At the second conference on the teaching of economics, to be held at the University of Chicago Saturday, May 6, J. E. Le Rossignol, lately elected head of the department of economics at Nebraska, will give an address on the subject, "The Character and Method of College Undergraduate Work in Economics."

Green's Sanitary Barber Shop, 120 No. 11th.

Without any parentage, and unannounced, to take but one breath, then perhaps die, the "Gatling Gun" appeared at the university yesterday morning. It was a four-page paper and no editorial staff was named. Advertising was absent. Inquiry developed nothing, but it is understood its advent was to boost the military ball. However, other school activities were mentioned.

Try a lunch at the Y. M. C. A. Spa, 13th and P streets.

Senior class pins can be obtained at the university book store. There are a few left yet and the committee is anxious to have these off hands so reports can be made. 130-8t

FIFTEEN HOURS ENOUGH

DEAN DAVIS DECLARES THE SNAP COURSES SHOULD BE CHANGED.

Dean Davis spoke at convocation Tuesday morning on "Courses of Study." He gave some interesting faces and made some suggestions that would help the work in the colleges. In the first place, the courses are not arranged scientifically or theoretically, but mainly to allow each department to have some credit.

There are too many easy courses. The easy studies, the popular professors and the well advertised courses have the greatest number of students. When a student gets into a hard study he thinks he is badly mistreated and present tendencies indicate growing wonder that any one could expect a student to work very hard. If a professor does insist on work he and his course are discredited by the student body.

Professor Davis thought that better entrance requirements should be demanded. He recommended a three-year high school course, not reducing the work, but making it more thorough and of a high grade. He also would like to see some of the snap courses abolished or changed. At present there are in this university about 280 two-hour courses and 100 one-hour courses. Credit for such courses as glee club, mere lecture attendance and Saturday excursions should not be given. He thought it would be well to require each sophomore to take at least two five-hour courses and each freshman one five-hour.

The number of hours one student should be allowed to carry a semester should be limited to fifteen. Then these should be all he could well handle. No one department should offer so many courses as they do at present. The university, as an institution of learning, should demand more and better work of her students.

were well dressed for the period in which they lived.

Three ideas of dress which were common to the Greeks are still retained by us.

These are roominess, gracefulness and simplicity.

You will find these qualities together with many others which go to make perfection—all combined in our clothes.
