Welcome again, Skidoo day.

Did you get a swat in the joke section of the Cornhusker? If you did, we may with propriety ask what you think of it and whether or not you have located the joke editor. When you meet him make it an opportunity to congratulate him on the originality of the hit.

Thirteen picked men of the junior class have been selected for membership in the senior society, the Inno-ing a service to the university? We have wondered all winter why a few men should monopolize the sidewalk at the main entrance to the campus, but this warm weather has seemed to stimulate the loafers to a greater and more noticeable lack of etiquette. Yes, if it is anything at all, it is a lack of etiquette. Ladies and men of the better sort would rather be crowded off the sidewalk by a quartette of Temple high school girls, arm in arm, than to be blown off by the perfumed breath of these disreputable impostors. If the so-called gentlemen, who seem to own the sidewalk, fence, gates, lawn, and in fact the entire south half of the university campus, could get a picture of themselves as others see them they would be ashamed to look a young lady in the face as she attempts to plow through the fog.

KAPPAS' ANNUAL BANQUET.

Held at Lincoln Hotel Saturday Night
— Alumnae Present.

Saturday evening Kappa Kappa Gamma held their twenty-seventh annual banquet at the Lincoln hotel. The table was in the form of a triangle with a floral "Sigma" formed of fleur-de-lis and fern in the center. The fleur-de-lis was also prominent in the table decoration and on the place cards. Miss Ruth Baker was toast-mistress and presided over the following program.

- "Pity, 'tis True," Ruth Baker.
 - "Children of the Mist," Helen Shedd.
 - "Through Old Rose Glasses," Dellig Ladd.
 - "The Dream Ship," Laura Smith.
 - "The Primrose Path," Lida Axtell Poynter.
 - "By the Roadside," Mrs. W. L. Stephens.
 - "Aftermath," Florence Riddell.
 - "Auf Wiedersehen," Maude Birkby.
- The following alumnae came to Lincoln for the banquet: Betty Tenney, Omaha; Mrs. H. H. Brainerd, Council Bluffs; Theo Hansen, Fairbury; Florence Riddell, Strawberry Hill, Ia.; Otis Hassler, Wahoo; Eva Casey, Guy Atchison, well known student at the university, is narrating a string of accidents that befell him Saturday. It seems that Guy is the proud possessor of an extra double proof, steen horsepower motor cycle. In taking a little joy ride in the country about Cortland he was overtaken by a terrific rain storm and obliged to abandon his bi-cycular contraption and take to the woods. He came back to Lincoln via the steam cars.

cents. They were chosen not because of political "pull" and not because of fraternal or social affiliations, but rather because they are key men in the University and are leaders in our college affairs. They are worthy of the honor that has been given them. These men are boosters. They have been loyal to their university and are deserving not only of your congratulations and respect, but also of your moral support in the many plans which they may make for a better Nebraska spirit.

For one more time we must ask this impertinent question: "Why that cloud of smoke?" Can it be that the men who take an hourly puff at the front gate feel that they are perform-

An informal dancing party was given by the sorority Friday evening in Walsh Hall.

Seniors.

Your reservations for the senior play must be made today. The plan is as follows: Each senior, or a representative with the two dollar receipt, is to be at the Oliver today at one o'clock. Those holding receipts will be given opportunity to make reservations in the order in which the assessment was paid. Each receipt is marked with its serial number. Each one should be there to take the proper place in line.
