OCTOBER 22, 1910.

Will fate be so cruel as to decree a victory for Deacon Koehler and his proteges this afternoon? It would be a bit of irony if a former Cornhusker has developed a team that will whip his alma mater.

The Chicago university baseball team has won the fifth straight victory since they landed in Japan. It is a good thing that Chicago has a baseball team that can win at least one game.

The Y. M. C. A. mid-week meeting should not have been turned into a meeting which was semi-political in its nature. A red-hot political speech is all right in its place, but its place is not on the university campus, especially since the ruling of the board of regents prohibits such a move. The Y. M. C. A. has no more privilege in holding political meetings in the assonation. Statistics tend to show that besides educational work, students as a whole are becoming more and more engaged in work in the outside world before their education has been completed. Thus it is that the assimilation of the students into the pursuits of life takes place now without a sensible commotion. They take their places without that breaking in and foolish experimenting that has been the delight of humorists and the joy of writers of current fiction, who were accustomed to portray it all with much elaboration.

In other words, the average university student is becoming more and more a recognized citizen before he has received his degree. His vote, and there are not a few like his among the colleges, is sought after. Student support is desired. It not only has present value, but if the student is brought to one point of view the chances are that he will continue to observe that point of view, and as he is recognized as a coming force in the nation, it is well that he should be started right.

The present trouble is, however, that the majority of the university students do not realize their responsibility and the position that they are holding. More active interest in the affairs of the nation, increased desire for improvement of governmental affairs, and a broader area of activity will do much for the status of the university students, not only now but later in life.

to say about the strength of Denver, merely expressing an opinion that Koehler had a strong team with plenty of fighting spirit. He asserted that he had no complaint to make against the westerners on the ground of alleged professionalism and that the Bears played clean football.

The Mathematics Seminary met last night. Professor Brenke spoke on the subject, "The Transformation of Power Series."
