MARCH 18, 1911.

Are you going to the junior play tonight? It is well worth your while, and there will be no disappointments.

GO TO OMAHA.

The date of the great indoor track meet at Omaha is April 1, and that same day comes on Saturday. Nebraska is going to be represented. The Cornhuskers are to compete with Michigan and Kansas in a relay race that is calculated to be the most exciting of the events. Michigan has a strong team which compares favorably with those of the great colleges of the

has. But that is not sufficient. We must have action. It does no good to go on complaining about the strict rules that have been outgrown and are now a detriment instead of a benefit. Nebraska, Kansas, Ames, Coe and Drake have no opposition to a reform. The majority want it, and why can we not have it? Iowa, the big obstacle in the way of revision, is thinking of withdrawing from the conference and staying permanently with the Big Eight. At the next meeting of the conference there should be some action taken which will save the game.

It is ridiculous, to say the least, that the great American game which has none of the objections raised to football should be put out of commission because a few insist on an old obsolete rule. Baseball is a practical thing and should be dealt with in a practical way. Just let a few of those theories that have proven miserable failures be discarded. Get down to common sense and save the game. Draw the line of eligibility as concerns baseball in the right place and when the spring of 1912 rolls around intercollegiate baseball will again be flourishing in the Missouri Valley.

So many are getting tired of work and wish that they could live a whole week or a month without having any labors to think of. How strange they all wish that awful routine of class attendance could be abolished. But such is the tendency of human nature, to always deplore present circumstances. Those who are taking a forced vacation accompanied by the smallpox, are wishing the opposite. Cheer up, you're lucky after all.

FORESTRY CLASS TO THE WEST.

Eight Members Take Up Field Work in Nebraska.

Eight members of the forestry class, F. C. Carlson, R. Dick, Clarence Korstines, T. Krueger, W. Hurtt, F. Roberts, L. Atkins, and G. F. Stultz, left Wednesday for Halsey, Neb., where they will engage in field work.

east. If this one contest is won it will bring fame to the university.

Now this date fortunately occurs on Saturday and there should be a large delegation from Lincoln attend the meet. On account of the rulings of the conference no more Nebraska football games can be played in the Gate city. Why not have an excursion at the time of the indoor meet? It will help the boys to win, if there are a lot of students along to cheer. While rooting may be all hot air, it, nevertheless, goes a great way toward winning athletic contests.

BASEBALL.

Minnesota and South Dakota universities have declared that playing summer baseball does not make their men ineligible to play on the varsity team. This action in itself is nothing more than an expression of the sentiment of the whole college world. Promoters have found that they must have the best possible team in the school in order to make a financial success of the game. Those who have watched the progress of college athletics and especially baseball are arriving at the conclusion that the present rules are killing a game that the people want to stay. A number of the Missouri Valley schools have taken the stand in about the same way that Minnesota

Halsey is in the middle of the sandhills of Thomas county, where the government has a forest reserve, set apart by President Roosevelt. Experiments are being conducted to test the feasibility of growing pine trees in the sand hills. The forestry boys expect to be gone a week or ten days.
