APRIL 8, 1911.

Now for the bulldogs and other canine varieties which frequent the campus! Thursday a university man had his hand lacerated in attempting to part two of the animals which had engaged in a fight. One of these bulldogs has become so numerous that he is a nuisance. Not a football game or any other event can take place without someone must bring his mascot or guardian, whichever it happens to be. These animals have their place, and they do not belong at the university. If they can not be kept at home they should be turned over to the dog thing every one should have found out long ago. Concentration is the basis of his unusual success. When this man works at one thing he works at it and nothing else. His whole force is concentrated on the single task before him. All other matters are for that time put out of the range of his thought. When the task is finished he is ready for another. It is these men who are leaders in our school, and they are the ones who try to put as much into the university as they take away.

There are many who try to entertain a thousand ideas in their heads at one time. Consequently there is a jumbled conglomeration that is almost equivalent to nothing. These people jump from one thing to another and it is no uncommon thing to see them frustrated and worried. Every little thing bothers them and they spend more time fidgeting about than it would require the other type of men to overcome the obstacle.

COLD FEET?
(By request.)

The students say before the dance, "Away, ye cabmen—never more." But when the fatal night arrives, The cabs are called—as days of yore.

"MR. BOB" A SUCCESS.

Unions Stage a Good Performance at Temple Theater Last Night.

The Union Literary society last night successfully staged the comedy "Mr. Bob" before a full house in the Temple theater. The parts were very well taken and the audience enjoyed the production immensely.

The cast was as follows:
Marion Bryant—"Mr. Bob".....
.....Grace Richards
Katherine Luke.....Lois Smith
Phillip Luke—Katherine's cousin.....
.....Otto Walters
Aunt Becky Luke.....Nove Thomas
Jenkins, a butler.....Wade Goble
Patty, a maid.....Ina Richards
Brown.....Harry Hough

My $3.50 Oxfords for men this spring have more snap than some of the other stores show at $4.00 and $5.00. I buy my shoes made to order on $4.00 and $5.00 lasts, my shoes might bring $5.00 down town—better you see 'em.

catcher or shot. The owners of dogs would do well to take care of them and do the university public a favor by keeping them away from the grounds and buildings.

One day this week the freshman law class took up a collection and sent a member of their body who is sick in a hospital a beautiful bunch of flowers. This is the proper consideration to show for others and the spirit of the laws is to be commended.

THE POWER OF CONCENTRATION.

Did you ever notice that the men who are the busiest have the most time? Have you not wondered many times as you saw them seldom in a hurry and never excited, but still accomplishing an amazing lot of work? They seem to have time to attend university functions of all sorts and are always in the forefront of every college move. Perhaps you are trying to find time to get your own lessons and then can not rest for a single hour without getting behind. You have often thought that this was all because the other fellow was naturally brighter and more quick to learn than yourself.

But this is not the reason. He has discovered one little secret that you have been unable to stumble upon. It is really no secret at all, but some-

FRIDAY EXERCISES ENDED.

Vesper Service Yesterday the Last of Series—A Good Attendance.

The last vesper service of this year was held at Memorial hall last evening. The attendance was large and will no doubt insure a continuance of the services in the fall.

Professor Molzer played a beautiful violin solo. He also took Mr. Walt's place in the string quartet, Mr. Walt being ill. The quartet and organ gave a number from the Peer Gynt suite.
