1910 CORNHUSKER WILL BE READY ON TUESDAY MORNING BIG ANNUAL AN ATTRACTIVE PUBLICATION

DEDICATED TO READERS--DIVIDED INTO EIGHT BOOKS, WITH COLOR FRONTISPICES--NOVEL ARRANGEMENT OF PICTURES--MANY CUTS

The 1910 Cornhusker, the annual publication of the junior and senior classes, will be issued Tuesday morning. The big books will be put on sale at 9 o'clock and will be distributed throughout the day. At the present time the entire edition of the annual has been contracted for, and options are now being taken on the copies of the annual that are not called for.

The book that has been produced by the 1910 staff, of which R. S. Moseley is editor-in-chief and R. E. Weaverling is business manager, is one of the best that has ever been issued at the university. Nothing in the matter of finances has been spared to make the book worth the price, as general arrangement and minor details of the publication have been worked out to an excellent advantage.

Many Half-tones.

Many of the most attractive features of the 1910 Cornhusker is the numerous half-tones. Students and faculty members make up the large part of the photographs, although various views of the university and the state farm campus come in for a share of the numerous attractive features. Clever cartoons and other numerous drawings also take up a large part of the book. Many of the cartoons are extremely clever and portray the humorous side of university life.

The Cornhusker has a large number of new features. One of them being the dividing of the volume into books. Book one is entitled the "Colleges." This book is also divided into two chapters. Chapter one is made up of the pictures of the members of the junior and senior classes of the different colleges of the university, with the write-ups of the various individuals. Chapter two contains the histories of the present classes, along with cuts of the officers of the two lower classes.

Book two is entitled "Fraternalities," and contains a half-page cut of each fraternity and a full page list of the members of each Greek letter organization, as well as data concerning each. Professional as well as literary fraternities are included in this list.

Book three is entitled "Sororities," and is similar to book two in make-up and it contains a full page cut of each sorority and a page of material concerning each.

Book four is entitled "Literature." This book contains prose and poetry compositions by various members of the student body. Book five bears the title of "College Life." In this book of the Cornhusker cuts and write-ups of the various organizations is found. The various student societies are herein listed, among them being the Union and Palladian literary societies, the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., the Catholic Students' Club, Kominsky Club, the Chemistry Club, the Forestry Club, the Dramatic Club, Latin Club, the Divinity Club, the English Club, the Engineering Society and the University Chorus, and many others. Chapter two of this book deals with debating work at the University of Nebraska and contains cuts of the intercollegiate debating teams as well as the cuts of the members of the class debating teams. Chapter three of this book contains cuts of the various class societies, among them being the Innocents, Black Masque, Vikings, Silver Serpent, Iron Sphinx, Xi Delta, Spikes, and Mystic Fish.

Book six portrays the military side of university life, and shows the life of the cadets at camp, on the march, and at competitive drill. The companies of the First battalion are listed and cuts of each company are given. The Officers' Club, the Pershing Rifles, and a full page cut of Captain Halsey Yates, commandant of the university cadets, are included in this book. Book seven is entitled "Athletics," and deals with all the university activities along the line of athletics. Cuts of the varsity teams, the class teams, are distributed prominently throughout. A history of athletics at Nebraska for the past year also is an important feature of this book.

Joke Department.

Book eight is the humorous book of the Cornhusker, and it bears the title of "Jokes." In this department every phase of student and faculty work is treated in a humorous vein. Cartoons too numerous to mention fill in a great share of this book, and last but not least comes the calendar for the year.

The 1910 Cornhusker is one of the best books that has been published by the upper classmen of the university. It deals with every phase of university life and all university activities. One of the excellent things about the new volume is that the cuts and cartoons are extremely clear and distinct. No blurs or poor cuts mar the book and instead the beauty of the volume is greatly added to.

The Cornhusker is bound in soft leather similar to the 1908 Cornhusker, with the lettering on the outside cover in gold.

The 1910 Cornhusker is dedicated to the readers and all those who express a love for Nebraska. The various books of the volume are set off by colored supplement, making in all one of the most attractive publications that has ever been produced by the members of the junior and senior classes of the university. Great credit for the excellence of this volume is due to the work of R. S. Moseley as editor-in-chief and R. E. Weaverling as business manager. These two men have been assisted to a great extent by G. E. Reed, managing editor, and R. E. Waldo and I. S. Cutter, managing editors for the law college and medical college respectively.

of this year's Cornhusker, the university annual. He is a member of the Innocents and of the Sigma Nu fraternity.

R. M. Switzler is correspondent in Lincoln for the Omaha World-Herald, and has worked on that paper for the past three years. During the past year he has done regular correspondence for the St. Paul Dispatch. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and a senior academic.

J. E. Lawrence is a reporter on the Lincoln Daily Star, and has formerly been reporter on the Beatrice Express for one year. He is a junior law and was president of his academic class in its sophomore year. He is a member of the Alpha Theta Chi, Phi Delta Phi and Phi Alpha Tau.

Victor B. Smith is a junior academic. He was editor-in-chief of the Daily Nebraskan, the college publication, last semester, and is at present a reporter on the Nebraska State Journal. He was a reporter on the Fremont Daily Tribune in 1907 and city editor of the Fremont Daily Herald in 1908. He is a member of the Alpha Theta Chi fraternity.

H. W. Potter is a senior academic, an Alpha Theta Chi, a Phi Beta Kappa and a Delta Sigma Rho. He debated against Minnesota this year, and was editor-in-chief of the Daily Nebraskan last year.

James Brown is a junior law. He is a reporter on the Lincoln Daily Star, and is Lincoln correspondent for the Omaha Daily News. He is a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. He was employed as a reporter under the national republican central committee in Chicago in 1904, and has since that time been employed on Chicago and Omaha papers.

Sam Buck is a freshman law, who came to the university from Seattle, where he was sporting editor of the Seattle Star. He is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He took his academic degree at Nebraska in 1908.

Stuart P. Dobbs is a reporter on the Lincoln Daily Star. He is a junior law, a Phi Beta Kappa and a member of Phi Alpha Tau. He won his Delta Sigma Rho as leader of the debating teams against Iowa and Wisconsin universities. He has been managing editor of the Cornhusker and of the Daily Nebraskan.

JOURNALISTS TO HAVE A FRATERNITY

PI DELTA EPSILON
CHAPTER TO NEBRASKA.

HAVE TWELVE CHARTER MEMBERS

Founded at Syracuse University
—Purpose to Elevate College Journalism—None Are Below Junior Class.

Nebraska is to have a chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, an honorary journalistic fraternity. This was given out late last night when news of the granting of the chapter to the Nebraska Press Club arrived.

The twelve members of the Press Club petitioned Pi Delta Epsilon of Syracuse University some time ago for the grant of a charter. Through some difficulty with the mails no news of the granting arrived until yesterday.

Pi Delta Epsilon was established at Syracuse University in 1909, and has for its main purposes to stimulate an interest in college journalism and to elevate its standard.

The charter members of the Nebraska chapter are all men who have had experience either on the college paper or on other papers. Members are elected to this organization only when they are actually engaged in newspaper work, have been editors of college publications, or have bona fide intentions of working on a paper when through school. None of the members are below the rank of a junior.

The Members.

The following is a list of the members, with a short account of each:

R. S. Moseley is editor-in-chief

VARSITY WILL MEET COTNER HERE TODAY

LAST GAME OF THE SEASON
WILL BEGIN AT 3:30.

LARGE CROWD SHOULD ATTEND

Cotner Has Fastest College Team in the State This Year—Missouri Valley Meet on at Des Moines.

The varsity baseball team will line up for the last time this afternoon. The victims will be the saucy collegians from Cotner. The Cornhuskers are determined to defeat the men from Bethany and the classiest baseball exhibition of the season is expected.

Ray Elliott will umpire this afternoon's game. He has officiated at several games this season and has given general satisfaction. Elliott is an old Nebraska ball player and thoroughly understands the game.

The Cotner team played a better game against the Kansas Aggies last Monday than any other team the Jayhawkers met on their recent trip. In fact, the Cotnerites probably have the fastest college aggregation in the state this year.

promptly at 3:30. Student tickets are good for this game and it is hoped that every student who has one of these tickets will attend the game. The students, it is reported, have not supported baseball this year as well as they should. There seems to be a tendency among the students to journey out to Antelope park and watch the league teams play rather than turn out and support the university team. Those in charge say that if the students of the university want to have a baseball team they will have to support it better than they have this year.

If the Cornhuskers are able to win this afternoon's game it will aid their percentage column. So far they have won five games and lost eight. Today's game, if won, would raise the number of games won to six, or three-sevenths of the season's games.

The captain of next year's team will be elected next Tuesday. So far there has been no campaigning done and no candidates have been announced. At the present time two men on the team are being discussed in connection with the honor, and it is probable that one of them will be elected.

Missouri Valley Meet.

All of the members of the Cornhusker track team are now in Des Moines. The sprinters and hurdlers left at 2 o'clock Thursday over the Rock Island and the rest of the team took the same train yesterday. Nebraska is expected to make a strong fight for first honors in the valley meet this year and bring more glory to the already brilliant track record for 1910.
