HOLLAND IS A CANDIDATE

SENIOR LAWS PUT THIRD MAN IN RACE.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT IS NOW ON

PEARSE AND ROGERS AT IT IN JUNIOR CLASS.

Sophomore Pot Begins to Boil, but No Candidates Are Announced—Sophomore Meeting Today.

Interest in the senior election was revived Tuesday morning when the campaign between A. B. Amberson and H. C. Hathaway was changed into a three-cornered fight with the entrance of Yale Holland of Lincoln.

His participation in the contest in the senior class was announced Tuesday morning after a meeting of the members of the senior law class, when the political situation was reviewed, and the class decided to support Holland and run him as the senior law candidate. He had no idea of running until the class literally forced him into the race.

The support of the laws for Holland splits the race now, and neither candidate knows exactly what his chances are. Amberson has the support of the senior engineers, and Hathaway many of the fraternity men and sorority girls. Holland is expected to take many votes here, as he is also a fraternity man, being a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. He is a six year law student, having received his A. B. degree in 1909. He has always been prominent in class affairs, and the entire campaign in the senior class now takes on a new appearance.

The Junior Contest.

The race in the junior class between H. B. Pearse and D. M. Rogers has taken on a definite shape with friends of both candidates working hard.

It was announced yesterday that Pearse was a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. This was a typographical error. Mr. Pearse is a member of Sigma Tau, the honorary engineering fraternity.

Soph Bee is Buzzing.

The political situation in the sophomore class has not yet become exciting. Several strong men are reported to be considering the race. They are said to have their affections turned toward the presidential chair, and no doubt a very few days will see the rise of the political suns, moons and stars of the second year class.

The date for the second year class election will be set at the meeting tomorrow. An attempt will be made to get the campaign out of the way before examination week. This attempt will be made because some leading politicians have expressed themselves as opposed to any sort of labor during this week of mental agony.

Sophomore Meeting.

A challenge from the University of Omaha will be read at the sophomore class meeting on Thursday morning. The direct content of this mysterious challenge has not been made public, and there is no small amount of curiosity displayed as to just what the challenge is for. The meeting will be held Thursday morning at 11:30 in Memorial hall.

President Sears has announced that all committee crairmen should be on hand to account for the charges with which the class has entrusted them. There will be a report from the inter-

WITHDRAW FROM CONFERENCE OR SOUND DOOM OF ATHLETICS

Editor of the Daily Nebraskan:

To say that the "students are gloomy" in regard to the recent action of the Missouri Valley conference is indeed underestimating their attitude. Ever since the abolition of summer baseball was announced the student body, especially those interested in the national game, have been enraged over what they consider an act of sheer "mollycoddleism."

Do we want to abolish baseball at Nebraska? Most certainly no! Well that is exactly what we will have to do if we abide by that beautiful rule adopted at Des Moines. We might be able to play "one-old-cat" with Kansas or Ames, but when it comes to real baseball it will be a thing of the past.

Any man who is good enough to make a Nebraska baseball team has played on some team where admission was charged to see them play.

So at Nebraska we are on two horns of the dilemma. Either we have a poor class of baseball or no baseball at all. Thus either way we turn we are met with the same sad feeling that baseball is a dead proposition at Nebraska.

In yesterday's Nebraskan you ask us to give the new rule a trial. In other words you ask the students of Nebraska to give up baseball. By the same logic you will soon ask us to simply sit around and watch some idealists kill other athletics.

I believe that the action of the Missouri Valley conference especially in relation to summer baseball, should be demanded or Nebraska should step out of the Missouri Valley conference. The student body will not see athletics die at Nebraska.

class athletic board members, the indoor-meet manager, the treasurer and the chairmen of all standing committees.

SUPT. CRABTREE SPEAKS.

Discusses Future Education at Convocation Tuesday.

J. W. Crabtree, state superintendent of instruction, spoke briefly at convocation Tuesday morning. He compared the work of the students in the high schools of today with what he hopes to see developed in the future. He stated that the aim of the secondary schools would be to develop men and women of the future for service. That they would not be trained for business, for the farm, or for professional work will be the new idea, but that education would bring them into a sphere of usefulness which would be a broader aim than they had at the present time. This aim would affect the courses taught in the secondary schools to the extent that more industrial would be installed, such as manual training and domestic science, and in this way the schools would have a broader foundation for the work of the university.

BADLY FRIGHTENED.

Elmer Dill Faints When Called Upon to Recite.

When called before the class to lead in the discussion Elmer Dill became frightened and fainted Tuesday morning. Professor Caldwell had noticed that Dill was unnerved and was standing nearby. The professor rushed to his assistance and caught the unconscious student in his arms as Dill was falling backwards to the floor.

The diminutive professor was nearly overbalanced, but was relieved of his burden by Harmon, the big football guard, who carried Dill into the office and assisted in restoring him to consciousness. The incident created considerable excitement among the students. Dill soon recovered from the faint and at noon felt none the worse for the experience.

JUNIOR PLAY PICKED.

Class Committee Select Production to Be Given March 18.

"A Message from Mars" is the title of the play to be given by the junior class March 18. This play will be presented as one of the features of junior week, coming the day after the junior promenade.

A meeting of the members of the junior class was held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock in U106. Mr. Scott, who has been selected to coach the cast for the play, talked to the members of the class and explained the different parts of the production. Try-outs for the play will be held Saturday, January 14, at which time the members of the entire cast will be picked and work will be commenced at once to get the play into presentable shape by the latter part of March.

THURSDAY CONVOCATION.

Musical Program to Be Given by Wesleyan Talent.

Thursday convocation will be devoted to a musical program to be given in the Temple auditorium at 11 o'clock by Clemens Movius and Johannes Magendanz, both of Wesleyan conservatory.

The program is as follows: "She Alone Charmeth My Sadness," from "The Queen of Sheba". Gounod C. Movius.

The Catholic Students' club will give a dance Friday evening at Fraternity hall.

GENERAL DUDLEY IS DEAD

FORMER NEBRASKA COMMANDANT DIES IN NEW YORK.

STARTED UNI CADET BATTALION

MILITARY SCIENCE DEPARTMENT RESULT OF HIS EFFORTS.

General Dudley Leaves Many Lincoln Friends Who Recall His Efforts to Aid Nebraska Which Were Opposed.

Following the receipt of a telegram late Monday afternoon, the sad news was given to university faculty members and students that General E. S. Dudley, formerly commandant of the university cadet battalion, had died at his home in Johnstown, N. Y. He succumbed to a sudden attack of pneumonia, living only three days after the first appearance of the disease.

Services for Nebraska.

The announcement of General Dudley's death was indeed a shock to the older class of Nebraska students. No individual man probably played a larger part in the formation of early Nebraska history than did General Dudley. It was he who established the first foundation for the University of Nebraska military science department, and put it on a plane upon which to grow and extend to its present flourishing condition.

The details of General Dudley's service for the university in this regard are remarkably interesting. How he implored the state legislature to appropriate funds for the erection of Grant memorial hall; how he attempted to establish the military department in direct opposition to many professors and faculty members; how he worked for the installation of uniform drill suits for the cadets; and how he labored with the students and endured their disrespectful attitude and insolence—then a source of much genuine pride—are all pertinent facts regarding the general's career at the University of Nebraska.

General Dudley was also a man of literary attainments. Some of his efforts along this line are especially noteworthy to Nebraska students because of their historical interest. His compilation and edition of civil war records, which were stored in the state house basement, was a valuable service to the state as well as the university. He edited a small volume containing accounts of Nebraska men in the war of the rebellion, the records of which are still a source of useful information to Nebraskans. He also completed several books on military law, and at the time of his death was contemplating the edition of a complete history of the formation of the military department of the university. General Dudley served two terms as commandant at Nebraska.

The death of the former commandant will be mourned by many of the older Lincolnites. While in Lincoln he developed an extensive friendship, and was it not for a particular coterie of friends who stood by him, its efforts to form the Nebraska military department would probably have failed temporarily. He was a prominent Mason, and founded the Scottish rite in Lincoln. He was always active in church circles while in this city, being a vestryman in Holy Trinity church. He will be buried at Johnstown, the city in which he resided at the time of his death.
