WEDNESDAY, MARCH 23, 1910.

A flock of "N's" has settled on the sweaters of Nebraska athletes. It is needless to say that the coveted "N" stands for the best in Cornhusker athletics.

The relay race at the Kansas City meet resulted in a victory for Nebraska which means much to the track work. Cheer up—there are a few more worlds to conquer, i. e., the Omaha meet.

The "Mystic Fish" has fallen into our midst with a splash. Just what kind of a fish a "mystic" fish is, we, not being ornithologically, or zoologically inclined, would hesitate to studying (?), when the cook didn't get the proper color scheme worked out on those pancakes, when you can't find a clean collar button in your room mate's dresser or the house cat seems to have swallowed the visible supply of collar buttons, when you have crammed for a day on "idioms" and are examined on "transflation," you may feel a trifle "off color." The world does not present its usual rosy-cheeked, pink-eyed side to rouse your budding enthusiasm. But then—this is not perpetual.

The perpetual "grouch" is the man we are "gunning" for with an appropriate editorial penned by one of the faithful from a neighboring college. He says:

"We read a large number of editorials in college papers concerning the student with the perpetual grouch. Whether students are more susceptible to pessimism than laymen is a question which these weighty 'spies' brings to our attention. It is scarcely to be presumed that such is the case since college men have comparatively few cares. However, the species probably seems more numerous on account of the fact that one grouch can spoil the entire day.

"There is nothing that so completely upsets a person on these fine mornings as to walk across the campus feeling happy and friendly toward everything, only to have a wet blanket thrown over the joy in living by the perpetual grouch. He is the person so bristling with business and importance that he has no time for a cheerful word as he passes you. Life to him is measured only by the amount of work he makes his associates believe he is doing.

"There are two grouches—the business grouch and the common grouch or pessimist. The business grouch is the more obnoxious because he comes in contact with more people. He is all right as long as things are coming his way, but the moment you stroke his hair the wrong way he refuses to purr. He must have the entire milk pan for himself or he refuses to lap

The athletic field is now pretty well crowded. Nevertheless the prospects are fine for a victorious team this year.

MRS. WIGGS ATTENDED.

Fat Woman, Snake Charmer and Bill Taft in Parade.

The Y. W. C. A. poverty social was a decided success. A poverty stricken crowd was in attendance and every one got thoroughly off their dignity. The affair was a "charity organization" benefit. Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch and Mrs. Ruggles addressed the audience, while several children who had been "benefited" gave a short program. One of the special features was the parade and circus, which displayed the usual fat lady, snake charmer, acrobat and animals. Bill Taft and Samantha and Josiah Allen lent an added charm to the occasion. The bread line had their usual diet changed to pop corn balls and peanuts, and every one went home feeling they had had one bright spot in their colorless lives. Miss Vibbard leads the Tuesday noon meeting and Mrs. Vincent leads the Wednesday noon meeting.

PHI DELTA THETA BANQUET.

Celebration Under Auspices of Nebraska Chapter and Omaha Alumni Association.

Phi Delta Theta fraternity celebrated the founding of the fraternity at Miami University on March 15, 1848, and the constitution of Nebraska Alpha chapter at this university thirty-five years ago, with a banquet in Omaha last Saturday night at the Omaha Club. The celebration was under the joint auspices of the Nebraska chapter and the Omaha alumni association, and the company included members of nearly every large university in the country.

The banquet hall was decorated in the colors of the fraternity and the state. However, it importeth much of dark deeds and solemn wig-wag on the part of sundry freshman co-eds when they meet in the sacred wig-wam under the coral tree. It certainly oughtn't to be a jelly fish.

Perhaps that triangular meet would not be a bad means of placing Nebraska more firmly on the athletic map.

Three men and twenty-eight women elected to Phi Beta Kappa honors. Next year the sixteen-to-one standard ought to be reached.

At last we have found one man who has the courage of his convictions, and, as we thought, he is from Missouri. J. Ed Crumbaugh, who has charge of the publisher's office of that university, appeared on the campus yesterday in a straw hat.

A FAIRY STORY.

Once upon a time there was a senior class who were so kind as to donate a drinking fountain to the University of Nebraska. So the fairy story goes. That there may be some foundation to the tale is believed by many students. In support of this belief they show the ruins of what they claim was at one time the fountain beneath the large pine. They even go so far as to assert that water once flowed from this historic mound. That is where we draw the line. As we gaze out of the window at that pile of stones which at one time meant so much to the thirsty of the university, as we watch the heat waves dance over its glaring edge as from a furnace and feel the parched side of our tongue scraping our dusty palate, we doubt whether water ever gladdened the heart of man—in that fountain. If so—why not now?

up the milk. He is the big Angora with fine hair, the rest are common maltese. So long as the other cats stand back and see him go at it he will purr and stretch like a thoroughbred, but shut off his milk supply and he becomes a common 'Old Tom.' He makes everything around him miserable with his yowls simply because they cannot see his born right to have everything just the way he wants it.

"The common grouch generally sneaks off in the corner and meditates by his lonesome. Intermittent growls alone indicate his presence. He is entirely inoffensive if let alone, but he is bad if stumbled onto in the dark. One does not care to repeat the experience.

"If there is one characteristic which belongs to college men alone it is cheerfulness. Wherever you see three or four students together you are sure to find the merry joke and the good fellowship. The grouch is so alien to this atmosphere that he becomes conspicuous, and for this reason college editors are tempted to enlarge upon his faults."

TENNIS COURTS BEING REPAIRED

Usual Trouble in Lack of Court Room on Old Ground.

The tennis courts west of the library are being repaired by the members of the club and it is expected that they will be in first class condition by the end of the week. However, the poor condition of the courts has not discouraged the many tennis enthusiasts from playing because the ground has been used continually for the past few days.

The same condition prevails this year as last in that there is not a sufficient number of courts to satisfy the demand. Some of the club members have tried to get some space on the athletic field, but at present it looks as if their efforts were in vain.

pennant of every one of the seventy-two colleges where the fraternity has chapters. Practically every member here in Lincoln attended. Before the banquet the entire party attended the Orpheum. The manager of the theater had a number of the artists wear the colors of the fraternity and of the university.

The junior prom at Dartmouth will take place May 27.
