Did it ever occur to you that basketball is next?

Have you received your invitation to the reception Saturday? Better watch the mail close, there may be one for you.

Some students would not take a five dollar bill as a gift if it was studded with diamonds. Instead they would have the diamonds tested and then say that they were afraid the bill was counterfeit. Now that the Nebraskan has been reduced in size, and we have taken out the "leads" and set all the "dope" solid, some poor, misguided individual comes forth with the suggestion that the type is too small.

Now, Reginald, your suggestion is all right, but perhaps it would be a good plan for you to work until 11 o'clock every night writing "dope" to fill the sheet, and then have someone come forth with the idea that you are running too much "dope," to get our point of view.

The "leads" between the lines have been taken out so as to get more news in the small paper. Now if you will ask the reporters who manage to send in a line or two, twice a week, and some other of our news sources to stop bringing in news, then we may be able to have more space between the lines so that you will not have to wear your specs" to read the Daily Nebraskan.

We can appreciate the high opinion many students have of their college, but the efforts of one institution to slap a sister school in the face cannot be appreciated. A news-letter, recently sent out by the Kansas university contains the following:

"Although the Cornhuskers, left Lawrence Saturday with a victory in athletics, there were many from Nebraska who had a feeling that Kansas has a university which even Nebraska might well envy. The students were careful that every Nebraskan saw the university buildings as well as the campus, declaring it to be worthy to be called the second in rank in the country. Nebraska is less fortunate, having only small, cramped grounds.

"If your courses rank with your buildings and campus," said one, "you have the best university in the west." These compliments to the institution went a great way in patching up the feelings of K. U. students over the 6 to 0 defeat by Nebraska.

This is about the rankest piece of fabrication it has been our pleasure to ever read. The author of the above "news article" certainly did not talk with any Nebraska students.

We have investigated this matter, and students of Nebraska who visited Lawrence Saturday, November 5, state that they saw many Kansas students, but not one offered to show them through the buildings located on Mount Oread. Besides, Mr. Jayhawker, the students who journeyed to Lawrence were Nebraska students, not Kansas students, and not one of them would be the men who would confess that Kansas has the best school.

We also extend a kind invitation for any one to visit this university and see our small grounds. We confess they are cramped, but who says they are small? No one but the Kansas author, who perhaps decided he would have to relieve his sufferings in some manner, and to do this originated this piece of fabrication and applied it to his broken heart which resulted when he saw his haughty Jayhawkers humbled by the score of 6 to 0. We believe in fair play, but of all the low down, miserable tricks that could possibly be perpetrated this is the worst. When one university tries to slap another in the face, to relieve its feelings, after being defeated in football.
