APRIL 12, 1911.

This is the last issue of the Daily Nebraskan until Thursday morning, April 20.

A knocker is bad enough, but some of these sneak thieves have all the sons of the hammer beat forty ways. For example, one of these gentlemanly looking creatures walked into our office yesterday and displaying all the innocence of a little child, picked up a copy of the Nebraskan just as though he were a subscriber. He stood around a while and after reading a few moments folded the whole paper there is not a charity organization within the university to give alms to these poor victims of financial depression.

FORUM.

We believe that if any college should uphold the fundamental principles of justice, the law college should. We believe that the law college should be a democracy so far as possible and not an absolute monarchy; but we further believe that the law college of Nebraska has violated absolutely these standards by not announcing the Theta Kappa Nu's and freshmen law prizes yesterday morning.

In the first place, law is based upon custom and precedent and as soon as these are ignored—especially without notice or subsequent explanation—there is no element of democracy in the administration, and the will of the power in control is the only law known. Are concessions and awards of merit to be thrown out as it pleases the master? It has been the custom for several years to announce the law honors on the same day that the Phi Beta Kappas are made known, and any breach of this custom is at once a shock to every one, especially when no explanation is offered, to say nothing of a sufficient and acceptable reason or excuse.

It would be just as fair to call an assembly for the announcement of the Phi Beta Kappas and then only have a debate. Would this be fair to the students of this institution? Would it be "to fulfill that which we may reasonably expect from another or others"? There is another feature: the freshmen prizes are in trust to be given out on this occasion, and a breach of that trust I believe is a just cause for the highest indignation, if not absolute mutiny. The writer is just a law student who has no hopes for any prize, but who has a little sense of justice.

A LAW.

up, put it in his pocket and walked out. Was that nerve? No. It was simply the act of a genuine cheap-skate trying to impose on the good nature of the Nebraskan circulation department, and get all he could for nothing. How strange it is that the paper is not worth their money but they will go clear out of their way and steal a copy. Is it the money? No, it is the nature of the brute.

This is getting to be a common occurrence. There is not a morning goes by but what the circulation man receives calls for papers from about a dozen who are not subscribers. These calls are in the nature of the request of the little walf who says "Gimme a nickel." It is most unfortunate that
