DRAMATIC CLUB WILL PLAY

"MICE AND MEN" TO BE PRESENTED BY STUDENTS.

PLAY WILL BE GIVEN SATURDAY

STRONG CAST HAS BEEN PICKED FOR THE DRAMA.

To Be a Costume Affair—Miss Howell is Coach—Will Be Given in the Temple Theater—An English Sketch.

The University Dramatic club will give its first play of the year Saturday evening, January 14, when Mrs. Ryley's play, "Mice and Men," will be presented for the first time in Lincoln. It is a clever four-act play picturing the life and surroundings of English society at the time of the revolution. As the title would suggest, a carefully worked out plot is carried throughout, which is strengthened by sallies of wit and humor, and touches of romance and pathos.

Strong Cast.

As is the usual custom, a strong cast has been selected to represent the club, and it has been working faithfully since the middle of October in perfecting and living the characters assigned to the various members. For the most part the cast is one familiar to University students.

The leads will be taken by Julia Nagle, Nye Morehouse, and Yale Holland. The part of "Peggy" is one of the strongest ever presented by the club, and it is being ably played by Miss Nagle, whose work in "The Professor's Love Story" and the Ivy Day play of last year, while of a different nature than her present role, will be remembered as being both finished and artistic. Nye Morehouse as "Mark Embury" makes a most acceptable middle-aged philosopher, whose ambition in life is to marry for the sake of his race.

Yale Holland makes a delightful young lover who in the end usurps his uncle's prerogative and captures the fair one for his own. He has been seen several times before in Dramatic club plays, and each time has carried off his part well.

Cast Well Placed.

The rest of the cast is well placed. Katherine Yates displays considerable talent in her portrayal of "Joanna Goodlack." Upon her falls most of the heavy work and she gets away with her part most creditably. Fred McConnell falls into the role of "Joanna's" innocent husband, much to her enjoyment, and his own sorrow. He has a clever part, with several snatches of humor in it. Florence Hostettler makes a motherly housekeeper, while Margaret Kunkel plays the double role of "Molly" and the "Matron" with versatility. Earl Sage and M. O. Bates take the low comedy parts of "Peter" and the "Beadle," respectively.

The play is a costume affair and the best that Lieben in Omaha can offer has been secured. Appropriate scenery and properties have been selected and in all the play promises to be one of the best the Dramatic club has ever put on. Miss Howell of the Elocution department is supervising the coaching, and her work is being rewarded by steady improvement at each successive rehearsal.
