KANSAS MEN PLAY POKER.
 Sunflower State Professors Discover High Finance Scheme.
 The faculty of the University of Kansas is greatly scandalized by the discovery that several of the students have been spending unusual amounts of money and that the money was acquired by skill at playing poker.
 An investigation was begun and Prof. Carl Becker, head of the disciplinary committee of the faculty, now has the names of more than thirty-five players among the students. He says that he has not yet obtained the names of all the players, but is adding a name or two to the list every day.
 As a result, the devotees of the great American game among the students are exhibiting alarm and the purring of the figurative "kitty" is no longer heard in the quarters where the poker players used to congregate.
