 Some Lincoln people are not clear yet in their own minds as to what "university removal" means. One lady was inquiring of a student as to whether they would move the buildings out to the farm bodily, or tear them down and transfer the parts, to be set up again.
 The class in C. E. 6A are gathering data for the construction of complete plots of the university campus, the Temple, the school of music, and the athletic field. The work of preparing these plots will extend over the rest of the semester and will constitute the practical work of the course.
 The Faculty Men's Dinner Club held a dinner at the Lindell hotel last night. About seventy members attended the dinner. The guests of honor were M. P. McArdle, an architect of St. Louis, and Dr. J. G. Lipman, state bacteriologist of New Jersey, who is delivering a series of lectures at the farm.

To the Editor of the Nebraskan:
 The arrival of the "hook worm" has also been accompanied by the spring fever germ of tennis. The university courts have been crowned to their utmost during the last week, while a few unable to get located in a part of one of the three courts have contented themselves with a game of solitaire, practicing their favorite strokes on the library walls. It was only last year that sufficient interest was aroused to support three courts successfully, but judging from the tennis manifestation already made this year, several other courts may be necessary. For a school of four thousand students, three tennis courts is certainly a meager supply, especially so if all the available material be exercised. Wesleyan university at University Place has six courts equally as good as those at Nebraska, and some a great deal better. Additionally, although Wesleyan has a registration of less than a thousand students, it may be observed that the quality of their tennis teams is always commensurate with the "tennis spirit." If all of the possible candidates for the Nebraska varsity team were admitted to the club and given licenses to play, it is needless to say that "solitaire" would become the prevalent "work-out."
