage in the Valley conference because she cannot maintain a training table, in view of her Chicago affiliations, whereas other Valley schools do keep the table. With these facts in view the students of the situation think that Iowa could gain considerable by jumping out of the Chicago aggregation and taking on a Thanksgiving Day game with Nebraska.

The advantages of such a game to both schools are apparent. A traditional contest would foster much interest in football in both schools and would bring the two neighboring institutions still closer together in all lines of activity. The holding of such a game in Omaha would give an opportunity for valuable and pleasurable reunions of alumni and students of both institutions. Lincoln students who could not go home for Thanksgiving might easily journey to Omaha for the game and have an enjoyable vacation.

With the advantages and difficulties thus portrayed the only thing in the way of accomplishing the desires of the Nebraska management is the attitude of the men in control of the Iowa situation. The leaders at Iowa do not care to leave the Chicago con-
