A NEBRASKA DIRECTORY?

The Harvard alumni have just issued a directory that is new in many respects to any similar publication, for it contains the name of every man who has been a student at that institution. The book has cost a great deal of patient labor. It was necessary to make many searches for missing men, and a great deal of time was required. But the result is surely worthy of the effort.

Why should Nebraska not publish such a directory? Its benefits would be beyond estimate. To be sure there are alumni directories, but what Nebraska needs is a directory that contains the names of all students who have ever taken work at the university. Some of the most loyal and useful men in the outside force of the university are men who have never still quartered on the third floor of University hall.

The increase in attendance in this department makes it imperative that room must be found for the lawyers very soon. The class rooms are already overcrowded and the library is far too small. The solution is not difficult—a law building.

EXPLANATION NEEDED.

The refusal of the junior law class to sign the "honor system" indicates that some of the students are unwilling to hurry its adoption. When the proposition that they might take their examinations in the library, conditioned that they sign the statement submitted on behalf of the instructors, was submitted it was unanimously voted down and the class decided to go to the Temple.

One of two things is evident, either the honor system is not understood by the students, or else they are against it. The prevailing opinion is that it means one student shall act as a spy upon another. This is the point of difference and it must be explained before an understanding will be reached.

Sunshine and warm weather follow every little cold snap, and we are always glad. Something disappeared during the examinations, but it has again come forth and is more loath to leave than ever. No matter what weather prevails a fog still hangs about the south gate. The wreathes of smoke till are visible to the eye from a distance and every wind bears the odors of tobacco over the city. Ye gods, what an advertisement!

Each one is anxious to know whether the other got through, what his grade was, how he answered this and how he answered that. Now it is a good thing to be so interested in the class work of the university and may urge you on in the future. But would you not be willing to do everyone a favor by meeting your friend some evening when you can have plenty of time to talk? It would be such a relief not to have the hallways blocked taken a degree. They are good loyal Nebraskans, men whom we are glad to meet at any time. The call of the great world outside the campus was irresistible and they went forth not without education but without diplomas. Everyone wants to know where these men are today and how to find them. Nebraska must have a directory like that of Harvard.

SPELL OF CRAMPS!

A year ago when the law students were compelled to take their examinations in the Temple, seated on camp chairs with a piece of pasteboard for a table, there came forth great wailings and many cries. Some kind ear must have heard for when the last semester had rolled by the solons were allowed to brief their knowledge while seated in comfortable chairs. But again fate frowned and the poor "laws" are still trying to straighten out their corporeal bodies. The terrible camp chairs and pasteboard tables have cast their spell of cramps over the legal victims.

Why must this all be? Again it is the cry of "no room," and true enough that is what is the matter. In spite of the fact that those who have gone forth from this department are bringing fame to Nebraska, in spite of the fact that those who are still within the school are "so lawless," they are by these little mutual admiration societies.

We are sorry that the basketball team had to lose to Ames at all. It seems like the very irony of fate. We have the men who can play, and if someone can just discover the "hoodoo" which pursues Nebraska's basketball team their fame will never die. Kansas says she is going to take both games and has never interviewed the Cornhuskers at all.
