FRATERNITY VIOLATES RULES, IS PENALIZED

ALPHA TAU OMEGA DIDN'T OBEY SOCIAL REGULATIONS.

WILL BE NO PARTIES UNTILL EASTER

Committee on Student Organizations Imposes Penalty for First Time Since Issuing Rules.

On account of the violation by Alpha Tau Omega of the university regulations governing social affairs, that fraternity will not be allowed to hold any house parties at which women are present until after the Easter recess. This is the first penalty imposed by the committee on social regulations since the promulgation of the social rules last fall.

The committee has had the reported violation under consideration since prior to the Christmas recess, and it is said to have acted with all due reluctance. The committee has not wished to enforce drastic penalties, but it is stated that in the present case no other course was left open. The resolution of the committee as approved by the chancellor follows:

"Alpha Tau Omega fraternity is prohibited from giving any parties where women are entertained at the chapter house until after the Easter recess, and this action is to be published in the Daily Nebraskan."

Co-operation, Not Penalties.

"The committee desires the co-operation of the students," said Miss Ensign, acting adviser to women and a member of the committee, yesterday. "We do not wish to enforce what are really only ordinary conventions of society by means of penalties and withdrawals of privilege. There have been several minor violations of the rules reported to us which we have overlooked when we assured ourselves that the mistake was due to mere ignorance or carelessness. In the future, however, each organization should acquaint itself with the features of the rules so that no further penalties may be necessary."

The committee has sent out letters to the student organizations again calling their attention to the rules promulgated last fall. The letter is as follows:

"In October a copy of the enclosed letter was mailed to each student organization."

"The acknowledgement of this letter which was requested in order that the committee might know that the information conveyed was in the possession of those concerned, was only made by eleven of the fifty-two organizations notified."

Some Infractions.

"During the past few weeks there have been several infractions of the above mentioned university rulings. These have seemed to occur through thoughtless negligence and have not been regarded as serious, but taken in the aggregate it now appears evident that they are expressions of the failure on the part of many students to recognize the significance of such acts."

"It has seemed wise to the university authorities to formulate certain rulings for the guidance of its student organizations, which, as recognized parts of the university body, are responsible to it in proportion as it is responsible for them."

"The failure on the part of some of these organizations to comply with university rulings has been a violation of university law."

"It is the belief of the committee that these acts have been as before stated, in the main, of thoughtlessness. The results of this thoughtlessness on university law and order cannot, however, fail to be gravely detrimental and cannot continue to be lightly condoned by the authorities.

"The foregoing explanation is made to you in order that you may be able to thoughtfully and intelligently cooperate with the university in working for its best interests. Any failure on your part in the future to comply with university rulings can only be interpreted as a wilful disregard of university authority."

The letter referred to in the preceding was a short statement of the rules governing social affairs at the university. These rules limited social functions to Friday and Saturday evenings and limited the time of university parties to 12 p. m. They also contained provisions for official chaperones at university parties and set the chancellor's reception as preceding all other university functions.

DRAMATIC CLUB AT OLIVER.

"The Professor's Love Story" Again in the Limelight.

"The Professor's Love Story," better known at the university as "What's the Matter With the Professor?" will be repeated at the Oliver theater Thursday night, January 6th under the Oliver theater management. The Dramatic Club, and especially those members who participated in the last performance of the play before the Christmas holidays, feel flattered by the proposition made by Manager Zehrung of the Oliver.

It is safe to say that with this elation to inspire them the rendition on Thursday evening will be as good if not better than the preceding one. The play as given at the Temple theater received the hearty commendation of a packed house. The play is a well-conceived comedy, bubbling with fun, and it is put on by the club without a single flat character. Not one of the actors fails to bring out the characteristics of the type he is to represent.

The cast of characters follows:
Prof. Goodwille.....Searl S. Davis
Dr. Cosens.....Yale Holland
Sir George Gilding.....Nye Morehouse
Dr. Yellowleaves.....John Alexander
Pete.....Laurence Coy
Henders.....Paul Yates
Effie, a maid.....Ada Morgan
Lady George Gilding.....
.....Anita Hazlewood
Dowager Lady Gilding.....Julia Nagl
Agnes Goodwille.....Esther Bailey
Lucy White.....Bashlie Tully

NINETEEN STUDENTS SUSPENDED

Delinquency Committee Drops Number From Probation List.

During the Christmas recess the committee on student delinquency suspended nineteen students for failure to carry satisfactorily the work for which they had registered. These students were almost entirely those placed upon the probation list earlier in the term. They have failed to make up the work in which they were delinquent and accordingly they are dropped.

By taking this action the committee makes it possible for the delinquents to enroll against next semester. Had they been carried on the roll and failed at the close of the semester, they could not have re-entered school in February.

Sixteen of the delinquents were men and three girls.

NON-COM HOP APPOINTMENTS.

Committee for Annual Dance of Military Men is Named.

Chairman Cain of the non-com hop has announced the following committee for the annual dance of the non-commissioned officers: Robert Paterson, Robert Ferguson, Victor Krause, C. J. Lord, D. B. Van Dusen, L. A. Welsh, E. H. Hahne. The date for the dance has not as yet been announced, but it will be held in the near future. The dance promises to be one of the swiftest informal dances of the social season.

PHILLIPS RECEIVES AN ALLURING OFFER

INDIAN BUREAU DESIRES SERVICES OF NEBRASKA PROFESSOR.

HE HAS NOT DECIDED TO ACCEPT

Loss Would Be Keenly Felt in University Circles, Where He is Popular.

Nebraska men are leaders in all things. One of the leading professors of the university has recently been offered a position which is one of great importance and far in advance of his present position. Professor F. J. Phillips of the department of forestry has been offered a position in the Indian service, his work being the direction and care of the forest lands on the reservation.

Phillips Popular.

Professor Phillips is one of the most popular professors at the university, and if he should accept this position his leaving would be regretted very much by the members of the university student body. In his career in the forest work he early became acquainted with the milling part of the forest and timber work. He graduated early from the Michigan state college of agriculture. After completing his course in this institution he went to the state university at Ann Arbor. Here he took post-graduate work and two years later took his master's degree.

Professor Phillips then entered the forest service, where he attained excellent success and was known as a man who got results. He was given many problems to work out in the service and many of these were in the west, where he met marked success in their solution. While in the service he was offered a position as head of the department of forestry in the University of Nebraska and this he accepted. Many favorable offers have since been made to Professor Phillips, but none of these he has accepted and his work here has been recognized as the best in this part of the country.

High Salary.

The position which has been recently offered to Professor Phillips is a very good one, being $2,500 per year. This comes as a recognition of his good work at the university and is well deserved. The department of the interior, which has charge of the Indian bureau, declares itself seeking men of equal calibre to Professor Phillips and have these men solve the difficult problems which they have before them. Not alone do they want men of the highest ability in the higher positions, but they are making offers to expert farmers or men who have graduated from agricultural schools.

The Offer.

The press dispatches in speaking of this offer say:

Commissioner Valentine and Assistant Commissioner Abbott of the Indian bureau recently tendered a position in the Indian service to Prof. F. J. Phillips of the University of Nebraska, his work being the direction of care and use of timber on the reservations. The salary offered Prof. Phillips is $2,500 a year.

While in Washington last week, Professor Phillips said he approved the efforts of the Indian office in adopting methods of forest service so far as practicable and in making every effort to conserve the forests for the beneficial use of the Indians. He asserted that handling forests on Indian reservations is more difficult than forest work on the public domain, because of the industrial, social and economic problems of the Indian involved. To handle this difficult work, Commissioner Valentine is seeking highly trained men like Professor Phillips. The Indian service is making an offer of $1,200 per annum to agricultural students, who are sufficiently equipped to train the braves on Indian reservations in raising farm products. The appointments will be restricted to graduates of agricultural colleges. The successful applicants will be designated by Indian Commissioner Valentine to manage model demonstration farms on reservations in arid and semi-arid regions of the west.

OBERLIN GLEE CLUB PLEASURES.

Ohio Singers Do Unique Stunts Before audience of Nebraska Students.

A program of varied character, sprinkled with unique stunts was the offering of the Oberlin College Glee Club at the Temple last evening. An audience of only moderate size, made small by the weather conditions and the inconvenient date, gave frequent applause to selections of real merit.

The program was in three parts, classified selections and popular songs being varied by a piano solo and a novel orchestral stunt. The harmony and precision of tone was marked. Well-blended voices showed careful training. The only evident lack was a soloist capable of heavy renditions.

The hit of the evening was made in the second part of the program when the club appeared as a gypsy orchestra. Every sort of an instrument, including kitchen tinware and rattles, was used in this original act.

Just before the close the club complimented Nebraska by singing "The Cornhusker."

LIVING DOLLS AT THE FAIR.

Frau Humperdinckel's Spielwaren Anstellung Will Be a Head-Liner.

University girls dressed as and acting as dolls will be a novelty on "The Streets of All Nations." One of the local sororities will manage the booth, which will be in the nature of a German toy shop.

Every variety of German doll will be represented and be made to appear as mechanical as possible. The girls will dress appropriately, act appropriately, and will attempt to appear as dolls.

There will be sleeping dolls, walking dolls, and talking dolls. Dolls for little boys and dolls for little girls, and yet every one will be of interest to the patrons of the county fair.

Surely none of us are so old that we cannot appreciate the humor and skill of such an exhibition.

CONVOCATION THURSDAY.

August Hagenow to Favor University Students With Recital.

University students are to be especially favored at convocation Thursday by a violin recital by August Hagenow. The program will be as follows:

Gartenmalodit—Schaumann.
Serenade—Drigo-Auer.
Minuett in G—Beethoven.
Souvenir—Drda.
Fantastic Caprice—Vieuxtemps.

CLEMENTS DELIVERED ADDRESS.

Eminent Nebraska Graduate Spoke at Boston Meeting of Scientists.

Dr. Frederick E. Clements, formerly assistant professor of botany in this university, delivered an address before the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Boston during the holidays. Dr. Clements is now head of the department of botany at Minnesota. He is one of the leading botanists of the country and probably the foremost ecologist in America.

While en route east Dr. Clements visited Dr. H. B. Ward, former dean of the Nebraska college of medicine and now professor of zoology at the University of Illinois. He addressed the Illinois students at that time.

CLARK AND JONES OUT FOR SENIOR PRESIDENT

TWO ENGINEERS WANT JOB FOR SECOND SEMESTER.

A CAUCUS IS A POSSIBILITY

Engineers May Decide to Present a United Front to Academics and Laws if They Have Candidate.

With four weeks yet remaining before the opening of the second semester and a couple more before the holding of the first class elections, the political pot is already beginning to boil in at least one instance. Two seniors are already out for the presidency of that class for the second semester and other candidates are likely. In the three lower classes no public announcements have yet been made, but it is understood that the nominations will not go uncontested.

The early activity in the senior class promises a lively campaign before the close of its course. Not in several years past have the candidates made such an early start on their canvass. The men so far announced are W. A. Jones and Jesse Clark, both engineers and both of South Omaha. Jones is a member of Delta Epsilon and Sigma Tau fraternities and of the Innocents. Clark is a Kappa Sigma. He has had several committee places during his three years in school.

May Have Caucus.

The candidacy of these two men is peculiar in several ways. Not the least interesting feature is the fact that both are from the same town, South Omaha, as well as members of the same college. Other than this, both men declare they have little in common, aside from the presidential bee. Friends add that both are popular.

Since the announcements were made some members of the engineering college have suggested that a caucus might be held at which the engineers should decide which of the two men they would support. In this case a mass meeting would be called and the engineering seniors would ballot on Jones and Clark. The man receiving the low vote would be expected to withdraw in favor of the leader and the engineers would give their united support to that candidate. Just what effect that move would have on the comparative chances of the candidates is not plainly evident.

Other Candidates.

Whether or not other candidates are likely to spring up in the fourth year class is not yet known. It is pointed out that the laws and academics are extremely unlikely to willingly allow the engineers to have the pie all to themselves. A well-known lit student might be able to make a good run, especially in case the engineers should not hold caucus, is the opinion of some seniors.

In the other classes everything is quiet as yet. The freshmen are said to be in shape for a neat little squabble, but the junior and sophomore offices will probably go without much competition. The sophomores, after their strenuous political efforts last fall will not have much of a contest unless the present outlook changes, especially since the presidency of the class in the second semester has little but the name attached to it.

"The Colonial Dames' Scholarship" at the University of Chicago, yielding annually the sum of $300, has been awarded to Paul Moser of Chicago, for excellence of work in American history in the junior colleges of the university. The scholarship is provided by the Colonial Dames of America in the state of Illinois.
