As to whether the exception taken to the action of the authorities in leasing the tennis courts to the Y. M. C. A. is well founded, is a matter yet to be ascertained. However, it is something worthy of investigation. If the summer students demand the use of every court on the campus, they should have it. At least they should have the preference to any other players.

The summer sessions of the university should be as attractive as it is possible to make them. There are few attractions to break the monotony versity has a right to put to whatever use it sees fit. But what is the primary purpose and object on the part of the state in encouraging these things or even tolerating them? It is to make university life attractive. It is for this purpose the money is applied. Who has the authority to deprive the students of what is theirs by right of the will of the state? The intentions and desires of the taxpayers cannot be overlooked. This step should be taken with care and caution.

Sharpen them up—knives, case knives, jack knives, butcher knives, bread knives, any old kind of knives, every old kind of knives. Dandelion day is coming. Every loyal student of the university should be out to help uproot the "yellow peril." Every man in the university who has a speck of loyalty and cares to do something for his school will be on the job. If he cannot do that much—well, he does not belong at the University of Nebraska, that's all.

of study. The privileges are indeed few compared to the regular term. There is no university athletic or debating teams, no glee clubs or choruses, in fact entertainment within the university is little enough. If the summer students desire to play tennis, they should have the right to the courts. Above all, it seems that they should have the preference. They should not be compelled to pay an outside organization for a privilege that should be theirs by right. If the Y. M. C. A. is to have the lease, it should be subject to the prior right of the summer students.

The courts are located on the campus and, as such, are a part of the university. It is something the uni-
