ket, but fought hard and had the honors over Perkhiser on the jump. Frank played a steady game in the guard position and was the only Cornhusker not called for fouling. On the free throws Hutchinson landed six out of nine chances, while Parker took advantage of seven out of eleven.

Parker might easily be called the star for Missouri, dropping the ball in the basket from a distance whenever given an unguarded chance. Edwards made one long throw that was really sensational. At one time it was necessary to take out time for Cohen, whose head came into sharp contact with the floor.

Cherrington kept the game well in hand and soon eliminated the roughness to which there was a strong tendency on both sides, the score being close and each team fighting hard to win.

TICKETS FAST GOING.

Committee Says Junior Prom is Very Popular.

The junior prom committee announces that practically all the tickets for the dance have been taken. With the prom two weeks and a half distant, this is a very creditable showing. Since the interfraternity rule was passed limiting fraternities to one formal party in two years, the attendance at the two university formals, the junior and senior prom, has materially increased.

PORTAGE BEATS Y. M. C. A.

Takes Closely Contested Game by Score of 25 to 23.

After holding the lead until nearly the middle of the last half the Lincoln Y. M. C. A. finally let the touring team from Portage, Wis., defeat them 25 to 23. The tourists did not have much ginger and took many long chances for baskets. The Y. M. C. A. played a faster and a cleaner game, besides being more sure of goals. Portage seemed to have the big end of the refereeing in the last part of the game. Anderson made more baskets, but Sammy Waugh played a better game than any man on either side. The rough work of the visitors did not bother him much and his guard was unable to leave him to run up and play his usual game beneath the basket.

GLEES HARD AT IT.

Fraternities Reserve Sections for Popular Show Friday Night.

The Glee club rehearsal last night was most successful and, although there are still two nights left for practice, the program is now ready for presentation. The minstrel part of the program is being given much attention by the boys, and it promises to be one of the classiest comedy songfests ever put on at the Oliver. The funny songs and witty local jokes which will be aimed at prominent personages are, to say the least, mighty clever. The yacht scene from "Brewster's Millions" is sure to make a hit. The quartet has perfected several new and catchy little ditties which are not intended for encores but will be sung on the regular program. The string quartet, composed of Ray Eastbrook, A. F. Nelson, Jay Sayville and E. J. Bonner, will furnish the best of popular and classical selections to add to the enjoyment of the evening.

A scramble for the box seats is anticipated, as this is the sort of a show which makes the box and logue popular with students. Several fraternities are going to attend en masse and show their colors. Whole blocks of seats are being reserved for some organizations.
