NOVEMBER 8, 1910.

Nebraska won. In defeating Kansas, the triumph which the students of the Cornhusker school feel cannot be estimated. A year of planning, a year of hard work and the energies of eleven men combined with the enthusiasm of the university students, brought to the Scarlet and Cream school VICTORY.

But in celebrating the glorious achievement of the Nebraska athletes let us remember that in Kansas we have a worthy foe. They played the game like men. They fought like men for the Red and Blue, and when in the hour of Nebraska's glory the Kansans were the first to congratulate the victors.

While Nebraska was desirous of beating Kansas this year above all other teams, she will find that the Jayhawkers are deserving of great credit for their sportsmanship and clean playing. Good losers are as worthy of commendation as good winners. So three cheers for Nebraska and her football team, and three cheers for Kansas and her gridiron heroes.

Kansans were up in the air half the time, never knowing what to look for next.

Neither Kansas nor Nebraska did much with the forward pass. Kansas tried it six times, four of which failed, with small gains for the other two. Nebraska also made only a few attempts, making one gain of ten yards. "King" Cole's last three weeks of work, pounding the science of the new rules into the Cornhuskers, along with a few original plays which the new rules made possible, was what made the victory possible. It was the same as in the game with Denver. The shift plays and open formations were the best ground gainers on the list and were used successfully in rapid succession.

Will They Contest?

There is talk at Kansas of the game being contested. The contention is that Kansas is entitled to a touchdown which the referee refused to allow. It happened like this: Immediately after the Nebraska touchdown Tommy Johnson kicked off, the ball passing the goal line and bounding over the fence. Minor started up the side of the fence to go over after the ball, but he was called back by the referee, who said he had called the ball dead. A Kansas man went around through a gate after the ball and brought it back, claiming a touchdown. The referee refused to allow it. Now there is talk that the Jayhawkers will put up a contest. However, it is not likely that the Kansans will carry out their threat. They have shown in the past that they are good losers when they had to lose, and such a contest would be likely to end in strained relations between the two schools.

The Nebraska students who went with the team were royally treated by their friends at Lawrence, showing that an unusually good spirit exists between the two schools. Saturday night after the game the Nebraska visitors in the Kansas town used every imaginable means of celebrating their victory. Lawrence peoplek new they were in town, at least. The special train left Lawrence at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Everyone Is Satisfied.

Nebraska students are satisfied. When it came to a showdown, and this game certainly was, the Cornhuskers showed that they could turn loose every pound of energy they possessed and could play the game with all their heart, body and soul. Perhaps it was that final send-off the night the team left. Perhaps it was the knowledge that Nebraska students had real loyalty for their team. Anyway, the loyalty had not been misplaced and Coach Cole's Cornhuskers more than made good.

The university of Nebraska urges all young people, who can, to take a four-year high school course and prepare to enter college. Some, however, cannot spend the time required by the high school and college courses. For the benefit of these, the University established, a number of years ago, the

BIG RALLY

The largest, the most enthusiastic and the best rally of years was held at a special convocation Monday morning to greet the triumphant Cornhuskers. Enthusiasm and Nebraska spirit was overflowing and not until everybody had cheered, shouted and screamed to show their happiness could the meeting be called to order.

Chancellor Avery Presides.

Preceding the team to the platform, Chancellor Avery headed the rally into the right channel by giving a short talk on the benefits derived from such a victory as the one over Kansas. In part, he said: "The event Saturday is a big thing to celebrate. It's a good thing for Kansas to get beaten real badly. It's a great thing for her soul to receive an honest drubbing. It's a great thing for Nebraska, for her team, to win a victory of this type, fairly, squarely and honestly. This has been a great moment for our coach, good old "King" Cole. He's stood for the team when dark days were the thickest, when the chances for victory looked pretty slim, when the jibes of 'knockers' were hard to bear. This has been his crowning success, a success which he has dreamed of, and which he knew he must experience in 1910. Persistence like that means something to Nebraska. Again, defeat of Kansas by Nebraska has been a great inspiration to the athletic board. Some of you may not appreciate how they have planned and worked and thought concerning methods for defeating our strongest rival. Their efforts are partially responsible for this victory. Lastly, it was a great thing for the student body to win such a game. Enthusiasm is a main source of triumph, and for this the students were responsible."

"King" Cole is Happy.

"King" Cole was called to the platform and cheered for fair. He declared that he never before felt less embarrassed, and never before felt more like laughing and yelling. In a more serious vein, he pictured some of the details of the game, telling how discouraging it was to get the ball within each reach of a touchdown, and then lose it all, either through a slight "fluke" or a failure to make the required ten yards by a fraction of an inch. He asserted emphatically that an unbiased judge of football could easily see that Nebraska outplayed Kansas at every stage of the game.

Capt. Jack Cheered.

Captain "Jack" Temple was called for, and before he could rise, the big room echoed and re-echoed with the cheers of the students. Captain "Jack" spoke briefly. He said in part: "I am happy today because we beat Kansas. A great deal of credit is due to Coach Cole for his work. The enthusiasm of the students in the torchlight parade made us fight all the harder, and when the telegram which the students sent us was read between halves, it sent us on to greater efforts. To the students in their support of the team great credit is due, for it helped us win the victory."

In concluding, he said the victory of Saturday was the greatest victory that Nebraska had won since he came to the university. His last remark was, "I am proud of our team, and will
