Every man and woman of the university student body as well as of the faculty body should make an effort to attend the game between the Cornhuskers and the Jayhawkers at Lawrence, Kan., Saturday. The team needs all the support possible from the students of the Scarlet and Cream school. Expenses for the trip will be comparatively light, and as a reward it is expected that those who go will have a chance to see the greatest game played in the Missouri Valley this year. Those who can possibly take the trip should do so. For your sake as well as for the team show K. U. that Nebraska is on the map.

The rally Tuesday showed deficiency along one line. This is that Nebraska needs songs that are songs. We have an excellent field hymn, which was written for the university by Professor Stevens and later was adopted by the athletic board as the official field song of the U. of N. However one hymn is not enough Missouri state offers $1,000 for a state song. Nebraska as a state has no hymn, but nevertheless, when an institution as large as the university continues to do without real university songs then something ought to be done. We have got to have an air for this school, which when the first note is played at chapel, on the athletic field, or on any public occasion every Nebraska man and woman will stand with bared heads await the closing note. A song is a song. A bunch of junk is a bunch of junk. Never let the two be connected. We are willing to publish the words of any song that students may write, but it is far from enjoyable to print a selection similar to the one which appeared in the Nebraskan Tuesday. Parodies on song hits of the season are all right. We need them on special occasions, but even these should have a certain amount of spirit. Send in all contributions and they will be passed upon by the committee. The university needs them. But while you are writing parodies to be used on the football field, see if your love for the old U. of N. will not inspire you to something greater; something more worthy of your efforts; something which is really worth while; and bring forth the words which will ring with the real Scarlet and Cream spirit through and through.
