STRENUOUS CAMPAIGN CLOSES THIS MORNING

SOPHOMORE CLASS WILL ELECT CORNHUSKER MEN.

WINNERS ARE STILL IN DOUBT

Bitter Fight Being Waged for Manag- ing Editor and Grave Seniors Lend a Hand.

At 11:30 this morning in Memorial hall the class of 1913 will settle its last political struggle of the year. The Cornhusker candidates and their friends have been busy canvassing votes during the week and the outcome is doubtful. In some cases the activity has been so strong that even upper classmen have been lending their support to some of the candidates, and it was no uncommon thing yesterday to see a grave-senior engaged in intense argument with a sophomore voter.

Much Electioneering.

The campaign for business manager has been less strenuous than for the managing editor. Nevertheless both men have been far from inactive and last night neither was willing to give out any statement as to what the result would be, except to assert that it would be no walk-away for anybody.

Campaigning has never been of such a strenuous nature as that of the past few days. The politicians seemed to pair off and go by twos to catch the sophomore who did not care to be bothered with questions regarding his vote. Because of this formidable organization the doors and halls of the buildings were frequently blocked by those who found a slight opportunity to extol the virtues of their favorite men.

Ralph C. Sweeley and Dean D. McBrien are candidates for the position of managing editor.

R. C. Sweeley.

Ralph C. Sweeley, Alpha Theta Chi, Omaha high school, '07, is an academic. Athletic editor of the Nebraskan one semester, member of the students' publication board and of the Cornhusker and Nebraskan auditing committees of the same organization, chairman of class Cornhusker committee appointed by the class president. In high school he was class editor of "The Register."

D. D. McBrien.

Dean D. McBrien, Kappa Tau Epsilon, Platform club, Lincoln high school '09, is an academic. In Lincoln high school he was assistant editor of the "Advocate." Freshman year in the university—member of interclass debating board, class secretary, class historian for 1910 Cornhusker. Sophomore year—member of class Cornhusker committee, class historian for 1911 Cornhusker and sophomore class representative on the Cornhusker staff by appointment of the editor-in-chief.

The candidates for business manager are Joe M. Fitzgerald and Harry Coffee.

J. M. Fitzgerald.

Joe M. Fitzgerald, Phi Delta Theta, Kearney high school, '10, is a first year law. In his junior year at Kearney high school he was business manager of the Kearney high school annual book and in his senior year was editor of the same book.

H. B. Coffee.

Harry B. Coffee, Alpha Tau Omega, Platform club, Chadron high school, is a first year law. He was editor-in-chief of the Chadron high school paper, a member of class basketball team and president of the class of 1913 in second semester of freshman year.

ENDEAVORS TO INSPIRE PUPILS.

Professor Mays Tells of Plan by Which Much is Accomplished.

Some of his experiences as a teacher and how he endeavored to inspire his pupils was the substance of a large part of Prof. V. G. Mays' talk at the mid-week meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. Professor Mays told how he always tried to get his pupils to realize that their efforts were for their own good, and by following this plan, he found that they could accomplish much more. His address was interesting and heard by a large audience. Many who intend to take up teaching found his remarks decidedly helpful. Professor Mays is principal of the Lincoln high school. The subject of his talk was "Advantages of the Teachers' Profession."

SENATE AGAINST EXTENSION

BY VOTE OF 18 TO 14 GOES ON RECORD FOR ABOLISHING DEPARTMENT.

The senate yesterday afternoon was discussing appropriations, but did not get so far as to put in an item for university maintenance. This can be done when the bill is further considered.

The house by a close vote yesterday killed a motion to reconsider their action on the Carnegie teachers' fund. A spirited contest was engaged in, but the motion lost by a majority of five or six.

Senator Tibbets' resolution against the university extension department passed the senate yesterday afternoon by a vote of 18 to 14. Senator Tibbets has long had a grudge against this department, and his resolution demanded that no funds be spent for its support.

Tibbets said the department was not producing results, and it only afforded an opportunity for political speakers to spread political doctrines. Other senators argued differently, but the resolution prevailed.

As the date for introducing bills had passed, Tibbets introduced his motion as a joint resolution, and it will have no final effect, only in so far as it records the sentiment of the legislators.

EXPERT GIVES LECTURE.

W. H. Mast of the Government Service Teaches Forestry Students.

W. H. Mast of the government forestry service is in Lincoln giving a course of lectures for the forestry students. It has been a yearly practice of the forestry department to secure experts from the government service to come here, fresh from the field, and give lectures to the department. This plan is said to have been productive of satisfactory results. Mr. Mast has been working most recently in the government preserve near Gunnison, Colo.

NOTICE.

An important meeting of the members of the senior and junior Ivy day committees will be held Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

C. J. LORD,
Chairman.

MISS WARTON COACHES UNIONS.

"Mr. Bob" Is Full of Fun and Should Appeal to Lovers of Cats.

Miss Alpha Warton, who is coaching the Temple high school senior class play, is also coaching the Unions, who will put on "Mr. Bob" at the Temple tomorrow night. Miss Warton is a prominent member of the Dramatic club, and has a part in the play that will be presented Saturday night. Daily rehearsals have been held for some time. "Mr. Bob" is full of fun, and will appeal especially to old maids who are fond of cats.

HARMON'S TALK INTERESTING.

Will Lecture on Passion Play Itself Next Tuesday.

Rev. H. H. Harmon's talk on the Passion Play, which he gave Tuesday evening in the Y. W. C. A. rooms at the Temple, was extremely interesting as well as instructive. Rev. Harmon talked about the general surroundings and setting of the play, and having been a spectator at the production lately in Oberammergau, he was able to give a vivid description of the country. He will lecture again Tuesday, April 11, on the play itself.

FOREST CLUB CONVENES.

Addresses by Richard Phillips and W. F. Mast Interesting.

The regular meeting of the Forest club was held last evening. Richard Phillips, one of the party of students who recently spent a month investigating lumber conditions in the lake states, gave an address on "Logging in Wisconsin." W. F. Mast, who is connected with the United States forest service, also spoke on "Red Cedar for Pencil Wood in Florida."

ATTRACTS FAMED SCIENTIST.

Research Work by Prof. F. O. Barker Is Highly Complimented.

In a recent number of the "Archives de Parasitologie," published in Paris and the leading periodical of the world in the field of parasitology, Professor Blanchard, a helminthologist of international reputation, calls attention in a highly complimentary way to a recent piece of research from the zoological laboratory of the University of Nebraska, done by Dr. F. D. Barker and soon to be published in the Archives.

COMMITTEE IS PREPAR- ING IVY DAY PROGRAM

ADMISSION WILL BE CHARGED TO AFTERNOON EVENTS.

PRIZE FOR BEST CLASS SONG

Morning Entertainment at the City Campus Will Be Free—Glee Club May Sing.

Several new features will be injected into the Ivy day program this year. Wednesday, May 3, has been set aside for the celebration and no classes will be held during the entire day. The committee has been making arrangements for the details of the program and has its work well under way.

The morning program will be held on the city campus and will be open to everyone without charge. The first number will be the singing of the class song, which will probably be performed by the Glee club. Then the Ivy day oration will be delivered by J. T. Votava, and the class poem will be read by the author, who has not yet been appointed by the president of the senior class. This will be followed by the presentation of the class gift to the university, which is going to be something worth while and which will remain long to remind coming generations of the gratitude of 1911 for her alma mater.

In Former Years.

Last year the lights which now illumine the entrance to the library were donated. In 1909 the gift consisted of the fountain between the Administration building and the library; in 1908, the statue of Demosthenes in the Temple; in 1907, the sun dial; and in 1906, a stone seat. The gift will probably be presented by the chairman of the gift committee and accepted on behalf of the university by Chancellor Avery.

Planting of the Ivy.

The planting of the ivy beside one of the new buildings by President Amberson and the senior class will then follow. The last event of the morning will be the May-pole dance by the senior girls, which is one of the most impressive happenings of the day. The daisy chain which was introduced last year will be used again this spring.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the students will again assemble at the state farm. An athletic meet between the four classes will be held first and the winners presented with the large trophy cup which was won by the freshmen last year. This will be followed by the annual baseball game between the Iron Sphinx and the Spikes.

Innocents Announce.

Promptly at 5 o'clock the new innocents will be announced from a platform which will be erected beside one of the buildings. No one knows who is to be selected, and the active innocents, garbed in their red gowns and large hoods, move about through the throng and take one by one the thirteen chosen juniors and lead them to the platform. An address will then be made by an innocent alumnus. Professor Fossler spoke last year in the absence of Chancellor Avery, who was unavoidably detained from keeping the engagement.

At about 6 o'clock a lunch will be served to all those present and a concert by the band will be given imme-
