If the usual hand shake and smile be on the face of one or two seniors as they meet on the campus it is a sure sign that one of them is a member of the senior play committee.

By tonight it will all be over. The university will have once more settled down into its normal condition—a pool untroubled by the ripples of politics.

Now the men are devoting a half hour of each day to throwing goals. This is betting the specialization theory worked out in basketball to a fine point.

CONVOCATION

“Ober-Ammergau Passion Play”

MEMORIAL HALL

TODAY

“Finality of Decision:—If there is no appeal by either student or dean, the decision of the court goes directly to the faculty for enforcement. In case of appeal by either student or dean, the faculty discipline committee reviews the case. If they find the appeal groundless, the decision goes to faculty for enforcement. If there appears to be cause sufficient for a new hearing, the discipline committee remands the case to the student court with recommendations. They can take no action. The court again considers the case, and its final decision goes to the faculty for enforcement.”

The plan is one which is being advocated throughout the colleges of the country, and one which requires a marked degree of success to warrant its organization. Such at least would be the case at Nebraska, where so little cause exists for any change in the present system.

The Forum

Dear Sir: I beg you to allow me a little space to air my ideas about the injustice that the senior play committee is going to deal out to the other members of the class. It does not is no reason why they should be counted out. If the committee expect to make the play a success the best way to begin is to give each member a fair chance.

out calling up a picture of the great long sloping mass of humanity lined up in tier after tier on either side of the diamond. We picture the dust-covered, grimy players in the bright glare of a summer day. We hear the roaring cheer as it rises and falls when a score is made.

With the approach of spring we at once begin to think of all these things. The baseball season at Nebraska is not filled with the enthusiasm that comes with mid-summer baseball. The season for the university team is over before we have fairly forgotten the overcoat of yesterday. But after all it is baseball.

Nebraska has the material, and that material is about to begin working for Nebraska. Setting aside for the moment all other considerations, that material deserves all the support of the student body. With the right material all that is needed is the support—and we win.

THE STUDENT COURT.

The Daily Cardinal explains the workings of the student court, recently instituted at Wisconsin, as follows: "Composition:—The court will be composed of nine students, six seniors and three juniors. They are to be elected by the student conference committee.

"Complaints:—Any student can bring a complaint directly to the court. Any faculty member can bring a complaint, but it must be brought with the approval of the dean in which the student complained of it registered.

"Appeals:—Any student convicted by the court can appeal to the faculty discipline committee on any grounds. The only other person who can appeal from the decision of the court is the dean of the college in which the student is registered. The only grounds on which he can appeal are that there is new and unheard evidence in the case.

seem right to me that the committee should itself judge the members of the class who are going to try out for the play, when they themselves are also going to try out. I would like to know how they are going to judge themselves and do the other members justice. It seems to me that if the committee wants to do the right thing by the others they should be willing to allow someone else to do the judging. I think that the chairman of the play committee is of the same opinion that I am, but it has been rumored in the class that the members of the committee are in favor of doing part of the judging. And for no other reason than to make it possible that they will be sure to have a place on the cast. With judges in that frame of mind you can imagine what the outcome will be. Now, when it becomes common knowledge on the campus that several of the committee have already decided who they want for the leading parts, what chance do you suppose those not on the committee will have to make a place on the cast? Why not allow the committee in the first place to pick the cast and save the others who are spending their time preparing for the competition? Under the present conditions this try out is a mere farce, a blind to deceive the others and make them think that they are given a fair show. Now it seems to me that if the committee want to be honest with the class and with themselves, they should not attempt to do any judging. The committee can not come back to the class and honestly say that they have given every member a fair chance if they do the judging. It seems to me that if the committee want to do the honest and upright thing they must give everybody the same chance. It is not fair that those who are the most popular should have any monopoly on the job. Those who are not so popular have a right to a fair consideration. Just because they have not been so active as the others
