NOVEMBER 29, 1910.

Now that the football season is over we perhaps will have to listen to a long line of talk of how it might have happened if something else had been done. In the meantime what would have happened at Kansas City if Lieutenant Thompson had not been field judge?

The Cornhusker banquet and then the football season of 1910 will become a part of the dim and dusty past. But while it may become a mere which cannot be overlooked. In order to bring back to the university for another year one of the men who has made a great name in football, Frank turned down the chances he had of being the 1911 captain and helped the university as a whole in a manner which cannot be wholly estimated.

This act and the work of the men of the whole team this year are worthy of commendation, and the entire university should grasp the hands of the men of the football squad and in this simple manner try to show each man that their efforts were appreciated, and that never before did the men show such inexhaustible spirit and a love for their university as have the men of 1910 led by Captain "Jack" Temple.

THE FORUM.

To the Editor of the Daily Nebraskan:

On Saturday evening of this week, December 3rd, the annual Cornhusker banquet is slated to be held at the Lincoln hotel.

No Nebraska team has ever striven harder to achieve success than the Cornhuskers of 1910. The perfect harmony and the intense "Nebraska spirit" which prevails among the present Missouri Valley champions has never before been equalled. During the season the students accorded loyal support to the team, and the responded by beating Kansas and by administering an unprecedented defeat to Haskell. In that game the players by memory, it will be recognized as one of the most brilliant that Nebraska has ever had. Here's to the season of 1911 and may it shine as bright if not brighter than the record made this fall.

CAPTAIN SHONKA.

As a fitting close to the football season of 1910, the men of the squad who won their letter this year met and elected the man who would lead them into victory during the coming year. In electing Sylvester Shonka captain of the 1911 football team, the men of the squad showed again that remarkable spirit of good fellowship and true love of the U. of N. that has characterized their work this year. That the selection of the 1911 captain fell on a man worthy to bear the title cannot be disputed, and the school as a whole bows in recognition of the worth of the man who has been elected to the highest position in university athletics.

While the praises of the selection of the captain of 1911 are being sung, let us remember that there is still one man on the team who deserves recognition which cannot be alone measured in words. That man is Owen Frank. His second year on the team has been one of great glory and in his efforts to win victory for the team and for his school he has won the love of the entire undergraduate body. Owen was the man who was selected to be captain of the 1911 team by all the students, and when he side-stepped his chances at the great honor, and in turn nominated Shonka for the position of captain, he performed an act of brotherliness and true manhood the fierceness of their attacks, by their impenetrable defense, by their never-slackening spirited play, put the finishing touches to a season's contribution to Nebraska spirit that will be long enduring.

The team rolled up against Haskell a score of 119. There ought to be four red-blooded Nebraska men at that banquet Saturday for every point the team made against the Indians.

Are we loyal Cornhuskers?
