Cadets to Be Taught a System of Exercises Taught by Regular Army.
Commencing with this semester the cadets in the battalion at the university are to be instructed in a new system of exercises. These exercises are similar to the old setting-up exercises which have been used in all military schools and in the regular army for some time. This new system of exercises is muscular exercise with the rifle and are very similar to the wand put on by classes in physical education. The full system is practiced in the regular army and it is the intention of the military department to keep the university cadets as proficient in drill as is possible. The full system is found in a book called Butt's Manual and the members of the cadet battalion are purchasing them.
