INDIA IS NOT READY FOR POPULAR GOVERNMENT

DR. BUCK SPENT FORTY YEARS IN THAT COUNTRY.

PEOPLE CAN NOT BE TRUSTED

Sixty Different Languages Are Spoken in Many States and Illiteracy Prevails.

Rev. P. M. Buck, who has been a missionary in India for over forty years, yesterday addressed convocation on "Present Day Life in India." Rev. Buck is at present visiting in Lincoln with his son, Professor Buck of the rhetoric department. The speaker told some very interesting facts concerning India, having become, in his long residence there, well acquainted with conditions.

The Indians are related to the white race, being a branch of the Aryans, from whom we are descended. They have many good qualities, which are not often credited them, and which are seen only by knowing them. India contains one-fifth of the world's population, and is divided into many states, there being sixty different languages spoken. Dr. Buck said that it was the opinion of all the missionaries that British rule was a good thing for India. Under the conditions it is not possible to rule India better than England has done it.

Illiterate People.

Speaking of the unrest in India, the speaker said that the move toward popular government was started by a few who hoped to gain by it. The people are not ready for home rule. Ninety per cent are illiterate and a majority of the others have only a small education. The natives can not be trusted. In the courts English magistrates are always sought, as the natives are too free to bribes so that even their friends can not trust them. This is the reason why there are no corporations or large business in India. There is plenty of money stored up there, but the ethics of the people are too low to take the risk.

England has made great advance in its Indian government. It gives natives a places in its councils and their desires are usually heeded. They have done wonders in preventing famine. The Indians are continually fighting among themselves, and the British have done much good in preventing this. Dr. Buck thought that through love and trust some day India would be a nation of entirely different people than at present.

DET RINGER PLEASURES.

Swedish Comedy Pleases Audience Immensely.

"Det Ringer," the Swedish comedy, which was given by the Tegner society last Saturday, proved to be a very successful venture. The participants had learned their parts so well that there was not a hitch from the beginning to the end of the performance. The play was given with a snap that impressed the audience.

The title of the comedy suggests the ringing of the telephone. There are, in fact, three telephones on the stage, and the humor of the situation is to be found largely in the fear shown by Agathon Sommerberg, an old man from the country unused to the din of city life, when the telephone, often most unexpectedly, rings. Sommerberg was very ably represented by H. P. Magnusson. Tea Francke, a young widow interested in all new movements in Stockholm and in the world at large, was the role played by Mrs. Lillian Wickland. Julia Witt, a young lady of set ways, was played with much animation by Martina Swenson. Oscar Egert, the consul, who makes love to Julia Witt, found a good representative in Leonard Fleetwood. Mina, Tea Franck's saucy maid, was the part assigned to Ellen Samuelson.

Before the performance was given, the business meeting was held. Grace Munson sang a Swedish folk song.
