THE BANQUET.

As a promoter of good feeling and a bigger Nebraska spirit the Interfraternity banquet Wednesday night was a success in every respect. And say—some of the telegrams, the songs and the cartoons displayed there were so well directed that we fear the Cornhusker will overlook them.

SIGNATURES.

There are still a few students who remember that questions or opinions may be stated in the "Forum," but sad to relate they fail to sign their names to their communications. We are gathering quite a collection of articles, which, if not identified by the end of the year, will probably have to be submerged in the oblivion of the wastebasket—all for want of a signature.

OBLIVION.

Yes, it was a lemon; that game with Manhattan. It was of the prickly, caustic, yellow jaundiced, acid variety, but—it shouldn't sour us for the rest of the season. When the team gets into shape that little affair will have made about as much impression on our memory as that game of marbles we played and lost one day behind Bill Smith's barn, years ago. Forget it.

DAHLMAN'S VIEW.

Mayor Dahlman has expressed some rather pointed views regarding conclusions to be drawn from the result of the recent municipal election. Aside from any views which we may hold regarding the absurdity of his argument that the university and the state capital cannot be located in the same city, we believe that his views on the conduct of the student body and the faculty in the recent election will be taken seriously by few if any persons conversant with the conduct of either students or faculty on that day.

Those students who took an active part in the recent city election were residents of the city and qualified voters, and as such were only exercising their rights as citizens. Likewise the members of the faculty who took any part whatsoever in the election were residents of the city and only exercising the rights of a citizen. In a word, Mayor Dahlman, judging from his statement, would put university faculty and students who are qualified voters in the capital city on the same plane with other persons considered as undesirable citizens and disfranchised by the state.

We believe that a member of the faculty who is in the employ of the state is bound to fulfill certain obligations to the state. But we do not believe that the state will demand that the loss of citizenship or the loss of the right to perform his civic duties is any part of the obligation of any member of the faculty to the state. Consequently we fail to see how Mr. Dahlman can conclude that the exercising of this right was "wholesale interference on the part of the university professors and students in Monday's election."

But we do not believe that the state will demand that the loss of citizenship or the loss of the right to perform his civic duties is any part of the obligation of any member of the faculty to the state. Consequently we fail to see how Mr. Dahlman can conclude that the exercising of this right was "wholesale interference on the part of the university professors and students in Monday's election."

TENNIS.

Years and years ago there was a time when tennis was the most popular of university games. Today it has dropped behind owing to the rapid growth of football and baseball. Yet, should courts be provided, should men with no inclination for other forms of athletics absorb sufficient force of character to try the white flannels, it is safe to say that tennis would assume a prominent position in university athletics. There is no reason why it should not be encouraged. Other colleges put considerable stress on tennis as a college game, and then—lurking back there in the green shadows lies that game with Kansas. A Colorado paper eulogies tennis as follows:

"For those students who cannot or do not desire to play baseball or don a track suit, tennis is an ideal game. It gives the player strenuous but not

Dr. Maxey leaves today for Hastings, where he will act as one of the judges at the Hastings-Hebron debate tonight.

J. S. Morley, official piano tuner of the conservatory of music, was called to his home in Minneapolis yesterday because of the critical illness of his mother.

Miss Nell Peterson, Delta Delta Delta, has left school until next year. She will spend some time traveling in the south before her trip to Europe this summer.

Robert Ashby, '08, has accepted the position of assistant superintendent of farmers' institutes in the state of Washington, and will take up the work May 1st. He will be located at Pullman.

Leslie L. Zook, '07, writes from Chico, Cal., that conditions are very favorable for planting of spring crops. He is carrying on experiments in plant breeding for the bureau of plant industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture. Mr. Zook expects to spend some months this summer in Old Mexico, going on leave from the department, and while there intends to devote considerable attention to Mexican varieties of corn.

violent exercise; puts into action every muscle of the body; trains the eye; develops the faculties of caution, diplomacy and alertness; and therefore benefits mind as well as body. Furthermore tennis is a game that the gentler sex can enjoy, because it is free from the features that make baseball and football essentially sports for men; and because it requires skill rather than accentuating peculiar physical qualities.

"In all respects tennis is everybody's game. It upholds the principles of 'woman suffrage.' It supports the tenets of co-education. It puts no premium on avoidrdupolis. It can be played by the dwarf as well as by the giant. It is a game for the 'grind' just as much as for the varsity athlete. It is played without the frenzied yells of the fans that make baseball and football 'noisy games.' It causes no deaths. It is never condemned, but always approved. It is a game of peaceful characteristics, but a game of skill and action."
