TO GAIN POWER.

One goes to a university not so much to gain knowledge as to gain power; not so much to learn to know things as to learn to do things. We must learn things to enable us to reason, to enable us to grasp problems.

LADIES

lege career should be your standard. If you have not a high standard when you have finished you have missed the most essential part of your university education.—Abbott Lawrence, president Harvard University.

Kansas, through the editorial column of the Daily Kansan, expresses her opinion of the baseball situation as follows:

"The action of the university in cancelling the baseball games with the University of Kansas because there are professional players on the Nebraska team was somewhat surprising, to say the least. It is absurd to suppose that it is impossible to find enough men at the University of Nebraska to make up a baseball team untainted with professionalism.

Kansas! Away off down there in your hed of sunflowers, with the blue-gold haze of lazy springtime lapping the corn stalk as it waves majestically at your doorstep; with the cunning little rabbit nibbling at your ears as you water the early crop of "Jimson weed"—is it possible that you do not know that seven of your baseball players are charged with having played professional or semi-professional ball?

ball team untainted with professionalism?"

And he laughed He! He! And he laughed Haw! Haw!

SIDIS IS AN ATHEIST

When a Small Child, Prodigy Would Not Listen to Progress.

William Sidis, Harvard's boy wonder, was 12 years old on All Fools' day. When in the grammar school Sidis was horribly afraid of dogs and his mother had to accompany him to and from school.

He likes cats and has a pet one. The boy prodigy is a great newspaper reader, pursuing the local dailies before breakfast. He is also a student of Shakespeare and knows "Julius Caesar" and other plays by heart.

FASTENS RADIUM TO AIRSHIP.

Harvard Prodigy Devises Plan to Reach Venus.

William Sidis, the 11-year-old mathematical prodigy of Harvard, has not confined his attention to the fourth dimension, but has been delving into aerial navigation.

His plan is simple and has to do with the rays given off from radium.

cream, soups, thickened soups, fowl, beef round, veal, eggs, salmon, shad, mackerel, halibut, beans, grapes and bananas.

"The light foods are milk, butter, milk, clear soups, beef tea, broiled chicken, perch, cod, oysters, lobsters, potatoes, beets, green peas, radishes, cabbage, celery, lettuce, spinach, apples, peaches, cherries, oranges and melons."

JONESY MAKES SANDWICHES.

Waitresses Won't Work for Domestic Science Department.

The waitresses in the lunch room department of the Columbia university commons went on strike recently just in time, as they thought, to tie up the preparations for the evening meal.

The trouble came when Jones told the waitresses that they would have to prepare sandwiches and other edibles for an affair that the domestic science department in teachers' college was to give in the evening.

Rev. Burres Gives Baccalaureate Sermon.

Rev. W. H. Burrus of the First Congregational church of Fremont, Neb., has been selected to deliver the baccalaureate address for the university graduates.

Colorado University is to have a new science and museum hall. The approximate cost will be $270,000.

HOW TO GET FAT OR THIN.

Harvard Professor Says Choice of Food Governs Extra Flesh.

"How to get fat or thin," was told by Dr. George White in a lecture at the Harvard medical school recently. Among other things he said:

"Some persons could never be made thin unless you could change their character. Ordinarily the supervision of a physician is necessary to prevent mistakes and for encouragement and discipline.

"It is not safe to lose more than two pounds a week, or twenty pounds in three months. If you have more than this to lose, say fifty pounds, then it is better to bring its loss about intermittently.

"It doesn't mean starvation, or necessarily less food, but a choice of new foods, for instance, replacing of roast beef by chicken and thickened soups by clear soups. Foods may be roughly divided into three classes, strong, medium and light according to their values.

"The strong foods are olive oil, butternuts, chocolate, cheese, sugar cake, ice cream, roast beef, ham, pork chops, bacon, gravies, cream, candy puddings, pies, cereals, macaroni, bread, eggs and dates.
