A BLACK DERBY ROMANCE.

Uncle Sam Returns Friend and Much Joy Follows.

A black derby hat was delivered through the United States postoffice yesterday at Station A. It was not exactly a legal transaction, in that the hat did not receive the stamp of the cancelling machine, but the university man, who received the parcel through the lost and found department, seemed as glad to get it as if he had met an old college chum after twenty-five years of life out in the cruel world.

The hat had a history and it had experienced trials and tribulations galore. In some unknown manner it became separated from the pate of its master a few days ago, the unceremonious divorce taking place within the walls of University hall. As a result of the divorce the elements became somewhat disturbed, and many lamentations were heard. The separation was apparently forever—but in some mysterious and miraculous manner the derby managed to show up in one of the recitation rooms used by the French department.

An instructor found the long lost friend carefully stowed away in a corner. She gave it to the janitor, the janitor gave it to the postmistress and the postmistress delivered it to the owner. The superintendent of the university station, who is supposed to know about everything there is to know about students, by consulting the initials "B. M. C.," located the frantic man at his fraternity house. He called without delay.

TO ATTEND MEETING OF DEANS.

Professor Davis Will Take in Gathering at Chicago Also.

Dean Davis will leave the first of next week for Ann Arbor, where he will attend a meeting of deans to be held at the University of Michigan on March 23 and 24. He will also represent Nebraska at the meeting of the North Central association in Chicago on March 24 and 25. The first represents a gathering of deans of colleges from all the great universities of the middle west. Eastern colleges also take a part. The work of the dean in meeting the requirements of his office are discussed along with other matters of particular interest to education. Every large college in the north Mississippi valley will have a delegate at Chicago in the association gathering. Professor Davis will return to Lincoln the first of the following week.

NEW MEMBERS PROGRAM.

Palladians Watch Recent Acquisitions Perform.

Last night a "new members" program was given at the regular meeting of the Palladian Literary society. The entertainment was clever and interesting. While there was no special intention of having things conform to the day, yet one present could easily tell that the occasion was St. Patrick's birthday. Those who took part in the entertainment acquitted themselves with credit and received much applause. On the whole the program was original as well as good.

DECIDE ON ALL-YEAR COACH.

University Man May Be Chosen by Temple High School.

The State high school has decided to have an all-year coach, and a movement is on foot to raise sufficient funds to hire a man. It is expected that a university student will be chosen for the work, and although no definite arrangements have been made it is expected that a choice will be made soon. Besides the salary the coach will receive credit at the university. About $65 has been raised so far, which is highly satisfactory to the committee, as it has only been working a few days.

BEAUTIFUL VESPER PROGRAM.

Fair Sized Audience Hears Excellent Musical Selections.

Pleasant vesper services were enjoyed by a fair attendance at convocation yesterday afternoon. The music by the string quartet was especially beautiful. The chorus has been growing and constant practice is making it one of the best musical organizations in the university. The number rendered by the quartet was also well received and appreciated.

The following is the program:

Strings and Organ.
Intermezzo—"Mascagni."
Hymn.
Opening sentences.
Gloria Patria.
Male quartet—"Trust in God."
Responsive readings.
Strings and Organ.
Largo—Handel.
Evening prayer.
