OCTOBER 6, 1910.

The Syracuse football team outplayed the Yale team, but was beaten by a score of 12 to 6, says the Syracuse Daily Orange. Hard luck, Or angeites, you certainly deserve all the sympathy you can get, but wouldn't that headline of Yale, "Outplayed by Varsity, Wins 12 to 6," have looked better, "Syracuse Defeated After a Gruelling Battle"?

Some of Nebraska's freshmen will have to have honors thrust upon them unless a candidate enters the field within the next few days. The class election is scheduled for next Thurs-entrance of one or two students into a class room so disturbs the work of the class that it becomes necessary to be unjust to earnest students and compel them to lose the benefit of a class when they are actually prevented from reaching it. — Minnesota Daily.

FOOTBALL RALLY?

Twice a week the university is to have a half hour set apart for convocation. Once a week this period is used for the address of a notable man upon a subject of common interest. The other half hour in the week is used as a rule for a musical program. Arrangements were made to hold a football rally Thursday. When plans were nearly completed, it was found that the date would have to be changed to Friday, and then at 5 o'clock. Why not Thursday? Simply because a musical program was scheduled for that hour. It later develops that Thursday cannot be used for football rallies at all. If the university students desire to arouse a little enthusiasm they must wait until Friday at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

interested in whatever line of program that may be offered?"

University students demand fair play. Any one can see that 11 o'clock on an occasional Thursday is the best hour for arousing enthusiasm in university affairs as well as university spirit. At that time all the students have a free half hour and nearly all are on the campus. Friday at 5 o'clock is worthless. At that time a hard day's work has been accomplished by all the men and women. Not enough enthusiasm could be aroused to wake up the living, to say nothing of the dead.

Let something be started. We need real spirit here. Let it come in full force and let us work together. Faculty members and students, this is a place for real live people. We want live people who boost for Nebraska and help those who try to boost. Let us know why a few musical programs can not be postponed for a short time because the men and women of this institution want to come out and be somebody with a purpose—the cultivation of university spirit at the right time.

LOCKED DOORS.

The practice of locking class room doors is becoming prevalent among many classes. The system may be all right from certain standpoints, but it has very evident disadvantages. A first hour class, particularly for students who live over town, is often hard to make. While there is no excuse for continued tardiness on the part of any student, it seems rather unjust to have a student lose the benefit of a class and receive an absent mark at the same time because the street cars were delayed or other unpreventable things have happened. If a student is habitually late, have him conditioned in the subject or else dropped from the class.

It is hard to believe that the late

Sad, sad world. Has the university become so bound up in musical affairs that a convocation program of this nature cannot be postponed for a football rally?

The men and women of the university want to know why they cannot have football rallies at 11 o'clock on an occasional Thursday. Football season lasts but a short time. Every man and every woman in this institution with life enough to come to this school is interested in football. Musical programs can be held later in the year, when the football season is over.

The students want but one Thursday in two during the football season, and sometimes not that often. They ask each other, and it is a fair question, "What is convocation?" Is it an assembly of students or is it an entertainment of a few who happen to be
