

STUDENTS GATHER FOR IVY DAY CELEBRATION

worthy of our service and our pride. Mr. Votava paid a great tribute to the state.

Our final duty is the one we owe our country. This duty is welded with the one we owe our state. There is more than enough work for each to do and great issues are before the country. These must be solved by those now becoming citizens. Mr. Votava closed with a plea to the class:

"Fellow students, our work will soon begin; achievement will soon be ours. Properly and truthfully I might have foretold and pictured the success, the name and fame the members of our class will attain. Instead I have chosen to recount in dull fashion the work we are expected to do, the work we are honor bound to do. I chose to speak of the duties we owe instead of the rewards we expect, because I believe that it is of more interest, of more importance to our class, to protect our alma mater, to aid and serve our state, to live and die for our country, than any paltry reward we may receive.

"Fellow students, Italy lies before us, an Italy of duties and opportunities, and therefore of success and honor. Let us resolve to take advantage of these opportunities so that when our three score and ten years is run, Old Nebraska will look upon us with an approving and a loving smile; let us resolve to be her worthy sons; let us resolve so to live that when the muse of history writes up the class of 1911, she puts it down as the greatest because it was a class that did its duty."

The Gift.

The presentation of the class gift was then made by the chairman of the committee. It consisted of a massive lamp post, which is to be placed between Library hall and the Administration building on the campus.

Chancellor Avery made the speech of acceptance on behalf of the university. He was glad to accept the gift as a memorial for the class of 1911, which he considered one of the university's best.

Planting the Ivy.

The ceremony of planting the ivy was then carried out. President Amberson planted the little slip which is to be cared for and tended until it becomes as large as those of the classes long gone. The ivy this year was planted near Brace hall, the physics building.

The May pole dance then took place. The pole was wound and unwound and wound again by the senior girls. The band furnished music for the dance. There was the usual rush for parts of the colors, they being highly prized as souvenirs. The girls in the dance were: Marion Whitmore, Kathryn Willis, Florence Whittier, Kate Field, Breta Bills, Jettie Taylor, Alice Birge, Sarah Harrington, Fenna Bealer, Esther Burritt, Lucy Green, Stella Hardy, Thankful Spaulding, Dorothy Morehead, Hattie Ogden and Jessie Cully.

This Afternoon.

This afternoon the exercises will be held on Nebraska Field. The interclass track meet begins at 2:00 o'clock which will be immediately followed by the Iron Sphinx-Spikes baseball game. Then the Innocents will be announced. The evening exercises will be held in the Temple theater at 7:30.

ACADEMY OF SCIENCES

Interesting Meetings Are Now Being Held.

The Nebraska academy of applied sciences held several meetings yesterday. Papers were read on scientific subjects relative to Nebraska. This morning a general field trip was taken for all members. This afternoon four field trips will be taken as follows:

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Nebraska Academy of Sciences will commence Friday morning at nine o'clock with a general session in the Music hall at the temple. All the leading scientists of the state are expected to be in attendance. At the morning session, papers of general interest to the public will be presented. One of the papers will be on "The Gas-producing Shales in the Graneros Formation near Fairbury, Nebraska," which are attracting much attention. Friday afternoon will be devoted to biology and medicine, and earth sciences section meetings at the Temple. Friday evening, at 6:30, the annual banquet will be held in the Temple banquet hall. After the banquet, in Science hall, Dr. G. E. Condra will deliver the president's address, "Conservation Problems in Nebraska," illustrated with lantern, followed by an illustrated lecture, "The Evolution of the Domestic Animals," by Prof. E. H. Barbour. Saturday morning there will be a general field trip for all the members, the place not yet being determined, followed by a camp dinner in the woods. In the afternoon there will be four field trips as follows.

Botany, Dean C. E. Bessey, leader; bird study, Dean R. W. Wolcott, leader; earth sciences, Professor G. E. Condra, leader, and pond life, Professor J. H. Powers, leader. The "Physical and Exact Sciences," and the "Ethnology and Folk Lore" section meetings will be held Saturday afternoon.

LATIN CLUB BANQUET.

Marks Close of a Year's Satisfactory Work for Members.

The Latin club held its annual banquet last night at the Lindell hotel. About thirty members were present. This marks the close of the year's work which has been satisfactory to the members of the club. Professor Barber acted as toastmaster. The following toasts were responded to: "Potentials," Penlope Ring; "Cases," Estelle Hardy; "Moods," Miss Hunter; "Voices," Agnes Matrau; "Persons," Ruth Munger; "Tenses," Professor Sanford; "Number," Cecile Snapp; "Why," Horace English.
