FRESHMEN DON MORTAR BOARDS

Students in Library Shocked by First Year Students.

Marching solemnly into the university library Tuesday morning, five freshmen girls belonging to the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority shocked the staid and dignified seniors by wearing the mortar board caps, the sign of senior superiority which is supposed to adorn only the heads of the fourth year girls.

A wave of suppressed excitement swept around the room and not to allow any one to miss the cause of the "oh's" and "whys" that came from between the set teeth of the upper class the freshmen marched out into the hall. Returning again with all their assumed dignity, the freshmen received the threatening looks and glances of the upper class girls with smiles and suppressed laughter.

No longer able to permit such frivolous treatment of the signs of superiority, a senior member of the sorority marched across the room and seizing one of the mortar boards, pulled it off the head of the resisting freshman, much to the joy of the students who sat watching the struggle. This affair gave a serious appearance to the joke and the freshmen girls soon beat a hasty retreat, where they could discuss the little affair by themselves and have no piercing glances from the upper classmen to reproach them.

W. T. Elmore, 1896, A. M. 1897, will give an illustrated lecture on "India" at the First Baptist church next Sunday evening.

Its a Kensington!

Kensington Suits and Overcoats command recognition and quick appreciation.

Perhaps its the perfect fit and the exquisite tailoring.

Perhaps its simply the unusual patterns and attractive coloring of the fabrics we've chosen.

At any rate the result is the same--Kensington Clothes are comparable to nothing else in Lincoln.
