America is to be presented this week at the University of Wisconsin. All of the characters are microbes, or bugs as they are familiarly known by the members of the bacteriological department of the state university. The play depicts in brief the history of the war of the germs of the world against the human race, and the decision of germland to exterminate mankind, but the action includes the love affair of Teddy Tubercle and Bessie, the stenographer. The play is being presented at the wish of Dr. M. P. Raveneh, the American who contended that Dr. Koch of Berlin was wrong in his theory that bovine tuberculosis is not communicable to the human body.

Specimen of Silver Tree.

The department of botany is in receipt of a beautiful specimen of the leaf of the silver tree from South Africa. The specimen was sent to Dr. Bessey by Miss Alta Johnson, a former student at Nebraska, who is teaching in South Africa.

end of the year, if Mr. Kenyon is unable to study it out, he is going to beg the student to tell him just what he really did intend that word to represent.

Four sets of examination papers were handled by Mr. Kenyon at the close of the last semester. Three of these sets were final "quizzes," and the students writing these papers represented all classes in the engineering department, a majority of them underclassmen. Out of sixty-four papers, but three were written without errors. Others ranged from one to twenty-four misspelled words. Good students made as many as six to twelve mistakes each in spelling. In all there were 322 mistakes made in the sixty-four papers.

The speaker classified the mistakes thus: Mistakes due to carelessness, analogy or ignorance; misapplied; due to faulty articulation; mistakes due to an attempt at elegance; use of similar or similarly pronounced words, correct themselves, but incorrectly used; original phonetic spelling; really original spelling, which could not be placed in any of the above divisions.—Detroit Journal.

of the other colleges with the same convictions will assert them a reform movement may be effected.

If the present tendency at Missouri to limit the strolling places of the "strolly" inclined students to frequented places strengthens we may expect a hired band of professional "frequenters" to be stationed in all of those beautiful lanes on balmy evenings.

LIGHT.

Did you ever venture on the north campus after dark? We have never had that experience, but vague rumors are coming in of misfortunes which attended those who have. One man even asserts that he entered that part of the campus at 9 o'clock in the evening and became so hopelessly lost that he had to camp until the soft gray dawn could light his footsteps. A candle set in a lamp chimney would be an improvement over the present lighting system in use there.

LET US SING.

Music, they say, has the power to charm the savage beast. We do not give this as a reason for the call for Ivy Day songs, but merely to illustrate the power of music. Scarcely any function is complete without music. No colleges are without it.

At Nebraska, the call for songs has been stronger and more persistent this year than ever before. The university is awakening. Nebraska songs, songs for every Nebraska occasion, songs of all kinds, ultimately a book of songs, will bind the students, both in and out of the university, closer than ever before to the old "Alma Mater." Let us sing.

WILD SPELLING AT MICHIGAN.

Professor Tells of English as "She is Writ" at Ann Arbor.

"He sat in the hot son"—now wasn't that a terrible affliction to come to a professor in the University of Michigan in an examination paper? Or how would you like this: "His heart was filled with whoe"? Isn't that enough to stop even a heart?

These skeletons in the spelling closet of several of the prominent families represented in the different engineering classes were recently laid bare in a written examination given by Mr. H. A. Kenyon before a meeting of the Schoolmasters' Club. Mr. Kenyon told the story in an address entitled, "Some Wild Spellings I Have Met."

It seems that the students of the University of Michigan can do other things better than they can spell. Mr. Kenyon cited other instances where English as "writ" was terribly disfigured. For instance, many of the same sixty-four papers contained the word "weary" spelled "werry." This examination occurred two months ago, and there is still one work in the papers that Mr. Kenyon is studying over, the word "mysily." Before the
